TRAIN FACTORY MANAGERS.

Columbia to Have a New Course to Aid Industries.

A course in organization and management, to be open to technical men, employed in managerial posts, is to be given next Fall by Columbia University, according to an announcement by the Department of Extension Teaching. The course will be given by Professor Walter Rautenstrauch, consulting engineer at several industrial plants. It will be essentially a study in manufacturing, but will consider commercial questions as well as technical problems.

Professor Rautenstrauch believes that industry and technical schools should co-operate. He thinks industries have failed to profit by scientific discoveries made in laboratories. "I am anxious," he said, "that Columbia University shall be a leader in a movement to carry to our manufacturers every bit of service possible, that our nation may be strong."

He suggested that manufacturers participating should select for instruction the managers of different departments.

INDORSE AIR MAIL SERVICE.

Aero Club of America Urges Extension to Pittsburgh and Boston.

The Executive Committee of the Aero Club of America has written to Secretary Baker and Assistant Postmaster General Praeger indorsing the plan to extend the aerial mail service and urging the extension of the service from New York and Washington to Pittsburgh and Cleveland and from New York to Boston.

They point out that tests have shown the necessity of giving more extensive cross-country flying training to military aviation students, and that by extending the aerial mail service the students may get extensive experience in that branch of flying.

The letter addressed to Secretary Baker and Assistant Postmaster Praeger is, in part, as follows:

The first four days of aerial mail carrying between New York, Philadelphia, and Washington have shown how absolutely necessary it is to give extensive cross-country flying to our military aviators, so that they may be fully trained when sent overseas. This training should be continued until the aviators become familiar with the topography of the country.

By extending the aerial mail service to Pittsburgh and Cleveland the character of the aerial mail service will assume much greater importance, both from the standpoint of the extensive cross-country flying which it will afford to the military aviators, as well as from the standpoint of the actual figures in time required for the delivery of mail to the manufacturing centres in the Middle West and West.

The addition of an aerial mail route from Belmont Park to Boston is quite logical. This route will be one of the most efficient, because mail for New York and the North arrives at Belmont Park and the route from New York to Boston can be laid directly from that point. This route will also afford valuable advanced training in cross-country flying for our military aviators.

TO ADJUST WAGES IN WEST.

Taft and Walsh on War Labor Board Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Ex-President Taft and Frank P. Walsh, joint Chairmen of the National War Labor Board, will leave Washington on Tuesday night on a trip to Kansas City, St. Louis, Cleveland, and Detroit to adjust industrial disputes.

At Kansas City they will conduct an inquiry, on May 24, into the wage controversy between the Pittsburg & Joplin Railway Company and its employes. The workers had been on strike, but returned to work when they were assured that the National War Labor Board would take up the case and that the company would abide by the board's decision.

They will visit St. Louis on May 25 to adjust the differences of the St. Joseph Lead Company and its employes in the smelter at Herculaneum, Mo. The men were on strike, but went back upon an agreement that the War Labor Board would assume jurisdiction and that its decision would be binding. The controversy has been narrowed by voluntary agreements on all other points, so that it is now confined to the question of wages. The men involved produce one-fifth of all the lead mined in the United States.

A wage dispute exists between the Detroit United Railway Company and its employes, which Messrs. Taft and Walsh will seek to adjust when they visit Detroit on May 27. A similar situation obtains between the Cleveland Railway Company and its employes. That city will be visited on May 28.

In their efforts to effect settlements of these controversies Messrs. Taft and Walsh will act as a section of the War Labor Board.

WAR SAVINGS HONOR FLAGS.

Committee Ready to Distribute Trade Division Recognitions.

The New York War Savings Committee announced yesterday that it was ready to distribute the honor flags in the trade divisions where the quotas of War Savings Stamps have been exceeded or filled before the time set for the end of the campaign. The first flag is to go to Lasher & Lathrop, 29 Lafayette Street, the first firm in the Paper Division to exceed the quota. The flag will be raised on their building today with ceremonies to be attended by members of the committee.

The banner committee among the trade divisions is the Hosiery and Knit Goods Division, which reported that 92.3 per cent. of its quota had been subscribed before April 27, with a total of $138,474 out of $150,000. The drive among the trade committees is in charge of a managing committee headed by William Fellowes Morgan, which calls the committee the "Pioneer Division," in honor of the first American expeditionary force sent to France under General Pershing.

PROFIT IN SUGAR WASTE.

American Company Made $314,324 from It in One Year.

An idea of what is being done by large industrial enterprises in utilizing waste materials is furnished by the annual report of the American Beet Sugar Company. This concern several years ago began converting the pulp which it had previously thrown away into a valuable food for cattle. While for the year ending March 31, 1917, the return from the pulp amounted to $198,022, the net receipts for the succeeding year totaled $314,324, and was more than sufficient to pay the dividend on the preferred stock of the company.

"At Oxnard, Cal.," says the report, "after experiments during the last three campaigns, a plant is being erected at an estimated cost of $123,930 to extract from the water which is now run into the ocean, potash, ammonia, &c., the market value of which has advanced so rapidly during the war. This plant, it is expected, will be ready for operation when the factory begins work the coming Summer, and it is estimated that the profit on its production this year will exceed its cost, and that hereafter, even with peace prevailing, the value of its product will insure continued profitable operation."

The Care of Securities for Absent Owners

IF you are considering leaving town for the summer, the care and custody of your securities during your absence may be a matter of concern to you. The Trust Department of this Company will relieve you of all attention to details in the care of your securities, and at the same time hold them always subject to your direct control.

This includes such services as assuming responsibility for the physical care of securities; the collection and credit (or remittance) of income, and principal when due; buying and selling securities upon order; preparing certificates of ownership in connection with Income Tax requirements; and reporting upon the condition of investments, when requested

While attending to the entire routine care of securities, we endeavor to adapt our service to each individual's particular needs. The cost is very moderate.

Send for our booklet, "The Safe Keeping of Securities," which gives full details.

LIMIT ROAD SUPPLIES.

To Conserve Petroleum, Asphalt and Tar Products for War.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Use of oil and coal products in public road work will be limited for the period of the war. Petroleum, asphalt, or tar products wanted for building or repairing roads will be delivered, it was announced today, only after approval of the application by a committee representing the Fuel Administration and the office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture.

Limitation of the use of oil products has been made necessary by the demands of the army, navy, allied, and essential war industries, but it is announced that every effort will be made to furnish sufficient of such products to prevent deterioration of the bituminous macadam roads of the country, which are valued at upward of a billion dollars.

WILL SERVE MILK DINNERS.

Diet Squad of 1,500 Rats Also on View at Farm Exposition.

The six-day National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition will open to-day at the Grand Central Palace, at which the food value of milk will be exploited on a large scale. Cows from all parts of the State will be on exhibition, including Oxford's Briar Flower, the State's champion milk and butter producer, that has just been sold for the record price of $10,000.

Milk dinners will be a feature of the exposition, and will be served daily under the supervision of the Board of Conservation of the New York State Food Commission, Cornell University, Teacher's College, and the Pratt Institute.

Today will be New York State Day, and there will be present representatives from all the State departments. Governor Whitman will officially open the show. New York State has appropriated $30,000 for its individual exhibit, which will include a number of interesting features by Cornell University. One of these is the exhibit of Professor E. V. McCollum's diet squad of rats, 1,500 in number, from Johns Hopkins University. Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover will address the dairymen on Dairymen's League Day, Thursday, May 23. Dr. Charles E. North is managing director of the show. The cost of the exposition is about $100,000.

FEDERAL EYES ON CONSTRUCTION

Builders Asked to Wait Until Government Ascertains Material Supply.

NO BLANKET PROHIBITION

Larger Army and Naval Needs Upset Original Estimates—Fuel the Crux.

In order to cause no embarrassment to Government construction, the tendency at Washington is more and more toward centralizing effort in the direction of essential construction only, with the idea of conserving as much as possible available building material.

This disposition is clearly reflected in the situation governing Portland cement manufacture in the Lehigh and Hudson districts supplying this market. It would not be a question of circumscribing building construction at all if it were assured that there will be enough fuel available to permit building materials to be manufactured in normal quantities, but the Federal authorities are confronted with the problem of supplying an army at least double in size that originally contemplated and the whole estimate of the quantity of building construction the various Government branches will require this Summer and Autumn had been set at a point far below the new necessities.

Recent reports on the supplies of building materials at various distributing points show stocks very little in excess of the total amount the Government authorities thought they would need, with the result that with the enlarged military and naval programs it is not known just how the various building material producers will be able to meet the emergency if ordinary building work is permitted to proceed. It is apparently not the intention of the authorities to issue a blanket order to stop all building construction save that only of Government origination, but until some idea can be obtained as to just how much building material is available those contemplating private non-essential construction work are being requested by letter from the proper authorities to defer their operations for the moment.

Some idea of the pressure that is already being levied upon some materials was evidenced in the trade last week when it became known that it might be necessary for the Government to take over the steel-producing capacity of the country. In the Portland cement districts supplying the New York metropolitan district it was learned that in spite of every effort toward high efficiency the stocks of Portland cement on hand on May 1 were 40 per cent. less than the quantities on hand on the same date a year ago, and 45 per cent. less than that on hand May 1, 1916. This shows that as fast as Portland cement is manufactured it is being shipped. Shipments out of this zone in April were 25 per cent. greater than they were in March of this year, and March had a shipping record far greater than that of the same month last year, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports. Common brick, another basic building commodity, was advancing over the week-end and was expected to rule around $10 for all grades by today. This change is partly due to the stress of demand and low productivity and the increasing probability of heavy Government requisitions within the near future.

With the hope of helping the situation somewhat the Fuel Administration is doing what it can to get coal to these building material producing plants, but even with full co-operation of all other departments at Washington the coal deliveries at the cement plants in the first two weeks in May showed that fuel deliveries at the Lehigh district were still 40 per cent. behind that of the same two weeks in 1917.

One of the first things that the Government will determine is whether there is sufficient building material on hand to take care of wartime requirements and at the same time permit a reasonable quantity of private construction work to proceed. As far as the Eastern seaboard is concerned the building material supply is in requisition now for quantities far in excess of the amount needed for construction in the entire year 1913 when the metropolitan district of New York had 18,394,000 square feet of construction work planned and going ahead while Government construction on only two Government operations at present call for two structures which combined represent almost 12,000,000 square feet, and this does not include cantonment enlargement and new terminal construction facilities. In 1913 there was almost an over-supply of building materials, whereas today the quantities of building materials in this district are less than 50 per cent. of normal.

There is no hope of increasing this supply unless fuel deliveries can be guaranteed. Happily the outlook for improvement in fuel supply is brightening as the situation is being demonstrated to the authorities at Washington.

WARNS OF TRADE FRAUDS.

Spokesman of Credit Men Urges War on Crooked Business.

Freas Brown Snyder, Chairman of the Investigation Committee of the National Association of Credit Men, in a statement issued last night, said:

"One-fourth of the annual losses caused by bad debts, amounting to $52,000,000 yearly, is due to dishonest business men whose vocation is to obtain goods on credit for which they never intend to pay. If credit men would investigate the antecedents of persons sending in new, unsolicited orders, one half of the fraudulent cases would be eliminated.

"There are enough 'fences,' stores which dispose of goods obtained on credit by men who evade payment, in New York City to fill a good-sized town. In one section 50 per cent. of the stores are 'fences.' Domestic unhappiness is the cause of 10 per cent. of the business failures.

"We at home can help America win the war by dealing only with reputable business houses. When there is a decrease in the number of bad debt accounts the high cost of living will be lowered. Every crooked concern has a list of easy credit men, from whom it is not difficult to obtain merchandise.

"There are three C's in credit—character, capital, and capacity—and the greatest of these is character.

"It is the patriotic duty of every honest credit man to wage war on the crooked business man. We owe it to the public, to the honorable dealers, and to ourselves to make a determined drive to reduce the number of fraudulent cases, which have been increased as a result of the war."

RESTRICTS COAL FOR SWISS.

Germany Imposes Unfair Conditions Affecting French Supply.

PARIS, May 18.—Germany has profited by the generous French offer to supply Switzerland with 85,000 tons of coal monthly by imposing upon Switzerland the condition that it may obtain the customary 200,000 tons from Germany only in case it maintains this ratio of 200,000 tons to 85,000 tons between the two sets of warring powers—that if the German supply falls below the stipulated 200,000 tons, as it always has done, the amount drawn from France must drop correspondingly, according to Le Temps.

The newspaper points out that the German object is obviously to hamper, so far as possible, Swiss ammunition firms, which work in the interest of the Entente countries, from increasing or even maintaining their present output. It refers to the continued failure of Germany to supply Switzerland with anywhere near the agreed minimum of 200,000 tons, which, even without the impetus of the Entente supply, has usually averaged about 160,000 tons.

Le Temps hopes, however, that Switzerland will be able to hold Germany near to the account because it supplies Germany with electricity equivalent to 75,000 tons of coal monthly, and the arrangement between the two countries is something of a give and take when Switzerland's beef and other supplies are taken into consideration.

7 VALUABLE DOGS PERISH.

Fire Destroys Mrs. Leo Wanner's Kennels at Meadowbrook, L. I.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 19.—Seven Belgian police dogs, including "Filax," valued at $4,000, perished in a fire which destroyed the Meadowbrook kennels, owned by Mrs. Leo Wanner, at Meadowbrook today. The seven dogs and the kennels were valued at over $25,000.

"Filax" had seen service in France and had been wounded. He was sent to this country to aid in the first Red Cross drive and was instrumental in raising over $3,000.

Among the other pedigreed animals which perished in the fire were "Lillie," "Schust," a son of Champion Mack, "Debora," and "Elsa." "Queens Myra" was on exhibition in New Jersey yesterday and won first prize, but on the trip back to Meadowbrook she got a chill, and Mrs. Wanner kept her in the house during the night, thus saving her life.

Mrs. Wanner is Deputy Sheriff of Nassau County and at various times had loaned her police dogs to aid the authorities in the hunt for criminals.

RED CROSS SLOGAN IN WILSON'S SPEECH

Give Freely, the Plea of 100,000 Workers Who Begin $100,000,000 Campaign Today.

APPEAL TO CORPORATIONS

Every Home, Office, and Trade to be Canvassed—1,000 Booths on City Street Corners.

More than 100,000 Red Cross workers will begin today in a city bright with American flags and Red Cross flags to collect for the Second Red Cross War Fund. With an organization even larger in numbers than that which carried on the last Liberty Loan campaign and a program hardly less elaborate, the Red Cross leaders were confident yesterday that they would realize the prediction of Cleveland H. Dodge, who said in his introduction of the President at the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday night that he believed the $100,000,000 minimum would be oversubscribed by 50 or 100 per cent.

Red Cross workers will swarm in all parts of the city. Committees will canvass every office and every workroom in the business sections, while thousands of women will make the house-to-house canvasses in the residential sections. One thousand booths at populous street corners will remind passersby of their duty to subscribe to the "second line of defense" of the Allies. Countless meetings will take place daily in city parks, at churches, in homes and in clubrooms, forums and public meeting places of every kind.

Red Cross leaders were jubilant yesterday over the immense impetus which had been given to their campaign in this city and all over the nation by the President's action in marching at the head of the Red Cross parade and by his stirring appeal to the nation in his speech at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Many penetrating phrases from his speech will be reprinted and circulated by the hundreds of thousands in New York City. The Committee on Corporations of the Red Cross drive has adopted as the basis for its intensive campaign of the business district the following words from his speech:

Sentiment from Wilson.

"My friends, a great day of duty has come, and duty finds a man's soul as no other kind of work can ever find it. May I say this: The duty that faces us all now is to serve one another, and no man can afford to make a fortune out of this war. There are men among us who have forgotten that, if they ever saw it. Some of you are old enough—I am old enough—to remember men who made fortunes out of the civil war, and you know how they were regarded by their fellow citizens. That was a war to save one country—and this is a war to save the world. And your relation to the Red Cross is one of the relations which will relieve you of the stigma. You can't give anything to the Government of the United States; it won't accept it. There is a law of Congress against accepting even services without pay. The only thing that the Government will accept is a loan and duties performed; but it is a great deal better to give than to lend or to pay, and your great channel for giving is the American Red Cross."

The following letter has been sent by William Boyce Thompson, Chairman of the Committee on Corporations, to all corporations in New York City:

To All Corporations in Greater New York:

The President of the United States has appointed a War Council of the American Red Cross to solicit funds for relief in the war and has designated the week beginning May 20 as the period in which the funds needed shall be raised.

The Committee on Corporations Campaign is, therefore, asking you to consider the question of making a suitable contribution to the war fund and is sending you a pamphlet dealing with the legal right and moral duty of all American corporations to make liberal subscriptions.

The matter is discussed by eminent American lawyers—the Hon. Charles E. Hughes and the Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien. They have both taken the broad ground that the winning of the war is essential to the life of every corporation in the United States; that the American Red Cross is an important agency in winning the war, and that since it is the duty of a corporation to protect its very existence it is its duty to support the American Red Cross.

The States of New York and New Jersey have passed laws by which this right and duty to support the Red Cross is written into statutes. But above and beyond the question of statutory permission arises the obligation imposed by the national welfare. This, broadly stated, is the position taken by the men whose opinions are given in the inclosed pamphlet.

So clearly set forth is this view the committee feels that comment is superfluous, and urges generous support to the appeal which is now being made. It is made to all corporations in Greater New York in confidence that the response will be universal and immediate.

I beg to quote as follows:

President Wilson says: "The American Red Cross * * * is recognized by law and international conventions as a public instrumentality for war relief."

The Hon. Charles E. Hughes says: "The question is not one of permitting the use of corporate moneys for what are or may be called 'worthy objects' outside the corporate enterprise, but for the maintenance of the very foundation of the corporate enterprise itself."

The Hon. Morgan J. O'Brien says: "No earthquake or plague * * * in its disastrous effect, can be compared with our defeat in this war. The enormous expense which a single day's unnecessary duration of the war involves must be distributed among all the various property interests of our country in one way or another. No interest can avoid contributing its share."

Richard V. Lindabury of New Jersey, in writing to a client, says in part: "The corporation is the creature of the State and could not survive its destruction. If the property of the company * * * were attacked it would have a clear right to expend its funds in its defense. Its right to do so at the instance of the State and in connection with the Government is not lessened by the fact that the attack begun on a foreign shore has not yet reached this city." Yours very truly,

WILLIAM BOYCE THOMPSON,
Chairman Committee on Corporations Campaign.

Atlantic Division's Plans.

"Approximately 500,000 men and women will begin work tomorrow in the second $100,000,000 war fund campaign of the Red Cross, in the territory of the Atlantic Division outside Greater New York, it was announced yesterday at division campaign headquarters, 44 East Twenty-third Street.

"These workers will range all the way from Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Second War Fund Committee and Vice President of the Chase National Bank of New York City, to solicitors in the smallest villages in the three States—New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

"Every household will be visited in a house-to-house canvass, every factory and office worker will be asked to subscribe, and every farmer, farmer's wife and child will receive a special appeal. The farmer will be asked to give an amount equivalent to the yield of an acre of land.

"Red Cross films will be shown in virtually every theatre in the division. Red Cross speakers, including scores of Canadian officers and others just back from the front, will tell of the work the Red Cross is doing in Europe.

"The division outside Greater New York has been asked to raise one-tenth of the entire fund, and, in the opinion of Mr. Dahl, it will go well over its allotment.

"Some noteworthy quotas are: The Oranges, $300,000; Montclair, $275,000; Newark, $750,000; Englewood, $180,000; Jersey City, $200,000; Red Bank, $125,000; Troy, $175,000; Albany, $250,000; Amsterdam, $100,000; Bridgeport, $300,000; Hartford, $400,000; New Britain, $125,000; New Haven, $300,000; Waterbury, $350,000, and Stamford, $115,000.

"The personnel of the Atlantic Division War Fund Committee, of which Mr. Dahl is Chairman, follows:

"George P. Schmidt, Vice Chairman; C. A. Coffin, Forrest F. Dryden, A. B. Leach, Donald McDonald, Isaac M. Ullman, Charles H. Simmons, A. I. Esberg, J. H. Gannon, Executive Secretary; Edward A. Norman, Assistant Secretary; C. C. Michener, Campaign Manager; A. E. Tamblyn, Chairman Speakers' Bureau, and Walter C. McMillan, Chairman Advertising Committee.

"New York State and New Jersey are divided into districts. The former has five districts, the latter four. Donald McDonald is the War Fund Chairman for New York, with headquarters at Albany; A. B. Leach is Chairman for New Jersey, with headquarters at Newark, and Colonel Isaac M. Ullman heads the campaign for Connecticut. His headquarters is in New Haven."

For the Industrial Canvass.

In addition to the canvass for direct contributions from corporations, a large organization has been formed for an industrial canvass of all employes in factories, offices, and business places. C. A. Coffin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the General Electric Company, is Chairman of the Industrial Campaign, with main headquarters on the twentieth floor of the Equitable Building. Gerald M. Curran is the Executive Secretary and the following are Vice Chairmen: Mercer P. Moseley, D. W. Cooke, William E. Taylor, Ray Palmer, James Breckenridge, and Theodore H. Spratt. The Chairman of the teams in different lines which will be separately canvassed are as follows:

Rally at Liberty Bell.

One of the centres of the drive in New York will be the Liberty Bell in City Hall Park, where Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, will speak at noon, followed by E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, and a number of other speakers and entertainers.

The Red Cross booth of the Stage Women's War Relief in front of the New York Public Library will start its drive tomorrow afternoon, with speakers, singers, and entertainers, including Miss Rachel Crothers, Miss Maggie Teyte, Ruth Draper, and Minnie Dupree, William Kelly, Ada Patterson, Joseph R. Grismer, Elisabeth Marbury, Grace La Rue, Joseph Bickerton, Grant Mitchell, and the Police Glee Club. Officials of this committee are Mrs. Linzee Blagden, Mrs. Joseph R. Grismer, Mrs. Alice Fisher Harcourt, and Mrs. Mitchel Hall. Girls will collect from the crowds at the Library.

Red Cross concerts will be held daily at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, at 677 Fifth Avenue. Singers at the first concert this afternoon at 3 o'clock will be Clarence Whitehill, Marcia van Dresser, George Barrere, Paul Kefer, and Carlos Salzedo. Mr. Whitehill will sing "America" at the first concert. A score of other opera stars and well-known singers have volunteered their services for the concerts, which will be held through the week.

The big Red Cross Field Day at the Polo Grounds will be held on Monday a week from today. A number of prizes for fungo hitting, speed in circling the bases, and other baseball feats will be awarded at the game on that day.

George W. Wickersham and George Gordon Battle will speak at noon tomorrow from the steps of St. Paul's Church, at Broadway and Vesey Street. Other noted speakers will talk to crowds there on successive days at noon.

Church bells and factory whistles, sounding in unison, will count up the millions collected at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and at the same hour on succeeding days, while the big Red Crosses stationed at Broadway and Houston Street and at Fifth Avenue and Eighth Street will move uptown one block for each million collected.

The cloak, suit, and skirt industry has organized for a drive to collect from every section of the trade under the leadership of a committee composed of Max Meyer, Ben Erdman, William Dann, Paul Prager, William H. Hoar, Roger W. Allen, John M. O'Connor, and Joseph Hans.

As a Builder of Morale.

The Red Cross has issued a small book called "This Side of the Trenches" for use during the drive. This says in the introduction:

"This message is that, despite the huge quantities of machinery and munitions, despite the billions of dollars, despite the millions of tons of ships that are being poured into this terrible venture, the real factor in deciding the war will be something that cannot be manufactured, something that cannot be measured, something that cannot even be seen. More vital than airplanes, more important than machine guns, tanks, submarine chasers, or high explosives is the quality of the spirit of the men in the trenches and on the ocean. When the French and British were retreating to the Marne in the first weeks of the war, when the French were deluged with the terrific rain of steel that accompanied the German drive toward Verdun, when the British and the Canadians underwent the tortures of the first gas attacks at Ypres, the issue was not how many miles of territory would be yielded or held, but whether the courage and confidence of the troops would endure. The real defeat of the Germans lay in their inability to break the spirit of the defenders of France and Belgium.

"Military men call this spirit morale. It has been defined as 'the moral pulse of armies,' and it is said that since before the days of Julius Caesar the skill of every great commander has depended chiefly upon his ability to feel and appreciate this intangible thing. It is morale that enables men to endure hardships, hunger, and pain, to face death again and again, and yet to keep on fighting. It springs from the spirit of the individual soldier and sailor. As long as he continues to be cheerful and to feel confident of himself and his officers, so long does the morale of the army and the navy continue to be strong. Let but one man become discouraged, let but one man worry, and he will become a drain upon the vitality of all those who are fighting near him. That is why the soldier with a buoyancy of spirit is more valuable to a regiment than a squad of sharpshooters. That, moreover, is why the Red Cross is one of the most important factors in the winning of the war, for it is the knowledge that all is well this side the trenches, in the United States, that will encourage a man to fight with the best that is in him."

Another Appeals for Red Cross.

After describing the aid and comfort furnished by the Red Cross to the wounded men and how it helped to uphold the morale of the soldiers, Signaler Skeybill urged the 500 persons who had gathered to hear him to make the utmost sacrifice for the Red Cross.

"Wear your old clothes," he urged. "The boys in the trenches have got to wear them, and they are as good as you are. Cut out your entertainments and holidays. Live simply and eat simply, and remember that each of you is enlisted in this war and must make sacrifices."

The speaker graphically described the contrast at Gallipoli, where he and so many of his comrades were wounded, and where they had no comforts of the Red Cross with present-day conditions, where Red Cross workers attend to all the wants of the wounded in a comparatively short time.

"In those earlier days we had an excuse for the absence of Red Cross comforts," he declared. "You have no excuse today, for the mistakes of the past must be your lesson for the future."

There was no sale of seats in connection with the President's appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House at the opening of the Red Cross drive on Saturday night. The seats were complimentary and went in the main to active workers, members of the Red Cross and liberal contributors to its work.

SALVATION ARMY AID PLEDGED TO RED CROSS

The following statement was issued yesterday by George Gordon Battle, Chairman of the Campaign Committee, in relation to the recent drive for the war fund of the Salvation Army:

"The Salvation Army war fund has reached the figure of $275,000 and is still going. We confidently anticipate that the final amount will not be less than $300,000. For this splendid result Miss Evangeline Booth, Commander of the army, asks me to express their hearty thanks and gratitude to the generous people of New York and to the workers whose unselfishness and devoted efforts have made possible this signal achievement.

"Miss Booth begs me to assure the public, and especially the contributors, that every dollar of this money will be carefully and economically expended and that an accurate audit by skilled accountants of all receipts and disbursements will be kept and published. The Salvation Army zealously guards its reputation for making a dollar go as far as any other like organization.

"But although Commander Booth and the other members of the army are profoundly grateful for this aid to their overseas war work for the American soldiers, gratitude is also due from all the friends and relatives of our boys in France to the Salvation Army for the assistance, comfort and cheer which it is given to our soldiers there.

"President Wilson, Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels, General Pershing, and many others have testified to the excellence of the work. The men and women of the Salvation Army have greatly helped and will continue to help our troops in the trenches of France and Flanders.

"The people of this country did not know the extent and character of the war work of the Salvation Army until they were informed and educated by this campaign. Now that they have this knowledge they will appreciate the fact and will be ready for the next call. As the number of our soldiers in France increases, the demand upon the Salvation Army and its responsibilities grow greater. We count confidently upon the men and women of America to support this work, to increase their contributions as the need increases, and never to fall in their loyal aid to our own boys at the front.

"The expenditure of the fund already raised will justify the confidence which has been placed in the Salvation Army and will give a basis for subsequent appeals. Commander Booth asks me to urge every friend of the Salvation Army to join, heart and soul, in the Red Cross campaign of this week. Orders have been given that the men and women of the army shall devote their most strenuous effort to the good cause.

"The success of the Salvation Army appeal is a most favorable omen for the Red Cross drive, and the workers of the Salvation Army will spare no effort for the success of the Red Cross campaign."

PRAYERS FOR RED CROSS.

Pleas for Success of $100,000,000 Drive Heard in Many Churches.

Red Cross prayers and sermons were heard in all Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Bronx churches yesterday. In the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and in several Presbyterian churches women members of local Red Cross units were stationed in the vestibules, and the estimate last night of gifts secured in this way ran to thousands of dollars.

In the Second Presbyterian Church, Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Robert Watson, had just returned from visits to more than twenty cantonments. He spoke first of the Red Cross and the Saturday parade, and then of what he had seen of boys in the cantonments.

"The striking thing to me about the Saturday parade," said Dr. Watson, "was the great superiority of the women over the men as marchers. I saw hardly a line of men who were more than straggliers, while the women without exception were alert, marched in almost perfect order, and had life which the men lacked.

"Beyond all praise are most of the things I saw at the cantonments. Out of more than a score of cantonments I found only one where the feeling of the men was unsatisfactory. At all of the others the spirit is admirable. It is simply amazing to see the splendid way in which men put up with inconveniences without grumbling, and how universally they are willing to go to the front without a murmur and with the heroism that is supposed to have been the exclusive quality of knights of old. The only complaint I heard was about the delay in getting at the throats of the Huns.

"America would not give too much if we gave half of our possessions to make such boys comfortable. The debt we owe them is simply beyond our ability ever to pay. The Red Cross $100,000,000 is a mere tithe of our debt."

CALLS FOR WOOL AUCTIONS.

Davison Notifies Governors of Mr. Wilson's Red Cross Gift.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Chairman Davison of the American Red Cross today sent telegrams to the Governors of each of the States notifying them that President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson have suggested that the clipping of wool from the White House sheep be divided into portions and one sent to each State to be sold at auction for the benefit of the American Red Cross.

"President and Mrs. Wilson," says the telegram, "have presented to the American Red Cross the shearing from the White House sheep with the request that this wool be auctioned in each State during the Red Cross War Fund campaign week for the benefit of the fund. They have suggested that we ask you as Governor to receive mail and telegraphic bids from your entire State during this week. Each State will receive approximately two pounds of wool, to be known as White House wool. In order to stimulate activity in the bidding you will please arrange for the publication in your State papers each morning of the bids received during the preceding day, with the names of the bidders.

"We are asking the Chairman of the Red Cross chapter in your capital city to place the Red Cross organization at your service in any way you may desire. Wool will be sent special delivery, and we hope will arrive before the close of campaign. The total amount secured from all States will be turned into the War Fund as the President's fund."

This telegram in condensed form has been sent by cable to the Governors of Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines and to the Governor of Alaska. George E. Scott, Assistant General Manager of the Red Cross, has instructed the managers of the fourteen Red Cross divisions to facilitate the auctioning of the wool in every way possible.

ROOSEVELT GIVES LIMIT.

If All Your Money Is In Liberty Bonds, Give Bonds to Red Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., May 19.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, speaking at three meetings in the Red Cross drive in Nassau County, told his audiences today that no citizen should consider that he had done enough for the Red Cross or for the soldiers of the American army if he stopped short of self-denial. When his appeals for the Red Cross were applauded loudly the speaker said ironically that those who applauded should give once to the Red Cross and that those who did not applaud should give twice.

Introducing Colonel Roosevelt at the meeting in the Garden City Hotel tonight, Bishop Burgess of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Long Island referred smilingly to the controversy with Postmaster General Burleson, and said that if the Colonel's letters failed to get through the mails they might be dropped on the Capitol by an airplane service to be built up by Texas county citizens with recruits from the flying fields. In beginning his speech Colonel Roosevelt referred to the humorous tone of Bishop Burgess, but he said Postmaster General Burleson was beginning to realize the seriousness of the controversy.

Colonel Roosevelt repeated his assertion that the United States ought to declare war against "all of Germany's vassal states." He said that the country was false to itself and to every pledge unless it saw the war through with Armenia freed from the menace and power of Turkey. He said he had been asked about his assertion that no man was doing his utmost for the war unless he was in the army or navy if he were of fighting age, and particularly what he thought the fighting age ought to be.

"The fighting age is between 18 and 70," he added, "and any man who is able to go ought to leave a decision upon his acceptance or rejection to the military authorities. Everybody has to do something and that something his utmost, to win this war."

At Port Washington Colonel Roosevelt said he knew what the Red Cross was doing for the soldiers, for his own son had been wounded and cared for by them. "And what they have done for him they are doing for thousands of other boys. It is up to you to see that they continue to do it."

The Colonel again dubbed the war an "exclusive affair," and regretted that he had not been allowed to take an army to France. "If I had been allowed to raise a volunteer army," he asserted, "I would have made a special point of recruiting German-born Americans, thereby proving there is only one kind of an American—a loyal American."

W. Bourke Cockran, who preceded Mr. Roosevelt, urged unflagging support of the war, because, he said, it represented the forces of truth arrayed against the unchristian doctrines of the War Lord.

Colonel Roosevelt shared honors with an Armenian General, Mesrop Newton (Khan) Azgapetian, who spoke of the wonderful work of the Red Cross in his country, and expressed the hope that some day Armenia would be able to repay America for the great work of this country.

In concluding his speeches at Lawrence and Port Washington, as well as his speech here, Colonel Roosevelt said: "It is no excuse for any citizen who is asked to give to the Red Cross to say: 'I haven't anything to give. I put all my money in Liberty Bonds last month.' That excuse is not acceptable. If you haven't anything else to give, give the Liberty bonds. Those bonds would be doing a double duty in the winning of the war!"

Cardinal Asks Americans to Heed Appeal Generously.

BOSTON, May 19.—An appeal in behalf of the American Red Cross and in support of its nation-wide drive for $100,000,000, which begins tomorrow, was issued by Cardinal O'Connell. The Cardinal's statement follows:

"Testimony of the highest order from France and Italy gives us all the fullest assurances of the marvelously efficient work accomplished by the American Red Cross Society. Just as long as this war lasts that great work of mercy will be absolutely indispensable. Without its touching, tender, and helpful assistance our brave boys would be in a sad and sorry plight indeed. We cannot even contemplate such a possibility.

"The Red Cross is such an absolutely necessary concomitant of our army at the front that the same patriotism must stand behind both the army in the fight and the Red Cross in merciful service.

"No true American can possibly fail in the solemn duty of this hour toward our boys who fight so gallantly and the noble forces of mercy which stand ready to aid them by deeds as valorous as they are generous.

"No one with a heart can hear the appeal ringing today throughout the country and refuse to respond to it generously and substantially."

Play Raises $155,000 for Red Cross.

The total amount raised for the Red Cross by the three performances of "Out There" given at the Century Theatre on Friday and Saturday was about $80,000. Of this sum $40,000 was raised by the first performance, $4,500 at the Saturday matinée, and $15,500 on Saturday night. The receipts for the first week of the tour, eight performances, amounted to about $135,000. The company will remain on tour two more weeks.

Liaison means trying to do that, so that one company or battalion will not advance or retire alone, leaving its own or its neighbor's flank open to attack or in danger of being surrounded.

Your sales brigade, bookkeeping battalion, or purchasing platoon needs liaison on the battle lines of competition.

Your files should supply it. If they do not you are not getting the service files should give.

WILSON TO SAY IF NEW REVENUE ACT IS NECESSARY

McAdoo, at Loggerheads with Congress Leaders, Will Ask President to Decide.

FUTILE CONFERENCE HELD

Secretary of Treasury Alone in Urging Additional Taxation at This Session.

ELECTION IN THE ISSUE

Hold That Republican Gains Might Mean More Loans in War Financing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson, it became known today, will decide whether Congress shall frame a revenue bill before election. The judgment of the President as to the advisability of revenue legislation at this session will be invoked by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, who is in disagreement with the revenue framing leaders in Congress as to the necessity for immediate action on another tax-levying measure.

Secretary McAdoo had his postponed conference today with Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee; Senator Martin, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee; Representative Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Sherley of the Committee on Appropriations of the House. In the conference was a representative of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

It developed that Secretary McAdoo, despite the opposition of the other authorities on revenue matters in the conference, adhered to his original position that the passage of a revenue bill this session was imperative. He presented detailed figures on the nation's finances and an estimate as to the appropriations that Congress must provide for the next fiscal year. The heads of the revenue framing committees of Congress and the committees which decide upon the amounts of appropriations were as emphatic as Mr. McAdoo in holding to their position that there was no necessity to write a revenue bill before the next session. While the conference was entirely amicable, both sides were uncompromising in their conclusions.

Secretary McAdoo admitted that the returns from the present revenue bill would exceed $4,000,000,000. His estimates, which included emergencies that he declared might arise before Congress reconvened, were greatly in excess of the figures presented by the Chairman of the two Appropriations Committees. The representative of the Internal Revenue Commissioner supported in a measure the contention of the members of Congress, so that Secretary McAdoo stood alone in urging revenue legislation this session.

Will Consult the President.

As a result of the unwavering attitude of both sides it was decided to meet again later in the week. In the meantime, it was said, Secretary McAdoo would lay the matter before President Wilson, whose judgment will be accepted by both Congress and the Secretary of the Treasury. Postmaster General Burleson is on the side of the Congressmen, opposing revenue legislation. He will urge President Wilson to accept the advice of the Chairmen of the committees delegated to obtain revenue and authorize its expenditure.

The belief is becoming strong in Congress that President Wilson himself is the real power advising a Revenue bill this session. The fact that Secretary McAdoo continues to oppose the members of his party responsible for the finances of the Government is accepted to mean that he is acting in behalf of the President. The talk was strong last week that President Wilson had conceived the idea of having another revenue bill before the November election. In fact, a Senator recognized as the Administration's mouthpiece was credited with making such a statement.

Those opposing revenue legislation at this time advance the following arguments:

It is unnecessary to obtain more money before early next year, as about $30,000,000,000 will be available from all sources for the use of the Government until March next.

The productive capacity of the country will not permit of a greater expenditure than this between July next and March, 1919.

By March, 1919, a revenue bill can be written raising money for the calendar year, and such money can be employed to meet the expenditures of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919.

If a revenue bill is written at this time, a few months before an election, partisan considerations will prevail, and a good bill cannot be evolved while

DUTY ONLY ON GOODS SOLD

An organization, in which Alfred I. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., is one of the stockholders, has purchased the leasehold of the Grand Central Palace, it was announced last night, for the purpose of using the building as a great market place for the exhibition of goods of all sorts from London and Paris and elsewhere, where they may be viewed and purchased by domestic buyers. The new organization has taken over the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Exchange of New York, which holds the present lease of the building, because the Exchange, under an act of Congress in 1912, possesses rights which practically make buildings which it controls free ports in themselves.

Under this law imported merchandise of all kinds may be received in this country without payment of duty and placed on exhibition in the Grand Central Palace or in other buildings which the company may control. No duty is to be paid on such goods until they are sold. Unsold goods may be shipped back to their point of origin without payment of duty.

Agents of Mr. du Pont and his associates, it was announced last night, had been sent to Europe to make arrangements with European firms for the exhibition of their goods in the palace, and it was declared that French clothes and millinery, European textiles, and goods of all kinds which are usually purchased in Europe by American buyers sent abroad, would be opened for inspection in the building as soon as its interior had been remodeled. Plans for the interior changes are now being made.

The free port privileges conferred on the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange were given by Congress in 1912, when it was intended to hold an international mercantile and scientific exposition in this city at the same time that the Panama-Pacific Exposition was held in San Francisco.

It was announced last night that the upper two floors of the thirteen-story palace will be set aside as a large club, for the use largely of foreign buyers coming to this city and foreign consuls and commercial attaches in this city. A statement was given out yesterday with the announcement of the purchase which said:

Mr. du Pont's commercial interests comprise the French-American Constructive Corporation, the Allied Industries Corporation, the All-Americas Association, All-Americas Publishing Company, Merchants and Manufacturers' Exchange, and New York Furniture Exchange. All of these interests were organized for the purpose of stimulating trade between the United States and the allied Governments of Europe, Latin America, and the Far East.

It is understood that the Grand Central Palace will be the home of these great national and international commercial interests, as well as others. Some of the prominent men identified in this venture with Mr. duPont are: William duPont of Delaware and Virginia; Charles C. Dickson, Wilmington; William P. Bonbright, New York; ex-Governor Myron T. Herrick, Ohio; Viscount Furness of Furness, Withy & Co. of London; General Sir John Carson, Montreal; Colonel William Cantley, Nova Scotia; Judge S. G. Archibald, and M. Etienne Groschlaude, Paris.

In speaking of his newly acquired interest Mr. du Pont said: "The great war has brought about commercial conditions that are without precedent in the history of mankind, and has raised problems of the most far-reaching character. I have been endeavoring for some time to perfect an organization by means of which I could carry out my views and aid the Government in my own country, the allied Governments in Europe, and the countries of Latin America.

No doubt there will be tonnage space, in the ships returning from the transportation of our troops to Europe, for a large amount of foreign merchandise; so that immediate stock for exhibition purposes can be obtained."

Charles C. Dickson of Wilmington, Del., one of Mr. du Pont's associates, who announced the purchase last night, said that the French-American Constructive Corporation, in which Mr. du Pont was interested, had engineers and agents abroad making plans now for large construction work in France.

There was a report last night that the same interests were negotiating for the purchase of The New York Herald with the object of using it largely as a medium in promoting trade. When asked about this Mr. Dickson said:

"No, Sir. We are not going into the newspaper business."

The new organization will open offices at once in London and Paris. It is planned, however, to extend its business to all the nations of the Allies and to all South American countries.

General T. Coleman du Pont, one of the largest hotel owners in this city, is not interested in the venture, nor are any of the du Ponts belonging to that branch of the family now in control of the du Pont powder interests.

AIRMEN KILL 37 IN LONDON RAID; LOSE 5 MACHINES

German Bombs Injure 155 Persons in the City and Six in the Provinces.

FOE IS HOTLY PURSUED

Two Additional Enemy Airplanes Are Reported to Have Fallen at Sea.

THRONGS HEAR GOTHAS' HUM

LONDON, May 20.—Thirty-seven persons were killed and 155 injured in the London area during last night's air raid. Six persons were injured in the provinces.

The casualties were divided as follows:

Considerable damage to property has been reported.

Besides the four German machines already announced as having been destroyed in the raid, a fifth was brought down and fell flaming into the sea. Two others are also reported to have fallen at sea, but definite confirmation of this is lacking, according to a supplementary statement issued by the War Office tonight.

More deaths and injuries to innocent inhabitants of London were caused in the raid than any other this year except that of Jan. 28, when 58 were killed and 173 injured. It was the sixth raid of the year, the last one having been made on March 7.

The provinces got off lightly, as usual, virtually all the bombs dropped outside of London having fallen in open places. In fact, it appeared as if the majority of the raiders, on being foiled in their attempt to reach London, got rid of their bombs in spots where it was impossible to do serious damage.

Hum of Raiders Heard.

This latest aerial attack on London and its environs probably was the most ambitious ever undertaken. Never before was there such a continued volley of firing from the British anti-aircraft batteries.

The raiding Gothas flew at a great height, the majority of them keeping well up to 12,000 feet in a very clear sky. Although they were at this height, the sound of their motors could be plainly heard from the streets. At one point where a correspondent of The Associated Press viewed the spectacle the sound of the engines was audible.

The British gunners blazed away in a concentrated fire. It was this unusually heavy barrage which evidently prevented most of the Gothas from reaching their objectives, although several of them flew over London.

The moon was shining brightly when the raiders crossed the southeastern coast and headed for the metropolis.

The usual warnings were given promptly and the people had time to reach shelters before the guns in the neighborhood of London were heard. The firing was almost continuous for more than two hours.

The number of enemy aircraft is not known, but they seem to have been more numerous than usual.

Holiday Crowds See Attack.

Thousands of persons had their first experience in an air raid. They were from many parts of England, Scotland, and Wales, and took advantage of the Whitsuntide holidays, which run from Saturday until Tuesday, to visit the metropolis. On the other hand, thousands of Londoners had gone to the country-side and seashore resorts for brief vacations. They cut short these visits and hurried back to London to learn the fate of their homes and relatives.

The holidays probably were responsible for the safety of scores of girls housed in dormitories recently constructed by a large department store. Many of them were apprentices brought from nearby towns, who went home for the holidays. A bomb destroyed the two upper floors of the building, which is half a block long. The main room on the floor below was damaged, but the few girls remaining in the dormitories, who took refuge in the basement when the first alarm was given, were uninjured, except for one, who was wounded slightly.

Hospital Spared as Patients Pray.

A number of bombs fell in open places in London, some of them near a hospital, which was seemingly protected by Providence, as the helpless inmates prayed. Near this hospital the bombs

PEKING, May 20.—The Chinese-Japanese negotiations have been concluded and the delegates last night attached their signatures to the agreement, consisting of twelve articles, relating mostly to military affairs in connection with the proposed Chinese-Japanese expedition into Siberia. It is stated that the agreement does not involve the loss of sovereign rights by China.

The situation in Hunan is more favorable to the Government. Sun Yat-sen has resigned from his official post in the Southern Confederation.

The revival of the queue has been growing in Peking since the Manchu coup about a year ago. The police have been ordered to remove such queues.

RED CROSS TOTAL HERE $4,500,000

First Day of Drive Gives Good Promise of Oversubscribing Quota of $25,000,000.

G. F. BAKER GIVES MILLION

U. S. Steel Donates $500,000, J. P. Morgan & Co. $325,000, and H. C. Frick $250,000.

The Second Red Cross War Fund Drive totaled on its first day yesterday about $4,500,000. At the noon luncheon of the thirty-one teams, contributions amounting to $3,764,119.37 were reported. The sum collected by these teams and by thousands of other Red Cross workers since noon had not been ascertained last night, but was estimated at nearly another million. Collections at this rate would make New York's total for the campaign $31,500,000, or $6,500,000 above its quota.

The largest individual subscription yesterday was $1,000,000 from George F. Baker. The United States Steel Corporation announced its gift of $2,000,000 to the Red Cross, but only $500,000 was credited to New York, three other similar amounts being donated in other sections.

Only three subscriptions were reported by the Committee on Corporations, but they totaled $1,000,000, giving promise that a large sum would be raised in direct gifts from corporations. This was taken as one of the best signs that New York City would be well over its minimum quota of $25,000,000 on next Monday night.

W. C. Breed Presides at Luncheon.

William C. Breed, Chairman of the Red Cross War Fund Drive for New York, who presided at the luncheon of the teams at the Chamber of Commerce, opened the meeting by saying:

"It certainly gives one a thrill to think that for a week New York's patriotic citizens, forgetting and abandoning business demands, are going out on the streets in the service of the Red Cross. The campaign in New York has opened under the brightest possible conditions.

"The President of the United States, in his inspired speech, on Saturday night, told you that the Red Cross was necessary to the winning of the war, and summoned all of us to sustain the great heart of the world. The President of the United States has applied the match to the pile that we have been building and I predict that the flames will spread throughout the community, and that the response of New York will be the response of every individual citizen, carrying our allotment beyond the $25,000,000 we have set for ourselves."

When Mr. Breed called for the reports by teams, Colonel William B. Thompson, Chairman of the Committee on Corporation asserted that no subscriptions under $250,000 would be announced yesterday. It was announced that J. P. Morgan & Co., had subscribed $500,000 for the Red Cross of which $325,000 was given in this city and $175,000 in Philadelphia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Monday Night, May 20.—I went down Australian-way this morning and found the officers and men looking very pleased with themselves under the hot sun, as they have good reason to be, after their splendid capture of Ville-sur-Ancre. They finished mopping up that village south of Albert early today, and the total number of prisoners they have taken now amounts to 400, with something like 30 machine guns.

All day yesterday the number of prisoners steadily mounted up in reports sent through, as new parties were discovered in dugouts and gathered up.

The method of the attack reminds me a little of the way in which the Australians recaptured Villers-Bretoneaux. Like that, it was a cut-out process from both sides and took place in the dark except for a bright moon shining.

It was not an easy affair, as the ground thereabouts gave natural defenses to the village of Ville-sur-Ancre. On the north of it there is flooded ground owing to the damming of a stream, so that the water is waist deep, and this flows into a number of parallel dikes used formerly for irrigation purposes by the French farmers and which the enemy might use in case of need as trenches, up which they could enfilade the British with machine-gun fire.

South of the village the ground rises into a spur in front of the hamlet of Morlancourt, and it was essential to the success of the Australian enterprise that this spur should be taken and taken quickly. Also behind Morlancourt itself there is a steep rise to a hill on which the Germans had posted many machine guns with which they could command the field of fire around Ville-sur-Ancre.

It was a daring thing, therefore, to attempt the capture of that little place, but the plans were worked out very carefully and the men were keen. The officers were as keen as the men, and among them was the Colonel who planted the Australian flag on Broodseinde Ridge in September of last year, who was eager that his command should share in this new assault.

For some reason unknown the Germans strengthened their garrison that night by sending up reinforcements, so that Ville-sur-Ancre had its dugouts and ditches full of men of the 54th Reserve Division and the 183d.

Many of these were young fellows and some of them weedy lads with big spectacles, not typical of the German soldier at his best. It seems that they were hungry, too, having got separated from their rations for a time, but they put up a hard fight in the first hours of the attack.

The Australians did not have a walkover as a few days previously when the same officer who planted the flag on the hill in Flanders went out to a machine gun post with sixteen volunteers and came back with twenty-two prisoners and not a single casualty. This time it was a small battle—a hundred years ago it would have been described as a big battle, but the standard changes—extending for over 3,500 yards of front, behind which the Germans had formidable defenses and machine guns sprinkled thickly.

How the Battle Was Planned.

While one body of Australians worked north of the village across swampy ground, another body, who had perhaps the hardest task, went straight for the spur opposite Morlancourt with orders to work upon the left and join hands with their com-

French Advance on a Two-Mile Front, Capture 400; German Guns Pound Hangard and Bethune Areas

LONDON, May 20.—Driving in the direction of Mont Kemmel, French troops last night carried out successful operations east and northeast of Locre on a front of more than two miles. The bulletin from Field Marshal Haig tonight reads:

BRITISH BULLETINS.

During the night French troops carried out successful operations east and northeast of Locre. All their objectives were gained on a front of some 4,000 yards, and over 400 prisoners were captured.

Local fighting occurred early this morning north of Albert, as a result of which a few of our men are missing.

A party of our troops rushed a German post east of Hebuterne and captured a few prisoners and two machine guns.

The hostile artillery has shown considerable activity today with gas shells in the section north of Bethune.

The day report of the British War Office says:

We captured a few prisoners yesterday as a result of a successful raid carried out in the Albert sector.

A raid attempted by the enemy north of Hinges was repulsed, with heavy loss to the hostile raiding party.

GERMAN BULLETINS.

Strong French attacks against Mont Kemmel broke down with heavy losses.

The day report from General Headquarters says:

In the evening and toward midnight the firing in the Kemmel region increased considerably in intensity. Violent artillery duels developed early this morning.

On the other battlefronts also fighting activity revived frequently.

On the southern bank of the Ancre the British attacked in the early morning with strong forces. They made their way into Ville-sur-Ancre. The enemy's attempts to advance further along the Ancre Valley were unsuccessful. Several assaults launched against Morlancourt broke down before the village, with sanguinary losses.

At many points along the front British and French reconnoitring thrusts were repulsed.

We captured prisoners in forefield engagements and successful raids north of St. Mihiel.

FRENCH BULLETIN.

Active artillery fighting near Hangard was reported in today's official statement of the French War Office, which reads:

There were violent artillery actions in the region of Hangard and south of the Avre. French patrols operating west of Castel captured prisoners.

Northwest of Rheims, near Bermericourt, French detachments penetrated as far as the third German trenches, carrying out destructive operations on the enemy's defensive works. They captured prisoners, one of whom was an officer, and valuable war material.

The night was calm on the rest of the front.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, May 20.—Americans are out here on the roads of France—thousands of them. We feel still safer now because they are here and the power and spirit of the great nation of the western world are visible before our eyes. The British, who have seen nearly four years of this frightful strife, the men who have fought all that time against unequal odds, against a strength which never seemed to weaken however great their victories or their sacrifice, against an enemy who in this last phase threw all his weight against the British, to annihilate them if he could, now realize that there is behind them a vast fresh fighting force which must destroy forever German hopes of world mastery.

With or without another long spell of strife, perhaps not without many more great battles, in which American soldiers will fight alongside the British and French, these new comrades are here to help to settle this dreadful business in favor of those who believe in the liberties of Europe and in human society governed by other powers than brutality and fear.

For a long time after the entry of the United States into the war most of us out here knew only dimly and from afar what help was being prepared, and as the months passed and the British fought and fought, and the sight of an American battalion, just one battalion, would have been a sight for sore eyes, it seemed that perhaps the war would finish before their first divisions could be seen on the battlefields of France.

First Americans Appeared.

Then at last we heard that some of them were with the French, actually in line and doing well, and then we saw with our own eyes some men in

ALL OBJECTIVES WON BY FRENCH

MAKES MONT ROUGE SAFER

Barrier to the Uninvaded Portions of Flanders Is Strengthened at Vital Moment.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 20, (Associated Press.)—The French troops, who are fighting alongside the British, carried another of their whirlwind attacks to a successful conclusion today in the Flanders battlefield and have thereby advanced their line along a 4,000-yard front in the Locre sector. Several hundred German prisoners have been brought in and have been sent on the happy road to the French rear.

No attempt was made to push forward to a great depth, and all objectives wre gained. As a consequence there has been a decided improvement in the allied positions.

Just to the northeast of Locre is a pile of brickdust which represents all that is left of the pretty hamlet of Bruloose, over which the contending troops fought such sanguinary engagements in recent days.

Slightly to the west of the point of attack is Locre Hospice, which has changed hands many times, until finally the French got a firm enough hold on it to be able to claim it as their own.

Locre Hospice, Bruloose and the ground just captured all go to form the gateway which thus far has blocked the enemy's approach to Mont Rouge and other important eminences that in turn are the guarding sentincls for wide reaches of the uninvaded portions of Flanders.

Details of the latest French success are lacking at the moment, but, while it was a comparatively small operation, it was important. This importance is accentuated by the fact that the victory comes at a time when the enemy undoubtedly is ready and waiting for the signal to renew his huge offensive against the Allies.

TAKE AUSTRIAN TRENCHES.

Italian Raiders at Capo Sile Retain Their Gains.

ROME, May 20.—The official communication from General Headquarters today says:

Enemy patrols have been driven back between the Adige and Astico. At Capo Sile [in the coastal region] a storming party made a successful raid, capturing a portion of the enemy's trenches and establishing itself there.

A strong enemy counterattack was repulsed this morning. Thirty-one prisoners, about 100 rifles, four machine guns, and other war material remained in our hands.

Our airmen dropped eighty tons of bombs in the Val Sugana. Eight enemy airplanes were brought down.

New German Giant of the Air Proves Impervious to Fire of Machine Guns.

BEARS PILOT AND 2 GUNNERS

Lufbery's Companions, in Revenge for Him, Bring Down Another German Plane.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 19.—Major Raoul Lufbery, the foremost American air fighter, was killed today in a sensational combat with a German armored biplane back of the American sector north of Toul.

Lufbery lost his life after six of our airmen had tried in vain to down the boche flying tank. The American ace leaped from his machine in mid-air after a German bullet had set his petrol tank on fire.

American aviators recently had made a record against the boche airmen. This morning the score stood 10 to 2. American airmen flying French Nieuports evenly matched the German combat machines, and it now appears that the Germans were determined to make a special effort to even up the score.

Early this morning a giant plane appeared over the American airdromes moving slowly. Immediately the "alert" signal was given and two Americans started up, and two others followed. When they got to a height of about 2,500 meters they found themselves face to face with a giant German plane with a wing-spread of sixty feet, carrying a pilot and two gunners, and driven by two engines.

Pilot Sat in Steel House.

It was a biplane. The engines were armored, and the pilot sat in a steel house. The gunners wore armor and occupied protected positions, each manning a heavy machine gun.

The American fighters sent streams of bullets in vain against the new enemy. One American got in close, and sent 300 bullets sweeping against the flying tank, without results.

By this time other Americans were in the air, trying to bring down the German who loafed along not seeming to mind bullets at all. The scene, in full view for many miles, looked like a lot of swallows pecking at a giant bird of prey.

When one of the Americans landed, out of ammunition, and reported his inability to do damage to the German machine, Lufbery asked and received permission to try. He mounted up above the German, got his machine gun going well, and swept head first at the monster plane. When part of the way had been traversed he swerved off, supposedly because his machine gun jammed. But in a few minutes he was back at the boche machine again, dashed by with his machine gun going, but produced no effect on the boche plane.

Leaps Out in Midair.

He was seen to turn and start up at the enemy again, when suddenly he swerved and a thin line of flame shot from his machine, which seemed to hang still for a moment and then dart down.

This took place at an altitude of 2,000 meters. When his machine was at an altitude of about 1,500 meters the American ace was seen to arise and leap into midair. From long experience he knew what awaited him, and that to stay in his seat meant to be burned to death horribly.

His body fell like a plummet, landing in the midst of a flower garden back of a residence in the village of Maron. His machine fell in flames half a kilometer away and was burned to ashes.

His fellows rushed from the American Aviation Field to the spot where their comrade had fallen. When they reached there some French people had straightened out the body in their garden and almost covered it with the flowers in the midst of which he fell.

There was no wound on Lufbery's body except a bullet hole through his right hand, which showed that the incendiary bullet which had set his petrol tank on fire had passed through the hand which held the control lever a few inches from the tank.

After Lufbery fell his comrades continued to try to bring down the big boche, but the German machine turned slowly and started home.

Streams of Bullets Futile.

By this time French aviators had heard of the newcomer and awaited him near Nancy. They had the same experience as the Americans. They sent hundreds of bullets against the steel air monster, without success.

When the boche turned and as soon as news of Lufbery's death spread Americans went up looking for vengeance on planes for which their machines were a match.

Lieutenant Douglas Campbell of California was successful. Spotting a German observation plane, he drove for it with his machine gun going full blast. The German machine came down three kilometers back of the American lines. The pilot had two bullets through his brain, and the observer had six in various parts of his body. Both German officers were dead.

This afternoon commanders of the American fliers were besieged with requests from volunteers who want to go after the big boche machine if it comes over tomorrow. It is thought one or two Nieuports would be helpless against it, but our fliers believe if they can get enough little machines against it they can get home a chance shot that will be effective.

This is the first time this machine has been used on the American front. But it had been used on the Somme, and a captured specimen shows it to be almost invulnerable to machine gun bullets such as our aviators use. The pilot sits in a casing of three-eighths inch steel, and the vital parts of the machine are similarly protected. The pilot attends only to running the machine leaving the two gunners free.

Attacks from Rear Useless.

The ordinary means of coming down from behind, which is effective against monoplane boche machines, is an almost certainly fatal method as against this boche fighter. It seems that only an exceptionally lucky shot of a machine gun or heavy gun can get it.

Major Lufbery was a native of Wallingford, Conn. He was 34 years old. He had been officially credited with bringing down sixteen boche machines, and his friends claimed many more for him. He wore the Legion of Honor, the Croix de Guerre, Ten Palms, and the Medal Militaire, in addition to four English medals, and the Montenegrin War Medal.

At the beginning of the war he enlisted as a second-class private in the French Army. He got to be a mechanic for airmen, and rose to the position of First Lieutenant, which he held while in the Lafayette Escadrille. He was the most successful of all American fliers, and with William Thaw was the best known. His death is a heavy loss to the American air service, and his comrades are sworn to avenge him.

MILITARY FUNERAL IN PARIS.

Lufbery Had Returned to Duty Before His Leave Expired.

PARIS, May 20.—Major Raoul Lufbery, the first American ace to be killed as the result of an aerial fight, was buried today with full military honors by French and American detachments.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 19, (Associated Press.)—Major Lufbery was known throughout the American Army and in the French air service as "Luff," and was one of the most popular fliers on the front. He was a daring aviator, but noted for his coolness as well as his dash.

Lufbery had just returned from visiting his godmother at Brest. His sister lives there also. He came back from Brest before his leave had expired because he thought his help was needed, and had made three flights since his return, in his Nieuport pursuit machine, before his fatal flight. He had been engaged in writing a record of his life since he became an aviator for some little time previous to his death.

The famous ace never missed an opportunity to knock down an enemy machine, frequently taking desperate chances to add to his victories. It was only yesterday that he remarked jokingly:

"You fellows can't get all the easy pickings. I heard how you were knocking them down and decided to hurry back and get some myself. Let 'em all come, the more the merrier."

The air service has lost more than a crack aviator in Lufbery. It has lost a first-class instructor of young airmen just coming to the front who looked to him for pointers on the little tricks of the trade which in the pinch may mean life or death to a flier.

LUFBERY'S LIFE ADVENTUROUS.

Major Had Served in Philippines, Egypt, and Tripoli.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20.—Major Raoul Lufbery of Wallingford, Conn., was 34 years old. His father, Edward, is an American, his mother a native of France. The son had been a veritable soldier of fortune, serving eighteen months with the American Army in the Philippines, later with the French Army in Egypt and Tripoli, and in the French Aviation Corps in 1916. As an airman of the Lafayette Escadrille he brought down six aviators that year and won the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the British Military Medal, and the War Medal of the Aero Club of America. He was commissioned a Major in the United States Army Aviation Branch when the American air service was organized.

Before joining the French Army Lufbery was a factory machinist in Wallingford. In 1909 he started out to see the world, and within two years visited twenty-six different countries. He journeyed from one city to another, saving enough money to go to the next place which interested him.

Major Lufbery leaves, besides his parents, a brother and sister in Wallingford, a sister in Pennsylvania, and three sisters in Boston. On learning of his death Warden John Martin of the Borough of Wallingford ordered the local flags at half-staff for three days and issued on behalf of the borough a journal notice expressing gratitude to the family for the noble services which their son had been privileged to render on behalf of America, the Allies, and the cause of freedom.

Edward Lufbery said this evening that he had been surprised to learn that his son was flying again. Major Lufbery's last letter, received several weeks ago, indicated that he had been called to render General Pershing special service and was not likely to resume active flying immediately. The Lufbery family are prostrated at the news of the death.

Washington Sees Need of New Plane To Combat the German "Flying Tank"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The type of airplane which overcame Major Raoul Lufberry is known to our aviation experts. They know it as a low-powered machine which they predict will be matched by a weapon heavier than a machine gun and capable of piercing the thin armor carried by the new German plane.

"We have had the matter of an armored plane under consideration for a long time," said an officer of the aircraft service tonight. "We have made no progress, for the reason that to carry armor the balance between the power of the motor and the supporting power of the plane surface must be rearranged, and our standardized motor, which has been perfected after so many months of waiting, would not carry the additional weight of armor.

"It is barely possible that we may develop a motor that will do what the new German airplane is doing. We have been at work on it, and there has been satisfactory progress, but it is a problem that takes much time to work out.

"The German plane is like the gradual development of the battleship. It was a long time before the present high type of battleship was evolved from the types of ships we built twenty or thirty years ago. It can be done, and we are likely to do it, but the Allies are more likely to attain success sooner than we, as they are on the ground, have had longer experience, and are studying the problem first hand.

"We have not been taken by surprise, nor have the Allies, in this new armor-bearing plane. The matter has been up for a long time, as it had been anticipated. The development in the device of the offensive power in the war, and the defensive must now devise a means of combating the new weapon. It can be done, and will be done.

"Our present type of motor could be remodeled, and with the motor parts protected by armor and the screws also protected, a new type of plane would out-fight the German plane.

"It is, however, a very delicate matter to work out a new model. The new German plane is a slow moving machine and very clumsy. The battle planes used on the fighting line can fly all around it and the element of armor protection is about the only distinguishing merit to be claimed for it.

"The weight of the new plane must be very great. That of our new model is between 3,600 and 4,000 pounds, and 400 horse power in the motor. Without changing the weight of our plane and keeping its high power, it is possible to use a light armor and a small calibred high-powered gun that would pierce the three-eighths of an inch armor carried by the German plane. That is more than likely to be the solution of the new problem presented by the use of the armored German plane."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The inclosed copy of a letter (original of which has just just come to me from France) I am sending to you, thinking you may consider it of sufficient interest to publish in THE TIMES.

The writer is one of the "old time" aviators of this country, although young in years, John Guy Gilpatric, now First Lieutenant with the American Expeditionary Force at the front. You will recall him, of course, as having taken part in flights around New York, like THE TIMES Aerial Derby, &c.

M. S. GILPATRIC.

New York, May 18, 1918.

Front, April 23, 1918.

Today I was on the field, busy as a subway ticket agent during the rush hour, because I had six machines going out on a job. I heard some machine guns going off, but didn't pay much attention until I heard motors running, too. Looked up, but couldn't see a thing, the clouds being scattered around fairly well. But there wasn't any doubt about what was going on, and I yelled to the bunch that there was a scrap. Then, from behind a cloud, came two machines, the first of which dived into a cloud, the other right after him, and both had their guns going wide open. They disappeared into the cloud, but we could still hear them. Then the firing stopped, and out of the cloud dropped a machine, blazing. Straight down she came, pieces of it coming loose because of the speed. Pilot and observer fell or jumped, and landed some distance away. Meanwhile the other machine, a Spad, headed home.

All this didn't take over three minutes, and it was a mighty harrowing sight. The boches weren't badly smashed and weren't burned. They were both officers, one of them being a Wilhelm Hickmann. The pilot had eight bullets in his groin; and the observer one in his hip. Both were fine young fellows, beautifully dressed and groomed. Our bunch got all the buttons off their clothes for souvenirs—have one myself, but I didn't cut it off.

Well, the two boches were pulverized inside, of course, so the Major got most of their personal stuff for the Intelligence Section, and then we carried on back to camp. The French took charge of the bodies. They were lying about fifty yards apart and fifty yards from the machine, so you see how high they were when they jumped or fell out.

We just had word that Major Lufbery did the job, and it was really marvelous shooting. It takes a real genius to group shots the way those were grouped, and, besides killing the pilot and wounding the observer, he had pierced the tank

But we have twelve feet of one of their cartridge bands, and every third cartridge carries an explosive bullet. We use tracers, but never explosives. An explosive bullet is rotten, and tears a frightful hole in a man—anybody who would use them ought to be mutilated, too. We are all having napkin rings made of the reel around which the cartridge band winds.

The German airmen have started to fly in flocks at a great height. Early this morning, for instance, five of them came over together at 6,000 meters, 2,000 above the ordinary fire of the "Archies." The alarm was given promptly, but the Germans were keeping a sharp lookout, and as soon as they saw five American pursuit planes climbing to meet them they turned around and started home rapidly.

One Hun, late yesterday, was suddenly disclosed high in the sky when the clouds parted. Two of the American fliers went up after him, while the others stood on the ground and swore roundly at the bad luck that he was not lower. The German airman made his escape.

The weather has been ideal for flying, and there is hardly a minute when the reassuring hum of one of the American planes is not heard by the men in the lines.

Two hostile airplanes have been brought down by American aviators, says an official announcement issued at American Headquarters this evening. The statement, timed at 9 P. M., follows:

"Aside from activity of the air forces on both sides, the day was quiet at all points occupied by our troops. Our aviators brought down two hostile machines."

A French aviator this afternoon shot down an enemy plane back of the Luneville sector. Two men from the plane were captured by the Americans. The Germans came from somewhere in the rear. It is reported, although not confirmed, that this is the machine which brought down Major Lufbery.

There has been extraordinary aerial activity all day in this sector.

READY TO SOLVE PROBLEM.

Allies Have Heard of Foes' Work on Steel Plane.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 20.—Curtiss men here say that the armored airplane made its appearance more than a year ago and has been tried with varying degrees of success by the Germans and the Allies. Some of the great bombing planes, such as the Handley-Page, Martinsyde, Breuget, and some of the German Gothas of the triple-motored type were armored. At various times battle planes have been armored, but those Germany had were no match for the speed and dash of the French spads.

There has been some talk that Germany was perfecting or attempting to perfect an earlier Aviatik model intended to be largely all-steel with some aluminium covering. If this is the new machine, the Allies are prepared to solve any new problems it may present, engineers here say.

Wings are generally vulnerable because of their construction. The parts beneath the fusilage are usually vulnerable. Airmen are equipped nowadays with several sorts of bullets—the incendiary to fire the inflammable wings and fuel tanks, others to penetrate thin armor, others of an explosive variety. The explosive sort are a device of the Germans.

PETERSON DIVED ONTO FOE.

Downed Enemy Airplane Far Within the German Lines.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 18, (Associated Press.)—The German biplane brought down yesterday by Captain David Peterson of Honesdale, Penn., his third since May 15, was conquered after a fight five kilometers within the German lines.

Peterson and another pilot came upon two enemy machines, one 2,000 meters high and the other 3,000. The Americans each picked out an enemy airplane and attacked it.

Captain Peterson, diving on to the tail of the one 2,000 meters high, fired thirty shots at close range. The enemy went into a spinning nose dive and crashed to earth. The other enemy machine escaped.

FRENCH HONOR FOR GENET.

Army Citation of the American Aviator Killed in April, 1917.

PARIS, May 19.—Among the citations printed today is that of the late Edmond C. O. Genet, a Corporal in the Lafayette Escadrille, who was killed near Ham in April, 1917. The citation says:

"He was an American citizen and enlisted for the duration of the war, and was a courageous and devoted pilot. He died gloriously on April 16, 1917. In expressing his last wishes he concluded: 'Vive la France toujours!'"

Edmond C. O. Genet was a descendant of the noted "Citizen" Genet, once French Minister to the United States, and of George Clinton, Governor of New York. His home was in Ossining, N. Y.

fell in a semi-circle, landing in the streets and shattering windows nearby. Passers-by saw the nurses in the hospital comforting patients, while others were leading in prayer and singing. The windows had been blown out and the people nearby could plainly hear the chorus singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow."

Another bomb tore a hole five feet deep and fifteen feet in diameter in the concrete pavement, shattering windows and wrenching doors from their hinges three blocks away. This bomb fell near buildings recently constructed to house a new war agency, but as the buildings were darkened it is not believed possible that the Germans were using them as a target.

Still another bomb fell in a park near by, stripping the shrubbery and shaking houses for blocks around, shattering panes of glass.

BERLIN, May 20, (via London.)—An official statement issued today says:

"London and Dover and other places on the English coast were successfully attacked last night with bombs."

ONE RAIDING MACHINE FELLED IN LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—For the first time since air raids on London began an enemy aircraft has been brought down within the London area. All that is left of one of last night's raiding Gothas is a little compact heap of wreckage. It was an English airman who shot him down after a thrilling fight, which was watched by tens of thousands.

The raider, it seems, had been hovering over the district some little time, apparently seeking vainly a way of escape from the hail of shells which the anti-aircraft guns pumped up into the air. Suddenly the barrage was shut off. In the comparative quietude which ensued, broken only by the far-off sounds of more distant fights, the whirr of more than one machine could be heard.

There was a brisk interchange of machine gun fire high up in the sky, a point of flame which rapidly grew into a red glare, and five seconds later the Gotha streaked down to the ground. It fell in a cabbage field. On the high embankment which overlooks it, the grass was worn bare by the feet of many thousands of people who all day swarmed along to gaze at the pitiful remnants of that which a few hours before had helped to make the moonlit night a thing of horror.

The fight must have been watched by tens of thousands of people, and when the Gotha came down a roar of cheering went up for miles around. Within a few minutes the roads were thronged by people trying to find the spot where the Gotha fell, though all around the immediate district the guns of the barrage were still barking away.

As far as one can judge from the wreck, it must have been a large machine. It appears to have had no fewer than eight of the thick rubber-tired landing wheels and there were two motors, one apparently not much damaged.

It is a little surprising to find that the machine had fallen so compactly, seeing that it burned so fiercely in the air. One shattered portion of the framework lies some twenty yards away, but the rest is together in a heap not more than a dozen yards square. The place has been a goal of pilgrimage from all parts of London all day, an unending stream of men, women, and children, many in gay holiday attire, visiting it.

PAINLEVE APPEALS FOR AVIATION SPURT

Former French Premier Calls On Allies to Pool Inventive Skill and Industry.

WANTS QUANTITY OUTPUT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 20.—Paul Painlevé, former French Premier, has been elected President of the aviation group in the Chamber of Deputies, which comprises something like a third of the total membership of the House. This is a good omen for strong parliamentary support for a bold and extensive program of airplane construction, for which the country is now loudly calling.

M. Painlevé is no newcomer in aviation. He was one of Wilbur Wright's first passengers in 1908, and it was with him as a passenger that Wright set the record which he held so long for distance and duration flight with a passenger.

In the same year, while still a Deputy and Professor of Mathematics at the Sorbonne, M. Painlevé gave two lectures before the members of the Chamber and the Senate in which he called loudly for the immediate organization of aviation as applied to military purposes. In 1912, as reporter of the Navy Budget, he brought in the first demand for an appropriation for naval aviation and called for the development of the hydroaeroplane as an arm against the submarine.

He was one of the founders of the Government Superior School of Aeronautics, where he was a professor until he entered the Ministry in 1914. This school has been the birthplace of many of the leading French air specialists of the present time.

Calls for Airplane Legions.

In an article in the Petit Parisien today M. Painlevé calls for a new and drastic development in the campaign for the greater utilization of the airplane in the present war. He says that it is all very well to talk about aviation deciding the supreme phase of the war, but to arrive at that end the present day conceptions and plans must be enormously developed.

"We may not be able to crush Germany by mere artillery power," writes M. Painlevé, "although our artillery has nothing to blush for in a comparison with the enemy's, but we have developed aviation to that stage where we can at least count on blinding the enemy's guns. The superiority of our aviation is undoubted, as the last few weeks have shown, but we must have legions of airplanes to multiply the victories we have already achieved.

"Why then do we not have these legions? The reason is not that we lack an abundance of clever and heroic airmen or suitable material for construction or that there are insoluble technical difficulties, for all these have been victoriously overcome. The real problem now is to decide whether to go on aiming at an incessant improvement of our existing machines or whether to select three or four well-known types and produce them in enormous numbers.

Wants Allies to Pool Ideas.

"Anybody who has considered the question will instantly reply: 'Let us, without losing an hour, turn out airplanes in masses. That is the only method that will enable use to develop that power of manufacture in series which is the secret to which American industry owes the prodigious intensity of its manufacturing effort.'"

To realize such a program, M. Painlevé calls for a complete pooling of ideas, experience, secrets, energy, and enthusiasm by the whole body of constructors of airplanes in all allied countries.

"They must place each other," he says, "in possession of the results of all their experiments, all their secrets. They must create in the most perfect form which our united knowledge allows the aerial army of civilization. The Allies have placed in common their men, their wheat, their gold. They must also place in common their knowledge, their inventive faculties.

"Industrial prosperity, trademarks, and patents are things to be respected, but these must not be allowed to delay construction for war purposes for an hour. All these things count for nothing before the sacred cause. As we have created national union, let us create industrial union for aviation."

BRITISH BRING DOWN 30 MORE AIRPLANES

This Is Their Record for Sunday —French Down 38 Machines in Two Days.

LONDON, May 20.—During the aerial fighting on Sunday twenty-seven German airplanes were destroyed, three were driven down out of control, and three German balloons were burned, according to the report on aerial operations issued by the War Office. Twelve British machines are missing. The statement reads:

Another full day's work in the air was accomplished on May 19. Our balloons and airplanes actively cooperated with the artillery, observing the fire of our batteries and locating hostile guns.

The enemy's railway stations, airdromes, dumps, and billets were attacked by our airplanes, which dropped over seventeen tons of bombs.

Severe fighting occurred well east of the battle line, where our bombing machines were attacked by large hostile formations. Three German balloons were burned, twenty-seven of their airplanes were destroyed, and three were driven down out of control. Twelve of ours are missing.

Bombing operations were carried out vigorously after dark by both sides. Our machines dropped fifteen tons of bombs on the Chaulnes, Douai, and Marcoing railway stations. The St. Denis-Westrem airdrome was also bombarded, as well as enemy establishments at Brayе and Bapaume. A large enemy bombing machine was brought down behind our lines by gunfire.

On May 20 we dropped a ton of bombs on the gas works, barracks, and station at Landau, northwest of Karlsruhe. The railway was hit several times and fires were started. All our machines returned.

PARIS, May 19.—An official report on the great aerial activity Friday and Saturday says that the French destroyed twelve airplanes and forced down twenty-three others in a damaged condition. Four captive balloons were destroyed. Three German planes were downed by artillery fire, one of them by Americans. The report reads:

On May 17 and 18 our pilots engaged in numerous combats. Twelve German airplanes and four captive balloons were destroyed. Twenty-three enemy machines, badly damaged, fell within the German lines. Three airplanes were brought down by cannon fire, one of them by an American battery.

On the same days and on the following night 44,000 kilograms of explosives were thrown down by our bombarding squadron on railway stations, barracks, and aviation grounds in the enemy zone. Several fires and explosions were observed, causing a large amount of damage.

ALLIED GAIN IN MACEDONIA.

French and Italians Conquer a Salient 12½ Miles Deep.

PARIS, May 19.—French and Italian troops have made an advance of 20 kilometers (12½ miles) on the western end of the Macedonian front, the War Office announced tonight. The statement follows:

There was little artillery fighting anywhere along the Macedonian front on Saturday except west of Lake Ochrida, where enemy batteries bombarded Pogradets and Mumulishta. Near Hemendos, in the Struma region, Greek patrols put enemy detachments to flight.

BLAMES GERMANY FOR TURK MASSACRES

Russian Government Protests to Berlin against Atrocities in Caucasus.

LONDON, May 20.—The Turks have resumed the offensive all along the Caucasian front and have occupied Van, says a dispatch from Tiflis, dated May 12. Another Armenian massacre has been begun.

The negotiations for a separate peace between the Caucasian Diet and the Ottoman Government have been broken off on account of the exorbitant demands of the Turks.

The Russian Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, it was made known today, sent the following wireless message on April 12 to the German Foreign Office:

In the Turkish advance on the Caucasus the peaceful population, including women and children, is being cut down ruthlessly by the thousands. The treaty we were forced to sign at Brest-Litovsk provided that the populations at Ardahan, Kars, and Batum should have full freedom and the right to control their destiny in their own way. The events in these regions show that the policy of extermination which has been followed for the last ten years is still being pursued.

Responsibility for atrocities among the Armenian people in the regions at present occupied by Turkey devolves upon the German Government, whose direct assistance makes it possible for Turkey to exercise its will in these regions.

HOW TO UNDERSTAND THE WAR BULLETINS

Gen. Maurice Explains the Relative Values of Allied and Enemy Communiques.

TIME AND OTHER FACTORS

Why News of Positions Taken and Prisoners Captured Comes First from the Victors.

By MAJOR GEN. SIR FREDERICK MAURICE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—In the fourth year of the war we remain essentially an unmilitary nation. The German people have been brought up on the principle that war is the continuation of its policy, and the national life of Germany has for generations been regulated by that principle. We regard and always have regarded war as the disruption of policy and of national life. This divergence of sentiment touches the very roots of the causes for which we are fighting.

Yet war is an evil which must be faced as thoroughly and scientifically as poverty, pestilence, crime, or any other social evil; and to face it successfully we must understand it.

In this respect we entered the war terribly handicapped. Of the great nations which came into the struggle at the beginning, we alone had not been forced to look on war as a national rather than a military business. The others had lived generations in the presence of and under the menace of armed force. Almost every family had contributed at least one soldier to the State.

Thus the atmosphere of Paris has throughout the war been very different from that of London. The French public knows instinctively how much it can safely be told and what conclusions to draw from the information it receives. Our public feels instinctively that it does not know enough, and it thinks, particularly when things are going wrong, it should be told more. Now the one solid basis of our information is the official communiqué. That must be so, since the means of communication are in military hands for military purposes.

A Difference in Bulletins.

This does not mean that I underestimate the brilliant dispatches of Philip Gibbs and other correspondents at the front who enable us to understand the conditions under which our men are fighting, what they are suffering, and what they are achieving. The one gives us the bare facts, the other the local color. Now there is a deal of human nature in the communiqués—a statement which may astonish the public, accustomed to the cold soldierly reticence of Sir Douglas Haig's reports. These reports tell us what is happening at the actual front.

In normal times, when all our telephones and telegraphs are in working order, it takes from four to five hours for news from the front line to pass through the various headquarters and arrive at General Headquarters. It requires perhaps another two hours to draft from these the press communiqué and to get it to London. Therefore, the news which comes in at night gives us the situation up to the afternoon of that day. This is the main report, and we see it usually first in the morning papers. That which we receive in the course of the morning, and which appears first in the evening papers, is supplementary and gives the account of the events between the dispatch of the main report and daybreak.

Now the German system is somewhat different. The enemy sends out in the morning his main report of his doings up to nightfall of the previous day, and this we get in London during the afternoon, some hours after Sir Douglas Haig's morning report which takes the story up to daybreak—that is, some twelve hours later than the German report. The German headquarters issues a second and usually a very brief report in the evening, dealing with events up to that morning.

Haig Normally Later Than Berlin.

Thus in normal times our information is well ahead of the German, but in abnormal times, and particularly if things are going wrong, we may and often do fall behind.

Take for example what happened at the end of March. The enemy drove in our front and pressed through to a considerable depth. Telephone and telegraph lines had been abandoned, and headquarters, which are collecting stations for information, were forced to abandon their exchanges and fall back. Fresh means of transmitting information had to be improvised, and were required as a matter of prime urgency for control of the battle.

This is what is to be expected when an enemy is successful in attack, and it means that news is delayed just at the time when the public at home are most anxious and most eager for information. Besides all this, there is the human factor to which I have referred. The attacking enemy, who gained ground, is flushed with success, and every man, from the private in the front line to the General in the rear, makes the most of it. The defender, fighting stubbornly and determined to hold his ground to the last possible moment, will not admit he has lost the position he is defending till his last man has been driven from it and his means of recapturing it are exhausted.

The Germans enter a town, and after fierce fighting reach the market place. Their General knows he has fresh troops coming up to support him, and he sends off a report that he has captured, let us say, Bapaume. Sometimes he speaks too soon; sometimes he makes good his word. Our man, perhaps at the same time, tells his superior he is holding on to the town and can retake it if reinforcements are sent up. There may be no reinforcements to send and he may have to fall back. In that case the German report of the capture gets a long start of our report of the loss.

News of Victory Swift.

Identical conditions apply when we are attacking and the Germans defending, as any one may verify who cares to turn up the reports of the battles of 1917. It is not malice or perversity which makes the news of victory swift and that of disaster slow; it is of the nature of war as it is waged today.

Then, as regards the capture of prisoners, which is often a sore point at home, the assailant who makes captures has prepared beforehand his arrangements for their custody and for counting his gains. The numbers are known to him almost at once. The defender, who is usually in difficulties when he loses men, has no time to call his roll, and if he had he could not tell how many of his missing were temporarily cut off and would rejoin, or were killed, or had fallen alive into the enemy's hands. News comes back very slowly from the German prisoner of war camps, and there are many families today in England who do not yet know whether their husbands and sons reported missing at the end of March are prisoners or not.

Neither we nor the Germans conceal our losses in prisoners. There would not be any military object in doing so. The plain fact is that neither of us knows at the time of loss.

The Germans are perfectly aware of all this and trade on their knowledge very cleverly. At times when there is nothing to be gained by exaggeration they are meticulously accurate; at others, when they want immediate effect, they exaggerate grossly, knowing they cannot at once be contradicted authoritatively.

We may, as I have said, before long again be fighting a great defensive battle. We may lose ground and prisoners too, if, as is possible, the German communiqués again get ahead of ours. Let it not be ascribed to willful concealment of untoward conditions, but to conditions of the kind of fighting in which we are engaged.

rades through the village. Those on the left pressed across the stream without great trouble, though some of them had to wade up to their belts. Then, according to the plan, they drove parallel dikes toward the village. On the right the other Australians swept on to the spur.

Their advance was made all along the line behind a creeping barrage. There was one obstacle they had to cross which might have given great trouble but for the men's quick and skillful attack and their enthusiastic courage. It was a long, sunken road, twenty to thirty feet steep in banks. There were many dugouts and machine-gun posts in it and outside there were wire entanglements through which the Australians had to force their way. It was likely that this place would be crowded with Germans, and they were found there when the Australians went to look for them.

The Australians smashed their way through the wire regardless of machine gun bullets, and then bombed their way down the sunken road until many of the enemy retreated into dugouts, where they were caught.

Cleaning Up by Moonlight.

In the village itself to the left of the spur there was hard fighting in the moonlight, and the Australians had to rout out the Germans from the ruins of houses and gardens, where they defended themselves desperately by rifle and machine gun fire. Many of them fought to the death, and Ville-sur-Ancre, through which we used to pass last year as a cool little place in the marshes under heavy green foliage, far behind the lines, is now filled with German dead.

A Brave German and a Treacherous One.

But there was mercy and chivalry for those who surrendered and kept faith. One German machine-gunner who wore the Iron Cross aroused the admiration of the Australians by his courage, and when they sent him back as a prisoner they scribbled a note—it was written in the heat of battle with the bullets flying about—saying that "as he fought so well it is hoped no one will take his Iron Cross from him." Prisoners are always allowed to keep their decorations, but it was a thoughtful and generous thing of those Australian lads to make a special point of it.

There was one act of treachery by a German soldier which made them angry, because after his surrender he shot a scout Corporal and tried to get away, but that incident, which was punished by instant death, was not counted against the other prisoners who were being sent back. The Australians gave them their biscuits, which they ate ravenously.

All of yesterday morning the cleaning up of the village and the consolidation of the captured ground continued, though the village was completely in the Australians' hands by daylight on the morning of attack. It was a brilliant little success and is a good second to the capture of Villers-Bretonneux. The value of it from a strategical point of view is that it will give increased difficulty to the enemy in any attack he may attempt north of the village, as he will then come under an enfilade fire.

Good news comes from the French in Flanders, who in an attack on a 3,000-yard front about the Hospice at Locre have taken 400 prisoners.

These are small but important episodes which must not blind us to the great menace which grows nearer day by day and must inevitably crash out of the blue sky across the sunlit fields. The enemy is still getting ready for a new and powerful assault, an attack on a wide front in enormous strength, and that battle, which will not end in a few hours, will be a tremendous challenge of our own strength.

Reminder of the War.

The gunners are watering their horses in cool ponds under shady trees through which the sun strikes with golden shafts. British soldiers make little tents of their tunics as they sit under green banks. White dust rises in clouds as the lorries and cars go by, and on the highways we are all like millers, thickly plastered with their flour.

It is baking hot at midday in the village streets, but enchanting in the woods of France, so sweet, so cool and restful to the spirit, with all their little leaves twinkling with light and underneath long black shadows flung down from trunks and overarching foliage. War seems to be a great madness to be thrust into such arcadies, but everywhere there come reminders that we are only waiting for a renewal of the fury, and that it never ceases, however blue the sky.

At night, in the moonlight, German raiders come out to bomb one of the towns.

Last night they came out in some force. The hum of the engines, the deep note of the Gotha was heard overhead as the flight passed for their deadly work. Then among the stars there were bursts of shrapnel and from the silence of the night, all steeped in scent, heavy crashes of gunfire and bombs.

There was another reminder of war's havoc in the usual shellfire under yesterday's blue sky. The enemy, as usual, put great shells into the little town of Bethune and some of the houses were set on fire. It was a gay place once though always near the lines, and the British soldiers loved its streets and the shops I knew in the sunshine and storm as far back as those days when it was the capital city of the British troops in battle at Loos, from which they dragged back many German guns to put there in the market place as heroic trophies, and past the grey walls of the Hotel de Ville there streamed the tide of the British guns and of English and Scottish troops moving up to battle beyond the red flames, and smoke rose from it yesterday, spoiling the blue of the sky above its towers.

BRITISH REJOICE OVER OUR TROOPS

khaki, with stiff collars unlike ours and canvas gaiters and slouch hats, and we said, "By Jove, those are Americans!"

Presently we met quiet fellows in the United States uniform who sat listening to the casual conversation of English officers, and asking penetrating questions, as men wanting to know things. They were the outposts of the American Army—engineers, medical officers, and staff officers getting a first look at the stupendous problem which now confronted them, anxious to learn from the experience of the British to avoid the early mistakes of the latter and to start higher up than the beginning which was theirs in blood and travail.

I met some of these advance guards and found them enormously modest, as men face to face with a local technique to which they were strange among other men who had learned it by painful lessons. I found them also very keen and alert and businesslike, quick to see the essential truth of things, taking it all seriously, making mental notes at great speed yet with an easy way that made them good comrades at the mess table, and with a sense of humor refreshing in its incisiveness.

They explained that their army was coming along, and we believed them. They asked us not to be in too much of a hurry, and we said: "That's all right. We'll wait for you." They wanted us to understand, and we were not too impatient to understand, that the organization involved in the training and equipping and transport of a great army with a line of communications 3,000 miles long was not child's play or the work of few months.

In the Cambrai fighting on Nov. 30 of last year I met a crowd of American engineers who were quick to get into action when they were in reach of it. They were not supposed to be fighting men, but they made themselves so when the battle lines suddenly closed about them and shells fell around their engines and trucks and the Germans started sniping at close range. They borrowed some rifles and took part in the counter-attacks. Others, surrounded by the enemy, fought their way through, and laughed at this queer adventure afterward and were pleased because the British said:

"Well done, old sports! We could do with a hundred thousand of you."

The first hundred thousand of a new army, by Jove! That would make a lot of difference.

There were some who believed that the tramp of American battalions would never be heard along the roads of France, and those were German officers and men. I remember when Vimy Ridge was taken by the Canadians and Scottish, in April of last year, a German officer was talking with a group of Canadians.

"What do you think about the Americans coming into the war?" they asked.

The officer shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

"It is a moral blow to us," he said frankly, "but they will never get across here. Our submarines will see to that."

"We got across all right," said the Canadians, and this answer seemed to make their prisoner thoughtful.

Yet for a long time the enemy has buoyed himself up with the hope that the Americans would never get across. Now a big army of them is across here with the French and here with the British, and the enemy is anxious and alarmed. He has cause to be. I have seen American troops on the roads and in the villages behind the lines training with some of the British units, learning the latest methods from some of the British officers, working out their own ideas, and adopting anything that is good in our system or the French, and I am certain the United States armies will be a most formidable factor in the struggle ahead.

Their material of manhood is splendid, and they remind me a good deal of the Canadians, because many of them, like the Canadians themselves, are men who have led outdoor lives, who have been their own masters of life in the open country and have kept their end up among other sturdy and independent men. That is raw material of the best soldiers, and there is a lot of it in the American battalions.

The men from the cities and all great townships of the United States have a quality that is not less good. They have alertness of mind, quickness of understanding, and a personal independence of spirit which only needs training and experience to convert into the highest soldierly instincts. And they start fresh, officers and men, start fresh without hampering traditions, old-fashioned methods, and red tape of the mind.

It is likely they will produce good Captains of men as they have been produced out of Canadian journalists, lawyers, and business men, and Australian school masters, architects, and farmers. Their higher command so far is of course made up largely of professional soldiers who studied at West Point and have handled troops in fields long before this war, but they form the intellectual nucleus of an enormous organization which includes the best business brains of the United States.

The Men in the Ranks.

In the ranks there are men of all classes and types. There are private soldiers in the American divisions now here in France who graduated at Harvard, and others who were great employers of labor, or sons of employers, and I am told that in their training camps at home it was not unusual to see one of them driving by in a Rolls-Royce car with a respectful salute to an officer who walked afoot.

In the course of training, men with superior education or special knowledge will undoubtedly be weeded out and receive commissions. Indeed, that is already being done, and otherwise it would be a waste of leadership, but for all that the United States Army is on an essentially democratic basis, like the armies of France.

I spent an hour or two of yesterday afternoon with the officers of one of the American divisions, and was presented to the Chief of Staff of the division, who impressed me very much by his fine simplicity of thought and speech and by his courtesy of manner, which was utterly sincere. All these officers are without illusions about this war. They know the price that must be paid for victory, the daily toll of its ordinary routine, the strength and skill of the enemy. They know their men have much to learn and much to suffer.

They pay a high tribute of praise to the British, who through these years have faced all the stress and storm of the war with very patient courage, but they are confident that before very long the American divisions in France will pass the test that has been set them by those of France and England, and there is not a man among the British here who does not share that confidence to the uttermost.

For my part, I find it hard to believe that when we have checked the enemy's next thrust the German rulers and people will wait for America's armies to advance against them and challenge them to more than a year of slaughter. If they do that, then, indeed, are they stricken with madness by the gods, and there is no hope for them.

MAY REFUSE TRIAL TO SINN FEINERS

SINN FEIN'S NEW OFFICERS

MacNEILL IS A MODERATE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, May 20.—I believe the number of arrests effected in connection with the Sinn Fein activities very nearly exhausts the number resolved upon. A few may remain to be carried out, but not many. Each arrest is a separate, direct act of the Irish Executive in Dublin and is not the consequence of any discretion left to the local police.

The arrests have nothing whatever to do with the Conscription act or with the anti-conscription agitation. They have nothing whatever to do with the Sinn Fein as such, or with seditious speeches. Some of the persons arrested are probably not Sinn Feiners, and I should be surprised to learn that seditious speeches, which undoubtedly have been delivered here, had even been examined or considered before the decision was taken to arrest the men and women who are now prisoners.

Every arrest made or yet to be made, probably not more than seventy all told, is wholly and solely grounded upon suspicion of treacherous communication with the enemy. Rumor has it that tell-tale papers were found upon men who were captured some time ago in a collapsible boat off Kingston and in another boat off Kerry, but however that may be, I venture to guess that something more definite than these spectral papers found its way to the British Government from a friendly country which had the good fortune to expose earlier plots against the Allies, always in the nick of time.

And what will now become of the arrested suspects? every one will ask. I believe that they will not be court-martialled and will not be brought to public trial. The measure is practically complete in respect of the persons affected, and it is complete also in respect of the amount of their liberty and safety affected. My present information satisfies me that the Government will scrupulously abstain from giving any excuse for disorders.

The arrests are a war measure taken under the Defense of the Realm regulations, and they do not even imply a revival of coercion under the old Coercion act in force in respect of some of its clauses.

Two other items of news are that the Lord Lieutenant, who had already visited the races and the theatre, opened the Whitsuntide Fair of the Red Cross in a brief ceremonial speech and was very well received by the large assembly, and that seven members of the American Labor Mission have arrived in Dublin for a short visit, which is to be confined to the city.

As far as my present information goes there has been no disturbance in connection with Friday night's and later events, and provided the existence of a plot for the landing of German troops can be established the Irish people will not be the last to recognize the prudence of circumventing it by putting under restraint those who may reasonably be suspected of promoting it on this side. These, I think, are reflections that account for the eminently sober spirit in which the arrests are regarded here.

46 Prisoners Taken to England.

LONDON, May 20.—A dispatch to The Times from Holyhead says that forty-six Sinn Fein prisoners arrived there on a warship Saturday night under an armed escort. The men were marched quickly and quietly to a camp near the town, where they remained over night. The Countess Markievicz was taken to the police station and turned over to the Deputy Chief Constable, who yesterday morning left with her for London. Other prisoners are expected at Holyhead.

With the exception of Professor de Valera and Countess Markievicz, who appeared to be dejected, the prisoners did not seem to be distressed by their arrest.

With the arrest of Count Plunkett, four of the six Sinn Fein members of Parliament under arrest. The other two are Dr. McCartan, who is in Washington, and Laurence Ginnell, who is serving a six months' sentence in Mount Joy Prison. Among others under arrest are Charles Collins and Christopher Mullins, who are charged with the unlawful possession of explosives at Britias, a few miles outside Dublin. Feardar O'Hourihane and James O'Brien, editor and manager of the Skibbereen Southern Star, also are in custody.

Sinn Fein Appoints New Officers.

Vice President Morris and the remaining heads of the Sinn Fein organization have issued a reply to the proclamation which the British Government published Saturday. The reply says that, "anticipating such action, the Standing Committee of the Sinn Fein nominated substitutes to carry on the movement during the enforced and what must be made temporary exile of our leaders."

"The country may rest assured," it adds, "that, no matter how many of the leaders may be arrested, there will be men and women to take their places. All that we need is to continue to follow the last advice of Professor de Valera, namely, to remain calm and confident."

The Sinn Feiners have nominated Professor John MacNeill and Alderman Kelly, a well-known member of the Dublin Corporation, to the places in the organization made vacant through the arrest of Professor de Valera and Arthur Griffith.

The effect of this proclamation probably will be to influence the Sinn Feiners against any spasmodic outbreak. The policy seems to be to sit tight and await the orders of the newly appointed heads of the organization.

May Be Held 'During King's Pleasure.'

A Dublin dispatch to The Daily News says:

"Comment here is apt to centre on the fact that the prisoners—if such they can be called, for it is believed internees would be a more accurate word—have not been called to answer to any charge. I have the best reason for stating they will not be brought before any tribunal, civil or military." The Government intend to exercise fully their unlimited, undefined powers under the Defense of the Realm act, which apparently will allow them to keep the arrestees in custody upon suspicion 'during the King's pleasure,' according to the legal phrase.

"If this should prove to be the Cabinet's intention, there will, of course, be vigorous protests, but it is recognized frankly here that the plea of national necessity would not be difficult to urge in Britain, and possibly even in America, under the present critical conditions."

MacNeill Regarded as Moderate.

DUBLIN, May 19.—The Sinn Fein apparenaly does not intend to be hurried into any ill-advised outbreak by the recent turn of affairs. The newly-appointed leaders are men of less revolutionary type than those who were arrested. One of them is Professor John MacNeill of the National University, former Chief of Staff of the Irish National Volunteers. Although arrested at the time of the 1916 uprising he was credited by John Dillon with having broken the back of the rebellion. He was sentenced to prison for a long term, but subsequently was released and was reappointed to the faculty of the university.

Professor MacNeill throughout has been identified with the intellectual side of the Sinn Fein, and until 1914 was known as the Constitutional Nationalist. He is the only one of the conspicuous Sinn Fein leaders who was not arrested last week. His immunity to arrest generally is credited to a belief in his moderation.

On St. Patrick's Day Professor MacNeill sent to Americans an expression of warm hope that the United States would win the war for the Allies and would secure the freedom of small peoples. He was the only Sinn Fein leader who made such a declaration.

Alderman Kelly is a workingman; in no sense a revolutionary. He is moderate in his political views and is principally known as an advocate of teetotalism. He was in custody for a short time after the 1916 disorders in Dublin but was released almost immediately.

Offanagan Called an Extremist.

The nominal head of the Sinn Fein since the arrest of Professor de Valera is a priest, Father Offanagan of Roscommon, who occupied the honorary position of Vice President of the society and may, therefore, be regarded as de Valera's successor until another President is chosen. Father Offanagan generally is regarded as an extremist and a fighting man. He formerly was known as an industrial and agricultural reformer, warmly supporting the movement headed by Sir Horace Plunkett, Chairman of the recent Irish Convention, for the co-operative distribution of Irish agricultural produce.

A Sinn Fein demonstration today at Cootehill, East Cavan, was attended by 6,000 persons. Among the speakers were two priests. The Sinn Feiners bore a banner inscribed: "They may kill our leaders, but they cannot kill the Sinn Fein."

BELFAST, May 20.—Maude Gonne McBride, once known as "the Irish Joan of Arc," widow of Major John McBride, who was executed in May, 1916, for the part taken by him in the Dublin uprising on the Easter of that year, has been arrested.

NATIONALIST CHIEFS ANXIOUS.

Fear That Sympathy for Sinn Fein Will Hurt Their Party.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

(Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune.)

DUBLIN, May 19.—One result of the Sinn Fein arrests will probably be the withdrawal of the Nationalist candidate in the East Cavan Parliamentary election. Arthur Griffith, Vice President of the Sinn Fein, now in an English prison, will have a clear field. It should be explained that the average Irishman will not vote against another Irishman who happens to be languishing in an English prison, regardless of political differences, and so Griffith will probably get a unanimous vote.

Joseph Devlin spent the day resting in a Dublin suburb. He returned to the city tonight, and held a protracted conference with John Dillon.

The Nationalist leaders are perturbed over the turn of affairs, and fear that sympathy for the imprisoned Sinn Fein leaders will play hob with the Constitutionalist Party. One leader laughingly explained that the only thing, it seemed, that would save the prestige of the Nationalists would be the arrest of Dillon and Devlin.

We have spent the quietest Sunday in a year, under warm sunshine—in fact, almost too quiet to be reassuring. Up to a late hour we have had only the most meagre reports from the provinces, and the same quiet seems to prevail over the whole island. The people have been left in darkness respecting the details of the charges against the Sinn Fein leaders. They have a general statement of their involvment in a German plot for another rising of the populace, but other than that they have been left to wild speculation. The Sinn Fein leaders at liberty have widely circulated the story today that the arrests are a plot of the British Government to keep the leaders from meeting the American Commission which arrived here last night.

An unsuccessful effort to have the labor members of the commission attend a meeting of the Sinn Feiners at Harcourt Street headquarters was made today. It was the intention that the labor members should get the Sinn Fein side for American consumption. Agnes Nestor and William Ryan told the spokesmen they would be glad to attend, but the fact that the commission was doing the whole of Ireland in two days prevented them from making any change in the set program. This was interpreted by the Sinn Fein as proof of the charge that the American visitors would be kept at a safe distance from this faction. The commission will see Dillon and Devlin and probably the union labor spokesman tomorrow.

LONDON PRESS URGES VIGOR.

LONDON, May 20.—"We understand the Government has conclusive evidence," says The Daily Mail, in regard to the Irish arrests. "The danger to the allied cause should not be underestimated. The Germans clearly hoped that at the supreme moment of the gigantic offensive which they are now preparing the Sinn Fein would hamper our forces and distract our efforts by a great insurrection in Ireland. The new executive in Ireland has moved so swiftly and courageously that we may hope the conspiracy has been paralyzed.

"In the measures taken the Irish executive has followed (though on a smaller scale) the precedents set by Abraham Lincoln, who, when dealing with sedition, swiftly and resolutely arrested many hundreds of dangerous persons and kept them in prison without trial so long as the peril continued. He was much denounced at the time for this muscular and determined action. Posterity holds that by it he saved the United States. Viscount French, who is a convinced Home Ruler and a devoted son of Ireland, has shown that he is a man of action."

The Times says it understands that the Government will publish immediately part of the evidence against the Sinn Feiners arrested in Ireland, and that its authenticity is unquestionable.

The Daily Chronicle urges the Government to bring the principal prisoners into open court immediately and prove their guilt; or, if this is inadvisable for military or international reasons, at least to expedite publication of the material facts to counter the imputation that it is being actuated by political motives by showing that there is good foundation for charging conspiracy.

HUNT FOR O'LEARY, FORFEIT HIS BAIL

HAD START OF TEN DAYS

The Department of Justice sent out a countrywide alarm last night for the arrest on sight of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, one of the best-known Sinn Fein agitators in this country, and before America entered the war also numbered among the most active of pro-German propagandists here. O'Leary is under indictment for having entered into a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the United States, and his trial was to begin at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the criminal branch of the Federal District Court. When the case was called the fact became public that O'Leary disappeared on May 8. Here is the Government alarm calling for the apprehension of O'Leary:

Alarm for O'Leary.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary is under indictment in the United States Court for the Southern District of New York for a violation of Sections 3 and 4 of Title I. of the Espionage act. He forfeited his bond on May 20, 1918; bench warrant issued and is now in the hands of the United States Marshal for the Southern District of New York.

O'Leary is one of the best known Irish leaders in the United States, known in all Sinn Fein and rabid Irish circles, and known personally by all prominent leaders of the Sinn Fein movement. He is President of the American Truth Society and publisher of The Bull. His description is as follows:

Age 37, height 6 feet, weight 165 pounds, dark brown eyes, heavy eyebrows, very dark brown and unusually bushy, wavy hair, nose widens at base and regular, smooth face, good looking, very prominent and fine teeth, very affable, fluent talker, good dresser, wore on leaving here dark sack suit, tight fitting.

If in Eastern or New England section, may be touring with Dodge car.

THOMAS D. McCARTHY,
United States Marshal.
CHARLES DE WOODY,
Division Superintendent, Department of Justice.

Had Start of Ten Days.

The Federal authorities received their first definite information regarding the disappearance of O'Leary on Saturday afternoon from one of the lawyers retained to defend him on the trial that was to begin yesterday. Immediately the Secret Service machinery began to move in the case, but O'Leary had a start of ten days, sufficient time it was pointed out for him to find a refuge in any secluded point in the United States, or to get to the Rio Grande and slip across the border into Mexico. The theory of the Secret Service is, however, that O'Leary is hiding within a few hundred miles of New York, probably in the mountains of Northern New York, or in Northern New England. A suggestion that O'Leary might have ended his life was not taken seriously by the Federal officials.

According to the information now in the possession of the Federal authorities O'Leary left New York at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of May 8. It is believed that he traveled in a touring automobile which he had owned for some time. He may or may not have been accompanied, although there is reason to believe that he was. The name of the man who may have left with him is known to Chief De Woody, and agents of the Department of Justice are now looking for him.

John O'Leary, a brother of the missing Sinn Fein agitator, said yesterday that he was as ignorant as the Federal authorities regarding the whereabouts of his brother. He said that he sent several telegrams last week to friends in different parts of the State in the effort to trace him. In every instance the friend replied that he had not seen the missing man nor heard from him. One of these messages was sent to Miss Alice F. Moynihan of 127 Warren Street, Glens Falls; another to Michael Breen of Jahamus in the Adirondacks, and still another to Dr. Daniel O'Leary of Newburg.

The Government, it is known, has evidence that Jeremiah O'Leary has been active in the Sinn Fein agitations. He has been for years on intimate terms with some of the most bitter of these agitators, while his pro-German activities continued openly for several months after this country entered the war, and did not end openly until a Federal Grand Jury handed down an indictment charging O'Leary with conspiring with various other persons to cause insubordination, mutiny, disloyalty, and refusal to do military duty on the part of soldiers and sailors of the United States.

The indictment against O'Leary was handed down on Nov. 23 and a few days later O'Leary entered a plea of not guilty before Judge Manton, in the District Court, and was released in $2,500 bail, his wife giving as security real estate owned by her at 14 Jumel Terrace. It was said yesterday that in the future the Government would demand that, in every case of a man indicted for an offense involving the military operations of the United States, bail be fixed at a figure to correspond with the seriousness of the offense charged. Had O'Leary's bail been as high as some Federal officials say it should have been his security would probably have been furnished by a bonding company, which would have kept track of him.

The case of the United States against O'Leary and others, was called at 10 o'clock yesterday morning before United States Judge Rufus E. Foster of New Orleans, who is sitting in the New York district by special assignment. Assistant United States District Attorney Earl B. Barnes was present as the representative of the Government, while T. B. Felder of the law firm of Cockran, Felder & Higbee was in court as leading counsel for O'Leary. The courtroom was crowded. Except the lawyers for the defense, the Judge, and the Federal authorities, none in court knew that the agitator had disappeared. The announcement came with suddenness.

"Jeremiah A. O'Leary to the bar," the clerk of court cried.

Instead of the tall, black-haired man who often has boasted that even the United States could not frighten him, Mr. Felder stepped forward.

"May it please your Honor," said Mr. Felder, "about one month ago I was retained to represent Jeremiah A. O'Leary in this action. I had two interviews with him, and several conferences with his brother, John O'Leary, an honorable and reputable member of the New York bar. A short time ago the defendant O'eLary was operated on for appendicitis, and after leaving the hospital he spent several days at his home in this city, and then, following the advice of his physician, he left for the Adirondacks.

"On my return to New York last Monday from Washington I communicated with Mr. O'Leary's brother and told him that I wished to confer with Jeremiah in preparation for this trial and requested that he notify his brother to return to New York at once. Mr. O'Leary tried by telegraph and by telephone to get in touch with his brother, but without success. Last Friday John O'Leary went to the Adirondacks and made a personal search for Jeremiah, but he met with no success.

Sent No Word to Family.

"On his return to New York, last night, John O'Leary informed me that he had been unable to find any trace of his brother. From the time that Jeremiah O'Leary left his home in this city on May 8 his family has had no word of any kind from him.

"It was on Friday last that John O'Leary admitted to me for the first time that he felt some anxiety in regard to his brother. He believes, all the members of his family believe, and I concur in their belief that the defendant, Jeremiah A. O'Leary, has not absconded. At the interviews I had with Jeremiah O'Leary he expressed the greatest confidence in his ultimate acquittal and his desire to have the trial proceeded with.

"I can only say that I place this matter in the hands of the court. Probably the best thing to do is to take such action as the statute requires. The family is alarmed, and from my conferences with the family I must conclude that it is unlikely this is a deliberate absconding. Mr. O'Leary is a lawyer, and before his recent illness appeared to be in good mental condition and not a person likely to commit such an act."

Mr. Barnes, for the Government, briefly outlined the case to Judge Foster and said that up to the last minute he had expected that O'Leary would be in court when the case was called. On May 9 last, Mr. Barnes said, he had notified Mr. Felder that a superseding indictment had been returned against O'Leary by the Grand Jury, the new indictment making the American Truth Society, of which O'Leary was the active head, a defendant in the case. On the next day Mr. Felder notified him that he would also appear for the society, and Mr. Barnes said that he had inferred that the authority was given by O'Leary. Mr. Felder immediately interrupted to say that the authority did not come from O'Leary.

Mr. Barnes then asked in the name of the Government that O'Leary's bail bond be declared forfeited and that a bench warrant immediately issue for the arrest on sight of the missing agitator.

"That is the only thing to do under the circumstances, and I order the bail forfeited and the warrant issued," replied Judge Foster.

Ten minutes later the warrant had been drawn up and signed and was in the hands of Marshal McCarthy.

After the issuance of the warrant Judge Foster, at the suggestion of Mr. Barnes, announced that the case was adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and if in the event O'Leary is captured or surrenders he will be arraigned for trial at that time.

STUDY SPEECHES MADE AT IRISH MEETING

Federal Authorities Get Official Transcripts—Protests Sent to Cardinal Farley.

Official stenographic transcripts of the speeches made at the Sunday afternoon session of the Friends of Irish Freedom, in the Central Opera House, Sixty-seventh Street, near Third Avenue, were submitted to United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey, and Chief Charles W. DeWoody of the Department of Justice Secret Service yesterday. The utterances of the exiled Sinn Fein leader Liam Mellows, who is called "General;" Mrs. H. Sheehy-Skeffington, Patrick H. McCarton, M.P., and Peter Golden, are the subject of special study on the part of the Federal officials.

It was Mellows who said that if President Wilson did not intervene in the Irish question "Ireland will be driven to seek help elsewhere." Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington later indorsed all that he had said. McCarton intimated that England was going to try to get American aid to "slaughter" the Irish. Golden shouted that in the event England "massacres the Irish in Ireland the Government under which we live will have to massacre us."

It was recalled yesterday that when Mellows was arrested by agents of the Secret Service in November there was found among his papers, and according to the statement issued by the Secret Service at the time, in Mellow's handwriting, a document which purported to be an official account of the Sinn Fein uprising of 1916. In that document, which is now in the possession of the Secret Service, Mellows said, "I knew that there was an existing agreement with Germany that 'if the course of the war allowed it' they would set up an independent Ireland."

In another part of the document the Secret Service said that Mellows told of an arrangement made with "German officers at the Baltic port," and added that this arrangement, which had to do with the sailing of a ship for Ireland, was "arranged from America."

This document, it was asserted yesterday, was of particular interest at this time when the British Government had officially charged that Sinn Fein leaders had been in communication with the enemy. Officials in New York refused to say anything about the report from London that some of the information, on which the British acted last week, was first obtained in the United States.

There seemed to be some doubt yesterday as to whether the committee appointed at Sunday's session of the Friends of Irish Freedom, to take a Sinn Fein petition to President Wilson, would go to Washington. Supreme Court Justice Goff was named as Chairman of that committee, but he said yesterday that he had not made up his mind whether he would go to Washington.

"I have not refused to go," said Justice Goff. "I simply have not made up my mind in the matter. I have come to no decision up to the present time."

Protests have been sent to President Wilson, Cardinal Farley, and Mayor Hylan by persons who say that the United States should not be made the base for hostile Sinn Fein action against Great Britain. The fact that such protests had been made was announced yesterday by Mrs. Francis C. Barlow, widow of Brig. Gen. Barlow, who asserted that only the protest sent to President Wilson had been acknowledged. Protests have also been made by the Colonial Dames.

The protest to Cardinal Farley, Mrs. Barlow said, was taken to the archiepiscopal residence by her several days ago. She failed to receive a reply, she said, and so she sent another protest, this time in a registered letter to Mgr. Carroll, the Cardinal's Secretary. Because this letter did not bring a response Mrs. Barlow said she decided to make it public yesterday. The text of the protest follows:

May 10, 1918.

To Cardinal Farley, Archbishop of New York.

Eminence: When a short time since the people of New York, without regard to creed or race, contributed of their means to your appeal for funds to make more effective the good works of Catholic chaplains in our army and navy, they naturally supposed the clergy of your archdiocese to be 100 per cent. loyal to our country and its allies in the war. We now read in the daily press that on Saturday night last when the good citizens of New York were completing their efforts to help the Government raise the sinews of war, a public meeting was in progress, addressed by questionable characters in unbecoming language, presided over by the Rev. Peter E. Magennis, a priest of your archdiocese, not a first offender in such matters.

We, therefore, publicly call your official attention to the above, in the belief and with the expectation that you will prohibit in the future any further unpatriotic or seditious public utterances by any of your clergy.

It was said that Father Magennis was out of town yesterday. At the Cardinal's residence it was said that he, too, was not in the city. Mgr. Carroll was not in, and it was said that he was the only one with authority to speak for the Cardinal.

SINN FEIN ATTEMPTS TO EMBROIL AMERICANS

But Delegates Fail to Induce Our Labor Representatives to Take Sides.

DUBLIN, May 20.—A Sinn Fein delegaet who yesterday called on the American mission representing the American labor delegation now in England endeavored to create a scene in the hotel lobby by declaring loudly that Americans were not treating the Sinn Fein fairly.

The members of the American mission replied that they would be glad to listen to all sides and that they proposed to view the Irish question without prejudice, but that they could not take sides in internal British questions.

The seven members of the American mission, who today ended a three days' visit to Ireland, have taken a keen interest in the events happening since Saturday. There has been a distinct effort by the extremist Irish element to make capital out of the visit of the Americans, but the delegates proved themselves a match for all intriguers, and succeeded in meeting and speaking with representatives of all shades of opinion without embarrassing consequences.

The delegates were accompanied by Private Peter Ryan, a member of the Aviation Corps of the United States Army, and a brother of Delegate Martin F. Ryan, who is President of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen. The American khaki, which is a novelty in Dublin, and Private Ryan's presence with the mission proved matters of great interest.

Private Ryan is a modest Irish-American, who frankly said to questioners that "Americans believe that the main thing nowadays is get on with the war."

The mission arrived on Saturday, spending the day at Belfast. They had luncheon with the Lord Mayor there and then came here with the Lord Mayor of Dublin, spending Sunday and Monday here. They attended the pro-cathedral services on Sunday, had luncheon with Lord and Lady Decies, motored around Dublin Bay and dined at the Kingstown Yacht Club. During the afternoon they conferred with Timothy Healy, one of the oldest of the Irish Nationalist leaders, fixing the time for interviews with several Irish delegations, including the representatives of the Sinn Fein and more moderate Nationalists. The mission had further interviews on Monday with delegations from the different factions in Dublin and then took luncheon with the Lord Mayor, who discussed his plans for his trip to the United States.

The efforts of the Sinn Feiners to make capital out of the Americans' visit may be best judged by an Editorial printed in the Dublin Morning Irish Independent, which says:

"There is an ugly significance about the fact that the time chosen for the issue of the anti-Sinn Fein proclamation coincided with the arrival of the American Labor Mission in Ireland. It can hardly have been a casual occurrence that the story of the pro-German plot was sprung on the country on the very day the Americans arrived. The British Government did not want this mission to visit Ireland, as its personal investigation on the spot would be likely to blow sky-high the series of official inexactitudes with which the British Government propagandists had distorted the position of Ireland toward England and the war. The coincidence of the pro-German plot announcement and the American visit was, therefore, a calculated one, with the intention that the truth which the Americans might find out for themselves on the spot would be countered by these alleged revelations."

WASHINGTON IS RETICENT.

Officials Won't Confirm or Deny Reports of Action Against Sinn Fein.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Profound reticence prevailed today in Government quarters immediately concerned when questions were asked as to the truth of the report from Dublin that the arrests of Sinn Fein leaders in Ireland for treasonable plottings were due to evidence furnished to the British Government by the Government of the United States. Secretary Lansing was one of those of whom inquiries were made, and he declined to comment on the report in any way.

At the time of the arrest of Sir Roger Casement it was charged by sympathizers in New York that his detection when he landed in Ireland was the consequence of information obtained by the United States Government and furnished to Great Brtan. No official statement in this connection was ever forthcoming from the Washington Government. At that time the United States was not at a war with Germany, and was therefore not a co-belligerent with Great Britain. One suggestion advanced was that the Casement plot was hatched in this country, and it was the duty of the United States as a neutral Government to inform Great Britain of the proposed hostile expedition.

In the present case nothing has come to light further than the report that the evidence leading to the arrest of Sinn Feiners was furnished by the Washington Government. Inquiry was made at the Department of Justice as well as at the State Department, but nothing definite was obtainable. At first the impression was given that the Department of Justice was ignorant of what had led to the Irish arrests, but it developed subsequently that the department did not intend to furnish any denial. It was said that the Department of Justice had not furnished the evidence of the alleged Sinn Fein plot, but this was explained to mean that any evidence placed before the British Government would necessarily have to go through the medium of the State Department, to which inquirers were referred.

NEW METHODS HELP AMERICAN WOUNDED

Record of 95 Per Cent. of Primary Healings in Accident Surgery Is Attained.

LESS DELAY IN OPERATING

Surgical Organization Moved Up to Firing Zone's Edge—Gas Mortality Cut.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 20.—The presence of many army doctors in Paris to attend a professional meeting has enabled me to get recent information about the provisions for taking care of the American wounded. Our foremost American medical men are in charge of this subject, and the results of their study has been accepted by the army.

They opened a clean set of books on medical and surgical methods under war conditions, refusing to accept the old practices simply on the ground that they were the kind the army had always had. An absolutely new system has been worked out, and its efficacy may be judged by the statement that under it there is a record of 95 per cent. of primary healings in accident surgery. That means that practically all wounds received in battle heal by "first intention."

The percentage is one with which any first class hospital in America would be satisfied. Our wounded soldiers are receiving and will continue to receive just behind the battlefields as good treatment as they could get at home under the most favorable conditions. Nothing is better for their morale than the knowledge among the troops that they are sure of the best surgical attention if wounded, and nothing could be more comforting to their relatives at home than this certainty.

A rough idea of the new system may be conveyed by saying that, whereas formerly the wounded were taken to base hospitals, involving a delay of ten or twelve hours before operation and consequent infection that no surgery could combat, the operating organization has been moved right up to the edge of the firing zone.

There are now three separate zones In the first zone, which is at the fighting line, there is no surgery except first aid, like stopping hemorrhage, &c. Ten or twelve miles back is an evacuating hospital, or, as the English call it, a casualty clearing station. Here skilled surgeons await the wounded and perform operations. Still further back and stretching all the way to the ports of Western France is Zone 3, in which are located the base hospitals for what is called civil surgery and chonic cases. In this zone the plan of group organization has been adopted, which tends to simplicity and efficiency.

It is a startling fact that of all the cases coming to the surgeons gas accounts for a majority of the deaths. Naturally this subject is receiving careful attention, and the results of the treatment are constantly improving. A new arrangement whereby cases can get prompt treatment has greatly diminished the rate of mortality.

The British, who have reached a high standard of sanitary methods, have not yet given up the antiquated method of transporting the wounded to the rear before operating; but amalgamation with the Americans will probably soon lead to moving the casualty clearing stations nearer to the front, where a greater number of the wounded can be saved by prompter operations. Time in this, as in all other things, is the essence of the matter.

I talked with several great doctors whose names are nationally known in America and found them full of optimism about the new methods which have already been tested and show results that would have been thought impossible twelve months ago.

MARTIAL LAW CHECKS OUTBREAKS AT PRAGUE

Anti-German Crowds Shouted "Long Live Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George!"

LONDON, May 20.—A state of siege has been proclaimed at Prague, the Bohemian capital, by the police, and the garrison has been reinforced. These countermeasures, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurich, followed demonstrations of an anti-German character in which Czechs and Jugo-Slavs paraded through the streets shouting: "Long live Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George!"

At a performance in the Bohemian national theatre, speeches violently attacking Germany were delivered, and the renewal of the alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary was denounced. Several deputies addressed the crowd, urging resistance to the end and the sacrifice of wealth and blood for Bohemia.

The theatre was then closed and rioting occurred in the streets outside. The Jugo-Slavs who had participated in the Bohemian festivities, were ordered to leave the city. Crowds singing patriotic songs accompanied them to the railway station.

LUSITANIA'S DESTROYER DAMAGED IN BATTLE

U-39 Escorted to Cartagena by Another Submarine, Which Disappears—Now Under Guard.

MADRID, May 19.—The German submarine U-39, says an official dispatch from Cartagena, entered that port last night in a seriously damaged condition as the result of a battle. Another submarine accompanied the U-39 as far as the entrance to the port and then disappeared.

The U-39 is 220 feet long and carries a crew of thirty men. The crew has been forbidden by the authorities to communicate with shore. The submarine is being guarded by the Spanish cruiser Extramadura.

The U-39, according to German advices, is the submarine that torpedoed the Lusitania off Kinsale on May 7, 1915. A dispatch from Munich, Havaria, received in Switzerland on the following day said that it was the U-39 that sank the British liner. On March 11, 1916, it was reported in Washington that it was the U-39 which attacked the American tanker Petrolite off the coast of Egypt in December, 1915. It is possible that the old U-39 may be out of service by this time and that her number has been taken by a new boat.

AMERICAN FREIGHTER SUNK.

Engineer Lost on the J. G. McCullough, Former Lake Steamer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Navy Department was informed today that the American cargo carrier J. G. McCullough had been sunk by a mine or torpedo in foreign waters. The report stated that all on board were saved except Engineer Daughtry.

The J. G. McCullough was owned by the United States Steamship Company, and was requisitioned last October while in foreign waters for army uses. At that time her civilian crew was replaced by a navy crew. The vessel was built in 1889 at Buffalo, and under the name of the S. C. Reynolds was used for a number of years in lake trade. She registered 1,805 tons gross.

GOVERNMENT LOSES SHOE TRUST SUIT

Combination Not Illegal, Supreme Court Decides, Four to Three, Two Not Voting.

TYING LEASES ARE UPHELD

Justice Day, Dissenting, Condemns Them—Majority Opinion Held to Show New Attitude.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Through an opinion which some construed as indicating a new attitude toward big business, and on which the court divided 4 to 3, the Supreme Court today refused to order the dissolution of the United Shoe Machinery Company of Massachusetts and its subsidiaries, forming the so-called "Shoe Machinery Trust."

While admitting the magnitude of the combination, the court declared its growth resulted from efficient management and not oppression, and held that the breaking up of such a concern under a dissolution order would be practically impossible.

This suit, instituted by the Government in 1911, is the first under the Sherman Anti-Trust act to be decided by the Supreme Court in a number of years, and for the first time in recent history a complete victory has been won by an organization attacked by the Government. In the proceedings the Government not only sought the dissolution of the company, which it contended to be an organization in restraint of trade, but also the abolishment of the so-called "tying leases," by which the company retained control over shoe machinery leased to shoe manufacturers.

The lower court decided in favor of the company and dismissed the suit. The Supreme Court affirms that decision in a majority opinion rendered by Associate Justice McKenna, and concurred in by Chief Justice White and Associate Justices Holmes and Van Deventer. Justices Day, Pitney, and Clark dissented, the former, in an opinion, declaring that the shoe machinery company does dominate the trade and that the tying leases are a violation of the Sherman law. Justices McReynolds and Brandeis did not participate because of their previous connection with the case, the former as Attorney General.

Answering the Government's contention that the company is an organization in restraint of trade and should be broken up as an unlawful trust, the majority opinion declared "the idea is repellent that so complete an instrumentality should be dismantled and its concentration and efficiency lost."

"The company," the opinion continues, "indeed has magnitude, but it is at once the result and cause of efficiency, and the charge that it has been oppressively used is not sustained. Patrons are given the benefits of improvements made by the company, and new machines are substituted for the old ones without proportionate charge. There has been a saving as well in the cost of the manufacture of shoes. These are some of the results of the organization of the United Company."

"Considering the remedy prayed, which is extreme even in its mildest demands, we may ask, What of the investments that have been made during these years of extension and development of the new company's business? The idea is repellant that so complete an instrumentality should be dismantled and its concentration and efficiency lost. It has been testified that the purpose of the organization was the consolidating of all the machines in one modern factory and the standardizing of them. his purpose has been attained. The company employs there 4,000 men.

In dissenting, Justice Day declared the tying leases tend "to prevent the free flow of interstate commerce and the natural course of its activities, and at least tend to monopolize an important trade." In his opinion, he added, "the restrictive and prohibitive clauses of these leases are within the Sherman act, as they are clearly in restraint of trade."

BRITISH OFFICER GAVE LIFE TO SAVE HIS CREW

LONDON, May 9, (Associated Press.)—To save the crew of a disabled British submarine, fast in the mud in thirty-eight feet of water, Commander Francis Herbert Heavingham Goodhart gave up his life when he permited himself to be blown from the conning tower in an attempt to reach the surface. As Commander Goodhart entered the conning tower with the senior officer a small tin cylinder containing instructions for rescuers was fastened to his belt, and the commander's last words were:

"If I don't get up, the cylinder will."

Air at high pressure had been forced into the conning tower, and the lid opened. Taking a deep breath, Commander Goodhart was shot upward, but he struck a portion of the superstructure and was killed.

The senior officer, who had intended to remain in the submarine, was forced from the tower by the air pressure and reached the surface safely. The remainder of the crew was rescued soon afterward.

A posthumous reward of the Albert Medal for gallantry in saving life at sea has been conferred on Commander Goodhart, who also distinguished himself early in the war in the engagement in Heligoland Bight.

U-BOATS RENEW WAR ON NORWEGIANS

Sinking All Fishing Boats They Meet and Shelling Without Warning.

FIRING ON LIFEBOATS, TOO

Passengers on a Russian Mail Boat Killed, Despite Brest-Litovsk So-Called Peace.

CHRISTIANIA, May 20, (Associated Press.)—German submarines again have started unrestricted warfare on Norwegian fishing boats in the Arctic Ocean north and east of the Norwegian coast. Fishermen saved from sunken vessels and landed at Hammerfest report that the commander of a U-boat stated that all vessels met by him would be sunk. Norwegian ships, especially, would be destroyed, because, he said, the Norwegians were sending fish oil and seal oil to England. This, however, is contrary to the truth, as the export of oils is forbidden, and Germany knows it.

The U-boats are said to shell vessels without warning, and, according to the survivors, direct a fire against lifeboats.

Russian fishing boats and a Russian mail steamer from Vardö, eastward bound and crowded with passengers, were also shelled. Eight persons, among them a Postmaster and his assistant, were killed on the deck of the steamer. Many others were hurt after taking to the boats.

When the commander of the German submarine was told that Russia was at peace with Germany he answered that he acted as it suited him to do. The U-boat measured 180 feet in length, and surprise is expressed in shipping circles that it can carry enough oil for a cruise so far up the Norwegian coast.

Great bitterness has been caused among the Norwegian population by the action of the submarines, as Germany gets a large part of the fish caught by the Norwegians. The newspapers suggest that fishermen stop selling their catch to Germany.

The Aftonposten says that twenty-two men have been brought to Vaida Bay from one of the fishing boats sunk in the Arctic by the German submarines. Great anxiety is felt for forty other fishing boats carrying crews totaling 500. It is known that at least five boats have already been sent to the bottom.

Sunk Five Ships in the Arctic.

COPENHAGEN, May 20.—German submarines have sunk five Norwegian ships in the Arctic, according to advices received here. They also shelled a Russian mail steamer, killing ten persons.

Saks-Made Summer

Apparel for Chauffeurs

¶ Our Summer Suits for chauffeurs are the most individual in town. But that is not their only feature—they are so tailored as to insure lengthy service, and to retain their fine lines as long as they are of service.

¶ The woolens in which the various models are shown were selected not only because they were stylish, but mainly because of their wearing qualities. Add to this the Saks standard of tailoring, and it means that no suits for chauffeurs are as serviceable as those which bear the Saks label—

America Has Produced No Finer Suits for Men Than Those Now To Be Seen at Saks

In their grace and beauty of line they resemble the coveted work of a finished artist. In their tailoring they exhibit the skill of craftsmen who for years have been trained to work for perfection, rather than to minimize time of production—to let brain work their nimble fingers rather than brawn. Our present showing of suits is the largest we ever assembled. The range of choice in both models and patterns is phenomenal. The individuality of the various styles gives to them all the exclusiveness of the highest-priced to-order productions. Just glance at what we offer at these three prices:

At $35

Forty-five distinct styles—Two and three button single and double breasters with notched or peak lapels, and every kind of pocket. Tailored in Woolens and patterns that are certainly unusual, taking in everything from Checks to plain Blues.

At $40

Twenty-two different styles, in snappy narrow shoulder military effects, with soft rolling lapels and patch, flap or slash pockets. They have all the elegance of make and finish expected in to-order suits at double the price. Shown in patterns that only the artist at the loom could weave.

At $45

Fifteen exclusive styles—English in effect, featuring a wealth of original style treatments in pockets and lapels. The patterns are not only rare in their conception, but are shown in the richest colorings seen in many a season. Splendid selection, for men of every age and temperament.

BRAVERY OF NEGROES TOLD BY PERSHING

WOUNDED, BUT BATTLED ON

Commander's Communique Also Records the Death of Major Lufbery in Action.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—General Pershing's communiqué today brought its best story, so far, of the valor and sacrifice of Americans in fighting in planes. It also gave eloquent testimony to the spirit of democracy that knows no race nor color.

It told of the death in action of Major Raoul Lufbery, first ace of the flying corps, and also of the heroic fight of two American negro soldiers, who withstood a raiding party of twenty Germans and saved their comrades from surprise.

General Pershing also reported that in this "quiet day" on the front two German airplanes were brought down by American aviators.

The communiqué reads:

Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces, May 19, 1918.

Section A—Aside from the activity of air forces on both sides, the day was quiet at all points occupied by our troops. Our aviators brought down two hostile machines.

Section B—Reports in hand show a notable instance of bravery and devotion shown by two soldiers of an American colored regiment operating in a French sector. Before daylight on May 15, Private Henry Johnson and Private Roberts, while on sentry duty at some distance from one another, were attacked by a German raiding party, estimated at twenty men, who advanced in two groups, attacking at once from flank and rear.

Both men fought bravely in hand-to-hand encounters, one resorting to the use of a bolo knife after his rifle jammed and further fighting with bayonet and butt became impossible. There is evidence that at least one, and probably a second, German was severely cut. A third is known to have been shot.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the colored sentries were first attacked and continued fighting after receiving wounds, and despite the use of grenades by a superior force. They should be given credit for preventing, by their bravery, the capture of any of our men. Three of our men were wounded, two by grenades. All are recovering and the wounds in two cases are slight.

Major Lufbery was killed in flight during which he had been in combat. He was seen to fall from his machine, which itself fell a short distance from him. He was possibly wounded or dead before he fell. Earlier reports stated that he was at the time engaged in a long running fight and was flying upside down at 2,000 feet.

Last night one of our aviators engaged two German planes and brought down one in the vicinity of Apremont.

This morning Lieutenant Douglass Campbell, flying at 4,500 meters, brought down a hostile biplane in the vicinity of Flirey. The hostile plane fell within our lines.

On May 18 a descendant of one of the French officers who served with the American Revolutionary Forces, presented in the name of the descendants of all such officers, a stand of national and regimental colors to two regiments of a newly-arrived American division. These flags bore the inscription:

From the Sons of the French Champion for American Liberty to the American Champions for France and Humanity.

Unofficial dispatches from France indicate that the two negro soldiers who fought so gallantly against twenty Germans are members of the regiment recruited in this State and commanded by Colonel William Hayward, formerly a Public Service Commissioner for this district.

Of the two men Johnson came originally from Albany and Roberts from Trenton, N. J., being the son of a clergyman in the New Jersey city.

The encounter in which they took part is said to have taken place on the front west of Verdun, in the region north of Ste. Menehould.

AMERICAN CAPTIVES NAMED.

Addresses of Ten Held in German Camps Are Announced.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Names of ten Americans held in German prison camps, as received today by the War Department through the Spanish Embassy at Berlin and the American Legation at Berne, follow:

CAMP AACHEN—Seaman Jaap de la Haron, place of capture and address not given.

CAMP LANDSHUT—Sergeant Herschel Mackee, captured at Chateau-Salin, Feb. 4, 1918; 1,128 West Washington Street, Indianapolis, Ind. (Later information from American Minister Stovall at Berne, Switzerland, indicates that Sergeant Mackee has been transferred to prison camp at Giessen.)

TUCHEL, WEST PRUSSIA — Private Christian Sorensen, Company K, 16th United States Infantry, Verone, Mont.; captured in Lorraine on Feb. 6, 1918.

Seven of the prisoners—Olsen, Richardsen, Moore, Blom, Buckard, Trudgett, and Colstad—were taken from vessels sunk last Fall by the German auxiliary cruiser Wolf, operating as a sea raider. The Wolf returned to a German port late in February, after fifteen months in the Atlantic, Indian, and South Pacific Oceans, with more than 400 members of crews of sunken ships.

Full particulars regarding the sending of mail to the prisoners may be obtained from the Adjutant General of the army.

The address 104 Water Street, given by Captain John Arnold Blom, a naturalized Russian; Chief Mate Edward Moore, a native of Nova Scotia, and Second Mate Colstadt, is an outfitting store where they bought clothing for the voyage. They gave the address in Water Street in case of any mail arriving after the departure of the ship.

Captain Blom sent a card from the prison camp which was received last week, stating that he and his companions were quite safe and sending his regards to all friends in New York. Three of the three was married.

WILSON PROCLAIMS NEW DRAFT JUNE 5

BAKER TELLS OF PROGRAM

800,000 Added to Army Available—Quarterly Enrollments Likely Hereafter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson today signed the new Selective Draft bill and issued the necessary proclamation designating June 5 as the day when all young men who have reached the age of 21 years since June 5, 1917, shall register for military service. Provost Marshal General Crowder immediately afterward began making preparations for the new enrollment.

Instead of using the election machinery, as was done last year, General Crowder will call on the local draft boards to conduct the registration. He believes that their experience during the last year has qualified them to handle the registration economically and effectively. Under the new law it will be necessary that on June 5 every young man in the United States who has reached the age of 21 since June 5, 1917, or who will reach that age on or before June 5, 1918, shall register. Exceptions are made in the cases of men already in the naval or military service.

"All the men who registered on June 5, last year," said Secretary Baker, "have now been segregated into five classes in the relative order of their availability for military service. The new law provides that the 21-year-old men registered on June 5 of this year shall be placed at the bottom of the list in the several classes to which they are assigned, and as a result none of the new registrants will be called for military service until the list of Class 1 men who registered on June 5 of last year is exhausted. It will mean, however, that the men registered this year who are placed in Class 1 will be called before any men in Class 2 are called, regardless of the date of registration.

"Detailed instructions covering the registration will be issued later, but meanwhile newspapers and the local boards are being requested to give the widest possible publicity to the date of registration in order that all boys reaching 21 will know what is expected of them. No difficulty of any kind is now anticipated, but penalties have been provided by Congress for boys who fail to register.

OUR FORCES GROW RAPIDLY.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 20, (via Ottawa.)—Parts of Northern France have become within a short period thickly populated with American fighting troops, and great American training camps and depots are springing up where two months ago only British khaki was normally seen.

The outstanding impression of American organization may be summed up in one word—thoroughness. One is conscious at every turn of the resolve of the Americans to fight until victory is achieved.

Intensified training is being tirelessly carried out in combination with the British and the French. Large formations are steadily being drafted to augment the Americans already in the fighting line, and their places are immediately taken by still larger numbers.

RANK OF GENERAL FOR BLISS AND MARCH

Former Gets Brevet Title for Services Abroad—Latter Becomes Chief of Staff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson today sent to the Senate the nominations of Major General Peyton C. March to be Chief of the General Staff with the rank of General, and of General Tasker H. Bliss to be a full General by brevet.

General Bliss has been Chief of Staff and Major Gen. March, since his return from France, has been serving only as acting Chief. General Bliss has for some weeks been the American representative at the Versailles Conference. He will continue to be the representative of the Government there, receiving the rank of full General by brevet in recognition of the services he has rendered.

Under present law there can be only two Generals in the army other than those by brevet. The Chief of Staff is ex officio a full General and the commander of the American forces abroad is a full General. Consequently, so long as General Bliss was Chief of Staff it was impossible for the President to confer the rank of General on March by making him Chief of Staff. By promoting General Bliss to be a General by brevet the President was able to promote March.

There are now no Lieutenant Generals in the active army of the United States, but as soon as General Pershing recommends the formation of American Army Corps abroad it will be necessary to promote some Major Generals to the rank of Lieutenant General to command these corps.

KILLED BY DRAFT EVADER.

Sheriff Slain in Attempt to Arrest Man Who Fled to Montana.

FALLON, Nev., May 19.—Sheriff Mark L. Wildes of Churchill County was killed by Paul Walters, a rancher whom he had arrested today for evading the draft. Walters, early in April, when called for service, armed himself and took to the mountains. Sheriff Wildes and a deputy started two days ago in search of him and late today came upon the fugitive in the hills.

While being handcuffed Walters snatched the Sheriff's revolver and shot him three times in the stomach and then escaped into the hills again. Several posses have gone in search of Walters.

HARVARD GRADUATE KILLED.

Lieut. W. K. B. Emerson, Jr., of Rye, Met Death in Action.

Mr. and Mrs. William K. B. Emerson of Rye, N. Y., received a telegram from Adjt. Gen. McCain yesterday announcing that their son, Lieutenant William K. B. Emerson, Jr., had been killed in action on May 14. Lieutenant Emerson was of the Field Artillery. He was a member of the American Ambulance Corps, which served in France prior to this country's entrance into the war. The entire Harvard unit, with which he was connected, was cited by the French for bravery under fire.

After six months in the ambulance service, Lieutenant Emerson returned to the United States and resumed his course at Harvard. He was graduated in June, 1916. For a second time he went to France in that year as a member of the Ambulance Corps. Subsequently he served with the British in the Near East. In September of last year Lieutenant Emerson was relieved of duty with the Ambulance Corps and commissioned a second lieutenant in the artillery under General Pershing. Lieutenant Rupert Emerson, U. S. N., was a brother of the late officer.

Mrs. James T. Lowe of Dover, N. J., was informed by the War Department yesterday that her brother, George McKenna of the Aviation Corps in France, had died in France. McKenna enlisted in the Signal Corps last November a month after his marriage to Miss Anna Moore of Far Hills, N. J.

Private Michael J. Provenzano of 845 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn, reported severely wounded in yesterday's list from General Pershing, is in the regular engineers. He is 20 years old and has a brother in the Field Artillery, who is also in France.

ROYERSFORD, Penn., May 20.—Captain Harris D. Buckwalter, reported killed in action in France, was the son of Howard Buckwalter, an attaché of a Norristown, Penn., court. He was 28 years old. The Captain enlisted when this country entered the war. After graduating from the Royersford High School he entered State College, where he studied civil engineering. On completing his course he joined the forces of the State Highway Commission.

CAN TAX PROFITS SINCE 1909

Supreme Court Issues Ruling on Excise Tariff Law.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—In an opinion today growing out of the collection of taxes under the Corporation Excise Tax act of 1909, the Supreme Court held that only profits accrued since that act became effective are taxable under its provisions. Just how the taxable part is to be separated from that previously received "is a matter of some nicety," Justice Pitney conceded in rendering the decision.

The opinion was delivered in connection with a number of cases appealed to determine just what constituted excise profits under the act growing out of the sale after the law went into effect of stock which had been purchased previously, and also just how the term "income" affects mining and lumber industries obtained prior to the law's enactment but disposed of afterwards.

Red Cross in Emergency

The Red Cross has many aspects. In one view, it is the American people's organized and world-wide preparation against calamity.

It acts in emergency, is supported by the people, is manned by those trained to fight disaster. It is supported by voluntary contributions; its operations cover the whole field of human misfortune.

Disaster comes unheralded; cyclones, tornadoes, earthquakes, floods, explosions, conflagrations, torpedoes, even battles and invasions, give little warning, or none.

To meet emergency, these things are necessary: organization, resources, equipment, expert knowledge, zeal, mobility, and speed.

The American Red Cross is the main reliance of our own Government and co-operates with foreign governments and foreign societies in the work of relief everywhere.

The Italian Disaster

Never in its history has the American Red Cross more graphically proven its mobility and efficiency than when it went to meet and care for the half million or more refugees who were driven down from the mountains of northern Italy by the Austrian invaders in October of last year.

The "Italian situation" was flashed on the world overnight. For two years the Italian Army had been slowly making its way against the Austrian. In two days all it had accomplished was undone. During those two days not only was Italy's military progress reversed, but six hundred thousand of her women and children and old men were forced to flee before Mackensen's force.

If ever there was an emergency to be met it was when the refugees began to stream down the mountains in northern Italy. From Washington there was flashed to Rome assurances of aid, backed by authority to Ambassador Page to draw on the Red Cross for immediate funds. Every consular agent was furnished with Red Cross funds to meet the emergency quickly; every Red Cross agent was set to work.

Food and clothing for hundreds of thousands had to be bought. The Italian hospital service had been wrecked by the enemy and had to be restored. Transportation service had to be provided and homes created for the refugees.

Babies were being born and were dying by the roadside. Refugees by the hundreds of thousands were hungry, athirst and ill. Here was a situation that called for speed above all else. Delay meant death and suffering to thousands.

The first news of the Italian military disaster and its aftermath of misery, reached Paris headquarters of the American Red Cross in the middle of an October afternoon. In the face of almost insurmountable obstacles, a Red Cross train loaded with food, clothing, ether, and other supplies was made ready immediately. It was placed in charge of a Red Cross agent with instructions to get to Rome—no matter how, but get there. It was started, cut in two by accident, coupled together, started again, and reached Rome in just one quarter of the war-time schedule.

A comprehensive Red Cross organization was quickly woven together. Red Cross supplies began to accumulate in needed centers. The stream of refugees flowed unabating to the South. One afternoon, on two hours' notice, preparations were made to feed twelve thousand refugees at the Portonaccio Station.

Hundreds of thousands had been dislodged from their homes. To have cared for this unhoused population would have taxed the resources of any country. But, in addition, Italy had to salvage its army and turn back an invasion with its remaining organized force.

It was to this emergency that the Red Cross brought its mobile machinery and financial aid. In this work the American note was struck by the Red Cross—it gave assurance to Italy that in resisting invasion and getting under her heavy load of civil distress, the American people were with her.

In his address at the opening of Parliament early in December, the Italian Premier, Baron Sonnino, said, "Our soul is stirred again with appreciation and admiration for the magnificent dash with which the American Red Cross has brought us powerful aid in our recent misfortune. We attribute great value to the co-operation which will be given us against the common enemy by the prodigious activity and by the exuberant and consistent force which are peculiar to the American people."

The Antilles

When the Germans torpedoed the Antilles last October, killing sixty-seven men, one hundred and seventy Americans with but a few minutes to leave the sinking transport, floated, half clad, in life boats and rafts, in icy water for hours. They finally reached a port in France. Co-operating with the governmental authorities, the Red Cross rushed to the port, fed the survivors, clothed them, hurried the worst sufferers to the hospitals, and supplied them with money to be repaid when possible. Had the members of their own families met them ashore, these American boys could not have had more solicitous care; and the American Red Cross, thinking always of the family as well as of the direct sufferer, cabled their condition to their families in this country.

The Tuscania

Fresh in the memory of all is the sinking of the Tuscania by the Germans in February. The American soldiers and sailors who survived the disaster were aided in every possible way by the American Red Cross and the British Red Cross from the time they landed in Ireland. The food, the clothing, the new uniforms, the loans of money, and especially the word to the folks at home sent by the Red Cross—the story has been told many times.

The Explosion at Halifax

On December 6, 1917, the city was wrecked by the detonation of unnumbered tons of high explosives in the harbor. Ten million dollars' worth of property was destroyed. A city of wounded and blinded cried for help.

A member of the American Red Cross, trained in emergency relief, was on the scene when it happened. He wired Washington, and on the afternoon of the day the explosion occurred, the American Red Cross perfected its emergency organization and its relief work was started.

America through its Red Cross had again given evidence to Canada that her trials are our trials and earned the gratitude of that great people beside whom we are now fighting the fight for freedom.

The Guatemala Earthquake

In less than three weeks after the Halifax disaster an earthquake wrecked Guatemala City—virtually erasing it from the map. The Secretary of State, himself a member of the Central Committee of the Red Cross, cabled the American Minister at Guatemala offering the services of the American Red Cross, at the same time authorizing him to draw on that organization for funds for immediate needs.

Relief moves followed with rapidity. A steamship with Red Cross supplies sailed from New Orleans at once; $121,000 worth of supplies were shipped by the Red Cross from the Canal Zone.

A commission of American Red Cross experts in relief was dispatched and the work of restoration has been going on as only skilled workers can carry it on.

The Floods of Tien-Tsin, China

In the fall of 1917, 12,000 square miles of territory in China were inundated, one million people were made homeless and property to the value of $100,000,000 destroyed. The action taken by the Red Cross to assist in the relief of a situation with which the Chinese Government alone was unable to cope gave a notable example of the manner in which the Red Cross can meet an emergency even at the other end of the world.

The American Red Cross was prepared with experience and men even in that far field to help cope with the disaster.

The German Attack in March, 1918

When the Germans after a full winter's preparation launched the greatest of all attacks against the British in March of this year, the British retired over a considerable area, forcing the civil population again to evacuate this stricken soil.

The papers of March 27th told the story of the Red Cross motor service in France waking the inhabitants in the early hours of Monday morning, March 25th, transporting and feeding them and providing food and shelter for them in Paris.

Again the capacity to meet the emergency.

As one looks back over the recent years there is a chain of record of how the American Red Cross rose to the occasion. The San Francisco earthquake, the famine in Russia in 1906, the Messina earthquake, the Cherry Mine disaster, the inundation of Paris in 1910, the famine in China in the same year, the Titanic disaster, the Mississippi and Ohio floods in 1913, the Eastland disaster in 1915 and now the daily record of emergency met by the Red Cross in Roumania, Russia, Greece, Serbia, Italy, Belgium, France and the United States in this greatest catastrophe of all time.

The Red Cross does move quickly and effectively. It is America's helping hand to the nations of the earth in their troubles.

HARDEN ASSAILS RUMANIA PEACE

German Publicist Likens It to the Carrying Out of Shylock's Bargain.

SCORN FOR DR. KUEHLMANN

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, May 20. — Maximilian Harden would appear to be going about the right way to secure suppression of his paper, Die Zukunft, again. In the latest number he pours angry scorn and indignant criticism on the Rumanian peace in general and on Kühlmann, the German Foreign Minister, in particular. He draws a telling and correct picture of the outrageous exploitation to which Rumania had to submit, and calls it childishness to believe the treaty creates any final or just state of affairs.

Robbed of her chief port, defeated only by Russia's falling away till a period to be arranged later, "to suffer, feed, clothe, and pay foreign army divisions on her soil," having to submit to requisitions of corn, oil, cattle, &c., she told the conqueror graciously that she "renounces compensation for war expenses." On this load of oppressive requirements, says Harden, "the new diplomacy sticks the sentence, 'the contracting parties renounce all compensation for war costs.'"

Rumania, too, has to compensate neutrals for all damages sustained by the war. She herself, alone, is uncompensated. Harden doubts if Rumania can breathe under such a load, but the peace dictators do not ask that. The peace-without-annexations-and-indemnities treaty is "genuine and von Kühlmann," and Harden likens it to the carrying out of Shylock's bargain.

"It is remarkable and edifying," he goes on, "that our alleged democrats thought that in the treaty only the preservation of the dynasty was blameworthy, because that Germanic branch planted in the east is hostile to Germany. It will most likely be so under the intolerable conditions of the new treaty. It will certainly only be strengthened by the coarse onslaught from without."

Harden rails angrily at "those who, without bounds, save themselves out of the needs of others. Brave and strong only is he who sets his teeth and takes his own burdens on his own shoulders, and with noble pride and moral consciousness declares, 'I will not permit that the world become worse and more a waste on my account.' So long as German troops are in Wallachia and Moldavia, little grumbling will be heard; but no Rumanian will ever forget what has been done to his country, and what could under the treaty be done."

Harden then turns savagely on Austria for wishing to confine Serbia, as it were, in a cage, because the Dual Monarchy could not endure Serbia on the Adriatic. He terms Czernin a Macchiavelli and super-Talleyrand, and expresses his despair regarding the future, "if Slavdom, with no port for modern requirements, is to be kept under the protection of the German military authority of the Kalifat of Berlin."

The western prospects please him no better.

"In the west," he says, "we are perhaps to have Flanders, with Brussels as capital, and Antwerp as chief port, and including the region of Lille and Valenciennes, 'once treacherously stolen by France.' Out of such a super-Bonapartian world yoke, how can lasting peace come?"

For Kühlmann, Harden has nothing but downright scorn and loathing. This man, he says, "returned from the perfumes of the East and was received like a victor by the Chancellor, four Ministers, three Under Secretaries, and a star choir of bearers of honors—a ceremonial display which no land on earth has yet seen and a mockery which must affront every earnest person."

URGES WILSON TO LEAD IN GIVING RUSSIA AID

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 21.—The Daily Chronicle in an editorial says:

"President Wilson said on Saturday, 'I intend to stand by Russia as well as by France.' The context shows that in making this admirable declaration he was thinking primarily of the terms on which the war might be ended, and there we are entirely at one with him. His clear perception that the future of Europe cannot be dissociated from that of Eastern Europe is a great source of wisdom and strength to the alliance, but it would be a mistake for the Allies to act as if the Russian problem could be deferred until the peace conference and the temporary Germanization of Russia could be tolerated in view of its ultimately being upset.

"The danger is, that if we tolerate indefinitely the process by which Germany is extending her influence over the distracted Eastern populations she may acquire a footing there which cannot in substance be taken away from her. At present the only alternatives before those populations are German despotism or intolerable native disorder with bloodshed, pillage, famine, and eventual pestilence as its accompaniments.

"While the enemy come in as conquerors, they also come in to an appreciable extent as deliverers. The Allies ought to be doing something to save the Russians, Ukrainians, and other nationalities from this hideous dilemma, and at present they are doing nothing.

"We would appeal especially to President Wilson to consider this aspect of the problem and see whether in concert with the rest of the Allies he cannot sanction a more active and effective policy.

"The elementary conditions which must be satisfied are fairly plain. We must act so as to get the bulk of stable opinion in Russia favorable and not hostile to our intervention, but we must intervene with armed forces. Only around such a nucleus of discipline and order as foreign troops alone can supply will the forces of recovery and reconstruction in Russia be able to rally. If the Allies do not supply such a nucleus for a rally in a democratic sense, the Germans will supply one.

"Indeed, they are supplying one already for a rally in the sense of reaction. The only large armed force which the Allies have available for this purpose is the Japanese Army.

"It is not an ideal instrument, because it cannot avoid encountering a certain element of race prejudice in Russia, but it enjoys certain advantages, those of geography and those of very high organization and discipline, and we believe that if confidence were placed in it, it would prove it to be thoroughly merited.

"We believe, too, that if its intervention were placed unequivocally upon the plane of disinterested action for which the alliance stood sponsor, reluctance to accept it in Russia would be incalculably less today than it would have been, even when it was originally mooted.

"The matter is urgent and time presses. Already we see the gallant Georgian nation in process of being squeezed into surrender between German pressure from the Crimea and Turkish pressure from Armenia. Yet Georgia is one of the gates to middle Asia, and the effect of such a surrender would be very far-reaching, indeed. We venture to appeal, therefore, to Mr. Wilson to put himself without delay at the head of a more positive allied policy in Russia."

RUSSIA MUST TAKE BREATH.

Recuperation Necessary Before She Can Organize a New Army.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—From a series of belated telegrams from Arthur Ransome in Moscow, some of them dating back to April 23, the following is extracted:

"Trotzky, in the evening of April 22, made a report to the Central Executive Committee on the subject of the new Russian Army. He faced the dangerous criticism of those who oppose the employment of officers, &c., of the old army, who, he said, were in the same category as the guns, shells, telegraphs, and other material possessions that must be taken over. They represent knowledge and experience which are just as valuable as powder and must be used, like powder, with proper precautions.

"Conscription, though now impossible, would eventually be necessary. For eight weeks in the year workers of military age must give up twelve hours weekly for training, after which, in case of necessity, they must be ready to be called to the colors.

Trotzky's reference to the need that volunteers should definitely bind themselves to serve for at least six months best illustrates the character of the difficulties ahead. If the Soviet is hurried or tricked into war prematurely, the new army will be destroyed before it is created.

"Lenine's views on the tasks of the moment, as explained in a speech to the Central Executive and in an article in the Svesza, may briefly be summarized as follows: He recognizes the instability of the present peace and admits that 'the social revolution in other countries hangs fire.' Russia must put her whole strength into using her breathing space to cure the wounds of war and for an economic revival, without which an increase of her defensive power is unthinkable. The immediate task is not to continue the expropriation of capital, but to prove that the working classes can make good use of what they have already taken. This is not a stoppage of the revolution but a definite stage on the way to a more complete victory."

Exasperation at the continued advance of the Germans beyond the Ukraine positions is growing. German assistance in Finland now also is definitely directed against the Soviet régime. General Mannerheim, commander of the White Guards, has issued a proclamation, in the course of which he bluntly declares that at the 'request of the Finnish Government detachments of victorious and powerful Germany landed in Finland in order to help us drive out the Bolshevist scoundrels.' He further expresses the hope that the new brotherhood of arms may strengthen Finland's long-standing friendship for Germany.

"Circumstances like these are calculated to make the Russians desire help from the Allies against Germany. In fact, the time is rapidly coming when the Soviet Government will have to choose as to whose help it would accept. It is therefore most unfortunate that the Allies should be doing their best to insure that it should not accept help from them.

"As an illustration of this deplorable state of affairs it may be mentioned that the Chinese are reported to give as a reason for not putting a stop to the raiding activities of the Cossack officer Semenoff the fact that the Allies have not recognized the Soviet régime in Russia, and that the Chinese authorities therefore have no reason for believing Semenoff is representing any other but the official Government of Russia as recognized by the Allies."

FINLAND HAS DICTATOR.

Judge Svinhufvud Nominated Temporarily by the Diet.

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—Judge Svinhufvud has been nominated temporary Dictator by the Finnish Diet.

Judge Svinhufvud was formerly President of the Finnish Diet, being re-elected to that office on four occasions. In 1910 he defied the Russian Government and refused to submit to the Finnish Diet two imperial measures. He was removed from the Presidency on Feb. 3, 1913, and later was deported to Siberia by the Russian Government. His deportation aroused the Finns, who in 1915 demanded his return. He was liberated from his imprisonment in 1917 and returned to Finland. During the invasion of Finland by the Germans he was active in Helsingfors, and during the fighting in that city made his escape and was later reported in Berlin.

MOSCOW, May 17. (Associated Press.)—The city of Abo, Finland, has been captured by the Germans, who have taken prisoners the Russians found there.

A vigorous protest against the demand of the German commander at Helsingfors that the Germans take charge of the fortifications, properties, and stores in that city has been made by M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister. He points out that, in accordance with the peace treaty of Brest-Litovsk, the war materials and supplies belonging to Russia at Helsingfors were to remain in Russian control. It is reported that the stores at Helsingfors are valued at 150,000,000 rubles.

Abo is a city and seaport which until 1819 was the capital of Finland. It was formerly the seat of a university which was removed to Helsingfors in 1827. The city is located near the mouth of the Aurajoki River, which flows into the Gulf of Bothnia. Abo is a manufacturing and shipbuilding centre of some importance.

UKRAINIANS BURN FOOD.

LONDON, May 20.—The ruthless methods of the Germans in attempting to gather foodstuffs in the Ukraine are meeting with bitter opposition from the exasperated populace, according to a Russian Government wireless message received here. District assemblies throughout the Ukraine decided to burn all bread and other provisions. The landowners were declared to be outcasts.

STILL FAR APART ON WAR INQUIRY

Senators Fail to Reach a Compromise and a Vote Is Scheduled for Tomorrow.

NEITHER SIDE CONFIDENT

Lineup Expected to be Close—Chicago Branch and Kelly Field Involved in Aircraft Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Efforts of Senators today to come to a compromise on the Chamberlain resolution, authorizing the Military Affairs Committee to proceed with its inquiry into aircraft, ordance, and the Quartermaster General's Department, came to nought. After a day of skirmishing in the Senate lobby, it appeared that the advocates of the resolution and its opponents were far from agreement.

"We're further apart than ever," was the way Senator McKellar, sponsor for the resolution, put it. Senator McKellar, as a member of the Audit and Control Committee, whose majority reported the resolution favorably last week, explained that its advocates insisted that it be adopted with aircraft, ordnance, and the Quartermaster General's Department included, while it seemed that its opponents were intent on following the advice of the President and voting against it in its entirety.

Just before the Senate recessed for the day it reached the Chamberlain resolution in its place on the calendar. Senator McKellar moved that the resolution go over for a vote on Wednesday. Although he did not say so, the reason was that the advocates of the resolution had not mustered strength to put it through. At the same time, the opposing forces were not sure that they had votes enough to defeat it.

Will Suspend the Debate.

Senator Wadsworth wanted to know if the resolution would lie over without debate, if consent were given to put it on the calendar for Wednesday. He explained that members of the Military Affairs Committee intended going on an inspection trip to the ordnance proving grounds at Aberdeen, Md., and would be away over tomorrow. Senator McKellar assured him that he would endeavor to prevent debate in the meantime. Senator Thompson, Chairman of the Audit Committee, who is leading the opposition to the resolution, said the arrangement would be satisfactory to him. So the debate was put off until Wednesday.

Senator Hitchcock of the Military Affairs Committee drafted an amendment to the resolution which will be voted upon Wednesday, to provide authority to "incur necessary traveling expenses and to employ assistants," and to authorize the Military Affairs Committee to sit during the forthcoming recess of Congress. This amendment will be fought by the opponents of the resolution, who are against allowing any further funds to the Military Affairs Committee or giving it authority to sit during recess.

The vote on Wednesday, as the situation stands, will resolve itself into a test of support of the President in his attitude, as expressed in his letter to Senator Thomas, against passing the Chamberlain resolution in any form. Upon this issue the Administration Senators were lining up today, prepared, almost to a man, to vote against the resolution. They take literally the expression of the President that a vote for the resolution would be interpreted as a "want of confidence in the Administration."

Close Vote Predicted.

It was impossible today to find an Administration Senator who was willing to say that he would vote for the resolution, even as amended and with the "conduct of the war" phrase eliminated. Senators Chamberlain and Hitchcock, members of the Military Affairs Committee, were the only Democrats who were counted on as certain to vote for it, although Senator Reed, another member of the committee, was thought to be in favor of it. He was away from the Capitol today. One or two more Democrats might be mustered for its support, but that, according to the calculation of proponents of the resolution, encompassed the full force of Democratic support.

Not all the Republican Senators will vote for the resolution. Senators Warren, Page, and Nelson, who have voted consistently for Administration measures, are put down as against it. Senators Borah and Fall are also understood to be opposed to it.

Although a definite lineup was not hazarded by Senatorial leaders, they agreed that the vote would be close. Its opponents declared they would surely defeat the resolution, while its advocates declined to prophesy as to the outcome.

Senator Chamberlain was entirely willing, he said, for the Senate to make it a test vote upon sentiment for a continuation of the war inquiry. But he would not concede the President's interpretation that a vote for the resolution meant lack of confidence in the Administration in the conduct of the war.

PLAN COURTS-MARTIAL FOR AIRCRAFT NEGLECT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Coincident with the publication of an order by President Wilson for a reorganization of the military aircraft administration under the statutory authority contained in the Overman Co-ordination act, it became known today that definite steps that might lead to trials by court-martial in connection with the aircraft situation were in contemplation. Members of the Senate and the House have been informed of evidence gathered, and it is their understanding that action by the military authorities will be taken shortly.

The particular case of which information has been imparted to Congressmen relates to a branch of the military aircraft administration in Chicago. Investigation has been made, and reports are at hand which would form the basis of the action reported to be under contemplation. This evidence, it is said, indicates that the management of this particular branch was virtually left by the responsible officers in the hands of subordinates, or a subordinate, and that affairs were so carried on that losses amounting to about $50,000 were incurred. It is alleged that a system was followed whereby enlisted men attached to this branch were allotted extra pay to which they were not entitled, and that proper attention was not given to carrying out the work of aircraft production for which the branch was responsible.

Another feature of the aircraft situation is under investigation by Charles E. Hughes, special assistant to the Attorney General in the legal inquiry into the charges made by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, that graft, inefficiency, and pro-German influence have been responsible for the failure to carry out the aircraft production program. This relates to conditions at the military aviation station at Kelly Field, Texas. It is supposed that much of the evidence in this particular case was furnished by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, as members of that committee are understood to be familiar with the charges and evidence which are being considered at the Department of Justice. A conference which took place Saturday between Mr. Hughes and Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the committee, is believed to have related to the Kelly Field case.

According to the allegations forming the basis for the consideration being given to the matter at the Department of Justice, about 300 practice planes at Kelly Field were ruined through carelessness. These planes were stored at the field, but, it is alleged, were so neglected that their motors have become useless, causing a loss of no less than $600,000.

Announcement was made by the War Department today that three officers of the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps had been detached from their duties and directed to co-operate with the Attorney General in the aircraft inquiry. Two of these officers were named by Mr. Borglum as having interfered with his work of investigating the military aircraft situation. The announcement was in this form:

"The Secretary of War, through the Chief of Staff, today sent to the Adjutant General the following memorandum:

"'The Secretary of War directs the issue of the necessary orders detaching Colonels S. D. Waldon, R. L. Montgomery and Edward A. Deeds from their present duties in connection with aviation and directing them to report to the Attorney General for such co-operation and assistance as they can render in the aviation investigation with which the Department of Justice has been charged.'"

The two officers against whom Mr. Borglum complained are Colonels Montgomery and Deeds. Both immediately asked for the appointment of a military court of inquiry to investigate Mr. Borglum's allegations, but the Secretary of War declined to grant the request, on the ground that the Department of Justice was making an investigation, by direction of the President, into the charges affecting aircraft production and the Senate Committee on Military Affairs was contemplating another inquary on the same subject.

TAKE MISS RANGER IN FAKE WILL CASE

Sister Pleads Not Guilty to Conspiracy to Put Aside Artist's Will.

The unsuccessful legal effort made by Miss Edith F. Ranger to show that her brother, Henry W. Ranger, the American artist, who died on Nov. 6, 1917, had left a later will than the one he made on Jan. 21, 1914, in which he provided that his estate of more than $250,000 should go to the National Academy of Design, resulted in her arrest yesterday by order of the District Attorney on charges of conspiracy and subornation of perjury.

A few minutes after Miss Ranger's attorney, Theodore F. Van Dorn of 141 Broadway, had telephoned to the home of his client at 311 West Fifty-fifth Street, notifying her of her probable arrest, Detective Cunniff of the District Attorney's staff served the warrant. Miss Ranger was permitted to go with her attorney and surrender herself.

Miss Ranger was arraigned before Judge Crain in General Sessions. She pleaded not guilty and was released in bail of $6,000 offered by a surety company. The date of the trial was not determined. Two other defendants indicted with Miss Ranger have not been arrested.

WILSON RECASTS AVIATION SERVICE

RYAN AND KENLY IN CHARGE

President Acts Under the Overman Law to Bring About Improvement in the Situation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Wilson today took what he regards as definite action toward the improvement of the army aircraft program when he issued a Presidential order stripping the Chief Signal Officer of the army, Major Gen. George O. Squier, of every function pertaining to aircraft and aviation. It was the first action taken under the President's new powers to reorganize the executive government.

These functions were transferred to two new offices—the Bureau of Military Aeronautics and the Bureau of Aircraft Production—created directly under the Secretary of War. All employes and officers of the Signal Corps, as well as all appropriations, having to do with aviation are transferred to one or the other of these bureaus.

The President's action was taken under the authority of consolidation and coordination vested in him by the Overman bill when that measure was today signed by him and became a law. But the Presidential order also shows that the President felt that as Commander in Chief of the army, he possessed certain powers in the direction of the reform instituted.

Brig. Gen. William L. Kenly, Director of Military Aeronautics, will be Chief of the Bureau of Military Aeronautics, in charge of the training of officers and the operation and maintenance of all military aircraft. John D. Ryan, Chairman of the Aircraft Production Board, will be Chief of the Bureau of Aircraft Production, with full and exclusive jurisdiction over the production of airplanes, motors, and equipment.

"The Signal Corps," said Secretary Baker this afternoon, "will now have only to do with signals, and nothing to do with any phase of the production or use of aircraft. The order gives General Kenly all the property pertaining to the use of aircraft and all money in connection therewith; and to Mr. Ryan all the property and money appropriated and used for the construction of aircraft. This will, in effect, make them both disbursing officers, thus obviating the necessity of going through the Signal Office for funds."

Enlarges Naval Supply Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 20. — Carrying $1,587,000,000, which is $202,840,000 more than provided for by the House, the Naval Appropriation bill was completed late today by the Senate Naval Committee and will be reported tomorrow.

C. W. FAIRBANKS VERY ILL.

In a Critical Condition at His Home —Children at His Bedside.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 20.—Charles Warren Fairbanks, former Vice President of the United States, is in a critical condition at his home here tonight. The two attending physicians, Dr. A. C. Kimberlain and Dr. J. A. McDonald, declared that Mr. Fairbanks was showing some signs of improvement tonight but that he had been unconscious for the greater part of the day.

The former Vice President has been confined to his bed for more than a week, and when there was no improvement in his condition three of his children, Mrs. John W. Timmons, Warren Fairbanks, and Frederick Fairbanks, were called to his bedside. Another son, Richard, is with the colors.

Mr. Fairbanks has been in ill health ever since the last Presidential campaign, when he was a running mate with Charles E. Hughes. He is said to be suffering with Bright's disease.

To Graduate Two Annapolis Classes.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 20.—It was announced at the Naval Academy today that President Wilson had acted under the authority conferred by a recent act of Congress and had ordered the early graduation of the class below the class which will graduate on June 6. After that date the present third class will be the first class and will graduate in one year. As at present there will be no second class.

Bonds Versus Taxes.

Some of the arguments offered by those favoring a revenue bill this session are:

Filibustering methods may be resorted to by the Republicans in the Senate to prevent the enactment of a revenue bill in the short session beginning December next and ending by constitutional inhibition on March 4, 1919.

It is known that Democrats in the Senate are not strongly inclined toward another revenue act, and are inclined to agree with the Republicans that further expenses for the war should be obtained by loans.

There is a probability that if the Democrats should lose a number of Senators in the November elections there would be a development which would bring defeat to a revenue bill in the short session.

Excess profits, it is declared, have been so enormous in the last six months, since the present revenue bill was framed, that those favoring obtaining war revenue on the basis of 50 per cent. direct taxation want to increase the tax on excess profits before these are diverted to investments.

This last argument, it is declared, is accepted by many Democrats who believe that the party would fare better in the coming election if a bill taxing these profits were written before the November election.

10 COMPLETED SHIPS THE WEEK'S OUTPUT

New Tonnage of 58,850 Delivered—14 Other Craft Launched.

ENCOURAGED BY RESULTS

Shipping Board Hopes to Better the Record by Increasing Supplies of Materials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—In the week ended May 18 the shipyards of the United States delivered ten steel ships, aggregating 58,850 tons, to the Government to be added to the fleet now carrying men and munitions to France, and launched two steel and twelve wooden hulls, with a total capacity of 55,200 tons, which will soon be available for service.

The shipyards are attempting to establish another record for the month, and conditions are said to be favorable. Much progress has been made in arranging for the speedy deliveries of supplies, and, while the conditions are not entirely satisfactory as yet, there has been a big improvement.

Shipping Board officials today refused to comment in detail upon the statement made yesterday in New York by Commissioner Bainbridge Colby, as reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES, that fifty ships of major size would be put into service during June, and a larger number in July, and also in August, but it was felt that Mr. Colby had not overestimated the ability of the shipyards.

Every effort is being put forth to stimulate the spirit of competition in the yards, and it was reported from many sources that the management, as well as the workmen, was exhibiting great pride in the results which it was believed could be accomplished. The Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation are prepared to give public recognition of the credit due to the yard management and employes.

As one step in arousing the yards to their best efforts and making it possible for all to compete on an equal basis, the Emergency Fleet Corporation is endeavoring to see to it that all yards shall have a sufficient supply of the steel and other materials needed for rapid production. It is the hope of Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board and Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Fleet Corporation, gradually to build up a supply of plates and other parts for three months in all of the yards. When this is accomplished it is felt production will receive a great impetus.

The question of boiler supply is also receiving attention, so that there may be as little delay as possible in the equipment and delivery of the hulls. In this connection much trouble has been experienced in supplying the equipment for the wooden ships. Agents of the Emergency Fleet Corporation are now scouring the country to list every available plant, large and small, where boilers can be built. It is believed that there are many small plants engaged in other work at present, whose energies can be diverted to this purpose. If the total capacity is then found to be insufficient, plans will be made for the expansion of the larger factories.

The launchings last week represent two ships a day, and the deliveries, 1.42 ships a day, which, it is said, is somewhat above the mark which it has been believed would be reached. One of the completed ships is the collier Tuckahoe, which was turned out at Camden, N. J., in thirty-seven days after the laying of her keel.

The importance of having plenty of material on hand was emphasized by the record established in the building of the Tuckahoe. Plates and other parts for this ship were all at the yard when construction was started.

On Saturday four wooden ships were launched, this being the third time in the present month when four vessels of this type were launched in a single day. The total number of wooden ships launched in May to date is twenty-two.

The completed ships turned over to the Shipping Board during the week comprised eight requisitioned and two contract steel ships, including four vessels of more than 8,000 tons. They were:

Pasadena, cargo, 9,400 tons, Moore & Scott, San Francisco; Radnor, cargo, 10,000 tons, Sun Shipbuilding Company, Chester, Penn.; Westhampton, cargo, 8,800 tons, Willamette Shipbuilding Company, Seattle; Lake Crystal, cargo, 3,300 tons, Great Lakes Shipbuilding Company, Ecorse, Mich.; Tuckahoe, collier, 4,900 tons, New York Shipbuilding Company, Camden, N. J.; Lake Shewano, cargo, 3,500 tons, Manitowoc Shipbuilding Company, Manitowoc, Wis.; Lake Maurebas, cargo, 3,300 tons, Great Lakes Shipbuilding Company, Ashtabula, Ohio; Silverado, cargo, 3,300 tons, Craig Shipbuilding Company, Long Beach, Cal.; Lake Leanda, cargo, 3,550 tons, American Shipbuilding Company, Cleveland, Ohio; West Durfee, cargo, 8,800 tons, Skinner & Eddy, Seattle.

These steel ships were launched:

The wooden ship launchings for the week were:

Dalana, 4,000 tons, Supple & Ballin, Portland, Ore.; Salmon, 3,500 tons, McEachern Shipbuilding Company, Portland, Ore.; Quoqua, 3,500 tons, Wilson Shipbuilding Company, Astoria, Ore.; Boulton, 3,500 tons, Meacham & Babcock, Seattle; Beloit, 3,500 tons, Tacoma Shipbuilding Company, Tacoma; Barrington, 2,500 tons, Coast Shipbuilding Company, Portland, Ore.; Kuwa, 3,500 tons, Grant-Smith-Porter Ship Company, St. John's, Ore.; Blackford, 4,000 tons, Gray's Harbor Motor Ship Corporation, Aberdeen, Wash.; Basco, 3,500 tons, American Shipbuilding Company, Cleveland, Ohio; Pascagoula, 3,500 tons, Dierk-Blodgett Company, Pascagoula, Miss.; Musketo, 3,500 tons, Sommarstrom Shipbuilding Company; Boxley, 3,500 tons, Grant-Smith-Porter Ship Company, St. John's, Ore. Total—42,000 tons.

TO BUILD 130 SHIPS ON THE GREAT LAKES

CLEVELAND, May 20.—An agreement tantamount to a contract to build 130 vessels to cost approximately $800,000 each and totaling about $100,000,000, was reached here today between Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Government's shipbuilding program, and Great Lakes shipbuilding companies.

Every shipbuilding firm on the Great Lakes from Duluth to Cleveland was represented at the conference, and the program was outlined by Mr. Schwab and Charles Piez, Vice President of the Fleet Corporation. The order was apportioned among the following firms:

American Shipbuilding Company, 60; Great Lakes Engineering Company, of Detroit, 24; Manitowoc Shipbuilding Company, 12, and the rest was divided among the Toledo Shipbuilding Company, the McDougall Duluth Shipbuilding Company, and the Glove Shipbuilding Company of Duluth.

The ships will be of 4,200 gross tons dead weight capacity, and will have 1,500 horsepower. They will be full Welland Canal size of the greatest depth, which is a little more than twenty-eight feet.

Deliveries are to be completed by the end of the lake shipping season in 1919. Contracts will be signed later.

Yard extensions necessary to take care of the new program authorized today by Mr. Schwab and Mr. Piez will be begun immediately.

Mr. Schwab made a tour of the American Shipbuilding Company's yards and complimented the men on the work they had turned out to date and urged upon them the vital necessity of speed and unquestioning loyalty to the company and the Government in completing the shipbuilding program on schedule time.

"You are just as essentially members of the fighting forces of this country as any set of men in the service of the country," Mr. Schwab told the workers. "The nation must have 1,000,000 tons more ships than it had last year. I know we will get them. You men and the rest of the shipworkers in the country will produce the ships. Every blow you strike at a rivet is a blow struck at the Kaiser. The United States never lost a war, and we are not going to lose this one."

Mr. Schwab came here to study Cleveland shipbuilding activities and to deliver three speeches to help the city's eight-day campaign for a "victory chest" community fund of $6,000,000 for war relief for the balance of the year. The proposed fund includes $2,500,000 for the Red Cross.

To the members of the Union Club, of which he was the guest of honor at a luncheon, he appealed to make any sacrifice to help shorten the war.

"Labor will do its share," he said. "Wealth must and will do its share. Ships, ships, and more ships, is the crying need."

OFFERS SHIPPING POST TO JAMES A. FARRELL

WASHINGTON, May 20.—James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, is the latest captain of industry to be asked to help the Government win the war. He has received an offer of the position of Director of Operations of the Shipping Board.

Mr. Farrell has not yet replied as to whether he would accept the position.

Edwin F. Carey, the present Director of Operations, was recently made Chairman of the board's Port Improvement Committee, which will have charge of one of the most monumental undertakings ever launched in the United States. The task of reorganizing dock and harbor facilities throughout the country will require so much of Mr. Carey's time that he will not be able to continue in both capacities.

Hope was expressed at the Shipping Board offices today that an early acceptance from Mr. Farrell would be forthcoming.

BRITISH REPAIR SHIPS FAST.

5,307 Vessels Are Restored in Less Than Nine Months.

LONDON, May 20.—Striking figures on the work done in the shipping repair yards were published today. From Aug. 3, 1917, when the Directorate got the organization to work, to April 23, 1918, the yards have repaired and restored 5,307 vessels, representing a gross tonnage of 16,150,000.

This gives a weekly average of 414,105 gross tons, but the weekly average for some weeks past has risen to more than 500,000 gross tons, and is steadily rising. The amount restored in one week reached 598,000 gross tons.

BASEBALL GAME IN ITALY.

Great Crowd Watches Contest Between Teams of American Aviators.

ROME, Sunday, May 19.—Italy's first public baseball game was played today between teams from the Aviation Corps of the American Army and Navy before an immense crowd of Italians and the entire American colony. American Ambassador Page, members of the American Red Cross, and Italian military and naval staffs were present. Military bands played the American and Italian national airs.

The game was featured by the distribution of a special American edition of the newspaper Epoca, describing the points of the game. There also was a parade led by the army goat and the navy mule.

The army aviation team won by a score of 11 to 3. Lieut. Commander Roland Riggs, the organizer of the game, however, declared that the navy team played the better game.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU BACK.

Star Acts in "Eyes of Youth" with Aid of a Brace and Cane.

Marjorie Rambeau, whose skating accident compelled her retirement from "Eyes of Youth" three months ago, returned as the star of the play at the Maxine Elliott last night. Miss Rambeau played under great difficulties, her leg being held stiff by a brace, and a cane being accordingly a necessary companion throughout the play. These handicaps to free movement made themselves particularly felt during the play's tempestuous second act, but at other times were not sufficiently in evidence to detract from the interest of the play.

Miss Rambeau will continue to use both brace and cane for about two weeks. She received an enthusiastic greeting last night upon her first entrance.

FRANCE IS TOUCHED BY WILSON MESSAGE

LONDON PRAISES SPEECH

Newspapers Applaud President's Declarations on Peace Subterfuges.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 20.—President Wilson's message to France has been received here with universal acclamation and has had the effect of intensifying, if that be possible, the affection and admiration France feels for the American Republic.

"Our brothers," writes Léon Bailby in his journal L'Intransigeant, this evening, "yes, truly, we accept this designation and they are also our brothers, those British whose blood has flowed with that of our own soldiers at Ypres, at Vimy, in the Somme, at Gallipoli; our brothers, too, are all those who have thrown into our cause their hopes, their young men, and their resources. The greatness of the peace of tomorrow will be this brotherhood solemnly founded on the battlefield.'

The Pays, which long ago shed its defeatist tendencies and has become under its new direction one of the most readable Paris newspapers, expresses the hope that Wilson will soon say what he thinks of the recent German peace offensive and the diplomatic falsehoods, so easily believed, of the Central Empires. The Pays also notes with approval "the echo of Wilson's imperious voice" in Taft's trumpet call for stern and implacable war in his speech in Philadelphia on Thursday.

Louis Latapie, in the Republique Française, emphasizes the importance of the fact, so rare in history, of "a whole people rising to help another people, with no other reason for helping each other than their common worship of liberty and no other interest than the interest of justice." He says:

"These millions of young men who are coming to offer their lives on our soil are fighting for an idea. And this idea cannot be abolished, because it is the very essence of the life of peoples. No, liberty cannot be vanquished. If it disappears for a day in the tempest it is only to be reborn soon after more beloved and more virile than ever. The alliance of the two great republics of Europe and America and the union of their armies in battle against imperial barbarism is the decisive phase of this progress which nothing can stop. The Americans are our brothers and their blood is flowing with ours for a common cause. This is a greater fact than the battle itself. Here is an immense progress already realized. Here is our conquest. Here is our victory."

COMMEND WILSON SPEECH.

London Papers Applaud Declaration on Peace Subterfuges.

LONDON, May 20.—President Wilson's speech in New York Saturday night holds a prominent position in the London morning newspapers, notwithstanding the claims of the Irish situation and the war on their reduced space.

The Daily Chronicle editorially describes the speech as "an utterance which lifts the purposes of the war out of the rut and shows the light of the spirit across its sorrows, shames, and monotonies." The Chronicle especially commends the reference to insincere peace overtures.

The Times says that President Wilson is at one with the allied Governments. Referring to the peace letters of Emperor Charles of Austria, it comments:

"The President sees the stupid trap just as Mr. Balfour sees it. The best of reasons for its rejection will be found in President Wilson's speech. They should relieve the pretended perplexities of Berlin."

Alluding to the President's statement regarding the unlimited numbers of American soldiers, The Times comments:

"That is what Germany has brought on herself by trampling with boundless arrogance upon all that men hold sacred."

The Daily Express considers the speech a thrilling call to duty and sacrifice, and expresses admiration for the clearness of the President's vision and the soundness of his judgment.

Referring to the President's remarks concerning insincere peace moves, The Daily News says:

"If it does not absolutely close the controversy, such a verdict from such a judge inevitably carries very great weight. The reason given for it is certainly not less important than the judgment itself."

PATRIOTIC ACT AT PALACE.

Six-Year-Old George A. Dewey and a Quartet of Singing Sailors.

A hot-weather program at the Palace this week runs largely to comedy, the principal funmakers being the Messrs. Conroy and LeMaire, who are said to be about to dissolve partnership; Charles Withers and his amusing rural interpretation, and the nonsensical Franklyn Ardell in his comedy, "The Wife Saver." There are also the Spanish dancers, retained for a second week, and exhibiting unusual vigor for the temperature.

FRONTIER OF INDIA QUIETER.

Less Unrest Now Than Before War, Says British Commissioner.

SIMLA, India, May 20, (via Ottawa.)—Sir George Roos-Keppel, Government Commissioner, speaking at a war meeting at Peshawar, stated that the frontier had been quieter since the war began than it had been for the four years before.

The Viceroy had stated, the speaker said, that relations with the Ameer of Afghanistan were never more cordial. Representatives attending the meeting had seen for themselves how the Ameer had kept the country peaceful and prosperous when the rest of the world was aflame.

Sir George added that he was proud of the recruiting effort of the frontier province.

Otis Skinner Heads Actors' Theatre.

The new President of the Actors' and Authors' Theatre, it was announced yesterday, will be Otis Skinner, who wired his acceptance of the office from Pittsburgh last week. Difference of opinion regarding the choice of an opening play, it was said at the offices of the organization, caused the resignation of Edwin Milton Royle. The organization will begin its season at the Fulton Theatre on Thursday night.

RAILWAY REGULATION AND OPERATION.

The announcement that the Government will allow the railways a billion of dollars for the increase of their efficiency marks the difference between the Government as regulator and as operator. As regulator, the Government told the railways how railways ought to be operated. As operator, the Government's way differs from the way of the railways only by the Government's use of methods which the regulators' laws put out of the question for the railways. When the railways asked for the funds which the Government now allows them, the regulators repeatedly told the railways that they should first increase their economies and efficiency. As operator, the Government does both, but only by methods for which the railways were prosecuted. They are combining and pooling and ceasing to compete most heinously.

The result is satisfactory to all who think that the service of the railways is more important than the question either of rates or profits. The billion dollars now made available to the railways merely enables them to do what they were stopped from doing because the emphasis of regulation was placed upon the reduction of rates and profits rather than upon the increase of efficiency. The rates have been reduced, and the wage cost has been increased 68 per cent. All other railway costs have been increased, including taxes, by hundreds per cent. There is no official total yet of the burdens the Government put on railways by taxes as invidious as burdensome. One railway reported that its Federal taxes increased 95 per cent. in 1917 over 1916, another 734 per cent. The method of taxing is as bad as the method of regulating, and the end has been reached. The Government must now do for the railways what they are too anaemic to do for themselves.

They have been bled white, and for years they have stopped their betterments. It would be worth uncounted billions if the country now had the use of the betterments which the railways were accustomed to provide in a manner which some thought too lavish, but which is now seen to be fortunate. The Pennsylvania's terminal in this city was of great use in breaking the coal blockade last Winter, and is now available for other railways for passenger traffic. Now it is the Government's turn to spend, and large figures are used. But the Government's outlay is only part of what the railways were accustomed to spend. Some hundreds of millions of equipment was ordered for the railways by the Government the other day, but that is only some two-thirds of what the railways were accustomed to spend on that item under distress and oppression. The Government's order for 100,000 freight cars is only about half of the railways' accustomed quota, and increases capacity only by some 5 per cent.

No argument to the contrary is possible. The war cannot be won without increasing the efficiency of the railways. There remains only the question of ways and means. That question was put in the way of answer Saturday when the War Finance Corporation was sworn in, just before the Government's announcement of the increase of betterments by Government order. The credit of the railways is so poor that they could not raise the funds without assistance in the money market. The War Finance Corporation alone could not do it, without the help of the increase of rates which is the only alternative to raising the billion dollars by taxes. Fortunately the Government is in control of the rate question specifically, and summary action may be expected from a standpoint sympathetic with the difficulties of operation.

The longer the delay the greater the difficulty. Already there is organized opposition, the National Association of State Railroad Commissions having asked for a hearing of what has been heard to the point of weariness. Their plea is that the increase of rates will increase the cost of wheat carriage to New York 3 8-10 cents, and flour 17½ cents a barrel. The State Commissions also want the Federal rates to be made to conform to State rates, although the State rates have been condemned even by the Interstate Commission. The increase of rates will be only by mills, and the addition to the freight cost will be under control so strict that the effect upon prices will not be so flagrant as under more normal conditions. The demand that intrastate rates shall control interstate rates is meretricious. It is as separatist as a customs tariff would be, and is designed to discriminate in favor of local over national interests.

Such appeals have a different reception now from that in the temper of the anti-railway time. There is little danger that the railways will get more than they ought to have, but the error should be on that side. Only good can come from putting the railways at their financial ease at the cost of those who receive the benefits. The billion dollars is an addition to the industrial wage fund, in addition to the specific advance of railway wage rates. The improvement of railway credit will be a help to the general financial situation. The stimulus to trade will be of advantage to even those who pay the higher rates in the first instance. No one can wish for another coalless Winter, nor for obstruction to building ships from difficulty of moving materials, nor for any other of the demonstrated ill results of a policy now at its natural end.

MR. LEWIS'S PLATFORM.

Attorney General LEWIS seeks the Republican nomination for Governor by methods which no politician of the right mental and moral plasticity and pliancy can approve. Mr. LEWIS sticks, and will stick, strictly to the business of his office. He doesn't hide his opinions in vagueness, round off the angles of his beliefs. He isn't afraid to say what he thinks. He doesn't kootoo to this or that collection of voters. He is against the woman suffrage amendment, the prohibition amendment. "The Federal Constitution," he says, "is an instrument "of union, and should not be made an "instrument of discord." He favors the submission to the people of this State of a prohibition amendment to the State Constitution. Who knows, in fact, what the people of New York think about license and prohibition? The local option elections record simply an indecisive difference of opinion. Before the Legislature undertakes to foist Federal prohibition upon this State and other States, wouldn't it be well to find out if New York wants to be dry?

Mr. LEWIS favors a literacy test for voters. He advocates the restoration of the State Convention, its members to be chosen at a direct primary, "in "order that the party's principles and "policies may find authoritative expression." "The party's candidates," he adds, "should be bound by the party's declaration of principles."

There is courage, there is common sense, somewhat uncommon in politics, in Mr. LEWIS's platform. He makes his issues clear and sharp. Any Republican who votes in the primaries for Mr. LEWIS will know just what he is voting for. There is nothing cloudy or politic in his course. The primaries don't exist, however, for the purpose of encouraging that sort of candidate.

THE APPEAL OF THE RED CROSS.

The signs are that New York will go "over the top" in responding to appeals to fill the Red Cross war fund chest. President WILSON has asked us to give "until it hurts." Colonel ROOSEVELT derides the plea that because a man or woman has bought a Liberty bond or War Savings Stamps they can be excused for not contributing to the Red Cross. "Give the bond, give the stamps," says the Colonel, "and make them do double duty."

The fact of the matter is, no refusal to aid the Red Cross can be accepted from anybody. The Red Cross does not ask for a loan, it wants help: help for the wounded, help for starving and despairing refugees, help for all wretched victims of German cruelty. It speaks to the heart, not in any sense to self-interest. There is to be no return for the money given to this humane war organization but the gratitude of those it succors, relieves, and sustains, of those it nurses back to health, of the families of those fallen on the field of battle whose eyes it closes reverently.

The appeal the Red Cross makes is to manhood, to womanly sympathy, to the finer sentiments of human nature that still has faith in Christianity and holds war in abhorrence. Not to give with weak or with full hands, something or a great deal, is to be beyond the pale not only of patriotism but of common humanity.

No less than 50,000 men and women in New York have volunteered to take up contributions from New York's five millions and more of people, less the infants in arms—and the enemies within our gates. In the whole history of the world there is nothing finer, more exalted, more noble than the work the Red Cross is doing in battle-scarred and desolated Europe. Such self-sacrifice, such scorn of danger, such consecration to good deeds for the sake of poor humanity, were never known in such measure before.

It is unthinkable that New York needs to be solicited to open its heart to the wants of the Red Cross, whose record shines so luminously that of itself it is an appeal no one should resist. Everybody will give, no one can hold back, and the war fund chest will be filled, we believe, until it runs over. What greater record could New York make than to exceed its allotted quota?

LUFBERY AND THE WINGED TANK

Major RAOUL LUFBERY, a French Yankee or Yankee Frenchman, had wandered about the world, seeking adventure. He found it in one of its most daring forms in the air. He became one of the heroes of the airplane service, one of the most famous of the Lafayette Squadron, and he continued its honorable traditions in the American air force. Fearless but of the coolest judgment, skilled in all the accomplishments, ruses, and dexterities of his perilous art, he won victory after victory. Four or eight German machines at once were but an invitation to his intelligent valor.

He got citation after citation, medal after medal. He was our best "ace," our most renowned flier. To France his name and ancestry made his exploits even more engaging. He was a national, a European figure. He has fallen in no combat with more skillful or heroic men. He was conquered by a new giant of the ether, a new monstrous terror created by the Germans, against which there was no defense, which was invulnerable to bullets. As the flame rushed from his petrol tank he jumped, and that life that had been a flame of generous valor died out. He was the seventh of our airmen to struggle vainly against the impenetrable flying tank.

The sense of personal grief that we all feel in the death of LUFBERY and his comrades is not forgotten in the larger anxiety caused by the flying tank. That is described as having a wing reach of sixty feet, its vital parts protected by armor, its pilot cased in three-eighths-inch steel, two-engined, two-gunned, the gunners in armor. Thus the pilot has nothing to do but run the machine. The protected gunners manage the two heavy machine guns. The tank seems immune to machine gun bullets. One had been captured on the Somme, and was thought impenetrable by those bullets.

If the Germans have these machines in considerable quantities, until some successful means of attack on them is found, the allied reconnoissance and scouting, artillery observation, as well as fighting, save of ordinary plane against ordinary plane, may be seriously interfered with. Each military invention is equaled or overcome by the other side; but so many delicate problems of equilibrium and adjustment have to be answered in the construction of airships that time is needed, and there is none to lose. Some means of mastering the elephant of the ether will be found. Be sure of that. Meanwhile our air boys are hot to go up, volunteering copiously, and hope by a multitude of little machines to bring down Goliath by "a chance shot." By chance shots or not, the thing will be done. But is there to be, must there be, a revolution in airships? Not that the lighter machines will not always have their uses, but will not these winged tanks, these battleships of the air, if some weakness is not found in them, some Monitor for their Merrimac, be the masters of the air, and so of the land fighting?

BRITISH SUBMARINES DOING THEIR BIT.

Although German warships do not patrol the North Sea and never venture from their bases except to raid minor British seaports when atmospheric conditions are favorable, or to attack a convoy reported by air scouts, the British submarines, of whose performances so little is heard, have succeeded, according to an official statement, in attacking successfully no less than forty German war vessels.

The enemy has always had targets for his torpedoes in the North Sea, the English Channel, the Irish Sea, and in the waters north of Scotland and Ireland. Early in the war the battleship Formidable, the armored cruisers Hogue, Cressy, and Aboukir, and the light cruisers Hawke and Pathfinder were sunk by German submarines in the North Sea. The reputation the German Navy won for effective work with its U-boats against British war vessels was the reward of skill more than of extraordinary daring; nevertheless, the lesson taught was that the only safe place for the battle fleet was at its protected base, and it must be said that the prestige of the British submarine flotilla suffered until it made its own opportunities by acts of intrepidity that were sometimes almost incredible.

To attack German warships, except in the two or three fights that occurred in the North Sea, it was necessary for the British submarines to invade the Baltic, an enterprise of considerable danger. The Prinz Adalbert, an armored cruiser of 8,858 tons, was sunk on Oct. 23, 1915; the protected cruiser Bremen, 3,300 tons, on Dec. 17, 1915, and the light cruiser Undine, 2,672 tons, on Dec. 7, 1915. When the protected cruiser Hela, 2,003 tons, was sunk earlier in the war, Sept. 9, 1914, Lieutenant MAX HORTON's exploit had been called exceptionally bold and difficult because a great storm was raging at the time and he was operating in the enemy's waters near Heligoland.

The really great daring shown by British submarine officers, proving their quality in the face of what seemed to be insuperable obstacles, was displayed in Turkish waters. On Dec. 13, 1914, Lieutenant HOLBROOK ran through five lines of mines in the Dardanelles and torpedoed the Turkish battleship Messudyeh. He received the Victoria Cross for his achievement. Lieut. Commanders EDWARD BOYLE and ERIC NAISMITH were similarly honored for even greater triumphs over the Turko-German defenses. BOYLE dived under minefields to get into the Sea of Marmora, where he sank two Turkish gunboats and one large transport filled with troops. NAISMITH raided the Sea of Marmora up to the wharves of Constantinople, one of which he blew up with a torpedo, and before he retired through the Dardanelles he had destroyed one large gunboat, three transports, and five store ships.

What the youngsters of the British flotillas demonstrated in the early part of the war was that they were willing to take desperate chances to accomplish anything worth recording. If there had been a regular German patrol in the North Sea, British submarines would have taken heavy toll. But it was not supposed until the official statement previously referred to was published that the British hornets had such a big score as forty enemy warships. Most of them have, of course, been destroyers and other light craft engaged in raiding and reconnoissance.

In one case a British submarine ran into mine-sown Heligoland and torpedoed a returned U-boat as she was tying up. In the Bight of Heligoland two armed auxiliaries were sent to the bottom. The mouths of the Ems and Weser have been invaded. The Britishers could not be kept away by minefields or shut out of the Baltic. The narrative is one of taking great risks, going almost everywhere, and attacking the enemy without recking the odds. It is obvious that if German warships would contract the habit of steaming up and down the North Sea the British submarines, ever venturesome and alert, would run up a big score.

AN IMPERIAL PENCIL.

According to a Paris dispatch to THE TIMES, the second and unpublished letter of the Emperor CHARLES in the possession of the French Government, "like the first, was written "by CHARLES in lead pencil, in the "peculiar handwriting which results "from his holding his pencil in the "palm of his hand." The imperial method of penciling serves to explain the denial, doubt, and suspicion with which the first "Dear SIXTUS" epistle was received in Vienna. It was so genuine in appearance, the chirography was so peculiar and Carolian, that the letter must have been written or tampered with by another hand.

It was all false. It was partly false. The Emperor's mother-in-law wrote it or filled it in. The Empress's confessor wrote it. From Alpha to ZITA it was so unquestionably authentic that its authenticity was questioned. Curiously enough, the Emperor himself was deceived, and he stood in a penitent's sheet, so to speak, ever since until graciously pardoned by "t'other Governor" of Potsdam and German Great Headquarters.

The late Professor BENJAMIN PIERCE intimated, at a famous will trial, that the chance of a man's signing his name exactly the same twice was one—shall we say—in 1,215,411,444. The young Emperor, however, can so imitate his own handwriting that nobody knows the difference. The next time he writes a peace proposal letter he should use a fountain pen, held between his teeth.

A SOCIALIST CONCERN.

In Minnesota the Non-Partisan League, whose gospel has been spread from North Dakota westward and eastward by its President, that eminent patriot, Mr. A. C. TOWNLEY, isn't thriving. Its State manager in Minnesota has been found guilty of making a disloyal speech. One of its organizers has also been convicted for seditious talk. Its candidate for Governor has written a book about which the United States Senate Committee on Military Affairs lately asked Mr. TOWNLEY some inconvenient questions. Of our soldiers abroad the author writes:

> I believe and fear they are going to bleed for the profits of the damned pirates who profit from our food products.

Mr. TOWNLEY is a Socialist. The managers and magnates of his league seem to have the Socialist view of the war. In Minnesota the officers of the league are almost all Socialists. It will be remembered that when Mr. TOWNLEY was trying to introduce his society into New York he was careful to keep away from the war issue. The Sioux Falls Argus-Leader says that "candidate after candidate in "Minnesota has refused to accept the "indorsement of the league, and "many who earlier joined the league "refuse to be candidates for office "with the league indorsement. Even "in North Dakota the control of the "State by the league is on shaky "ground." Among the reasons for this shakiness are said to be the refusal of the league management to make a financial statement, and the continuance in the management of men who are under indictment! The Non-Partisan League does seem singularly rich in Socialists and seditionaries.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Irishmen Who Love the Germans! What might be called the official action taken by the self-styled Friends of Irish Freedom—the men whose not unprofitable profession it is to keep alive the ancient grievances of Ireland and to manufacture new ones—showed a certain moderation, a slight caution about offending the sensibilities and the convictions of the non-German world. At any rate, one can so characterize the address to President WILSON and Congress when it is contrasted with the speeches made at both meetings of this amazing organization.

It was not in this address, however, that the real feeling of those present was expressed. That was done when the several orators, after the manner of orators ever, evoked the applause of their auditors by saying exactly the things they knew those auditors wanted to hear. At the first session the enthusiasm culminated when DIARMID LYNCH said that Ireland had just one enemy, and instantly the crowd shouted the word he forbore to mention, "England." Thence, of course, the transition was easy to dozens of revelations, not of willingness, but of eagerness, to unite with Germany in accomplishing the destruction of the British Empire—an end, apparently, counted as of far more importance than the establishment of Ireland as an independent republic.

These Friends of Irish Freedom vehemently deny that they are pro-German, or that the Sinn Feiners are participants in German plots, but whenever they get excited enough to speak frankly they make clear how ready they are to join the one important enemy England now has. Never by a single word do they condemn or criticise Germany. Her hatred of Great Britain is in their eyes a virtue quite sufficient to justify all her crimes, and, like the frogs in the fable, they look hopefully to the installation of King Stork as successor to King Log. What Ireland would be under German rule they do not stop to think, and yet the picture can be easily drawn by anybody with a little imagination and a little knowledge of recent history. To be another Poland is indeed a noble ambition for Irishmen!

It Hardly Could Be Worse. Only on the assumption that any change would have to be for the better can one get much of immediate satisfaction from the news that the War Department is about to take into its own hands in France the distribution and collection of mail matter to and from the American soldiers there. The Post Office Department has proved fairly well that the delays, the imperfections, and the absolute failures which up till now have characterized this vastly important service were not due either to its own incompetence or to its inappreciation of what it means to the men abroad to hear often, promptly, and securely from the home folk, or what it means to the home folk to be in like communication with the boys abroad. The fault, or most of it, seemingly has rested on the very department which now proposes to take charge of all mail matter, not after it reaches the divisional headquarters, but on its arrival at a French port, and also to attend to getting it from the divisional headquarters to the ports, instead of leaving that part of the work to civilian postal officials.

Whether or not this means the almost desperately needed reform of the mail service depends on the spirit in which the task is taken up by the higher army officers. Of their ability to perform it, or to have it performed, there is no question, but so often have these officers been quoted as saying, "The men are not in France to read and write letters," that the news of the change in method will be received with something of dubiety.

Of course the men are not in France to read or write letters, but neither are they there to consume rations, wear uniforms, or to go through the manual of arms. Yet these are not negligible activities or incongruous with executing the purpose for which the American Expeditionary Forces were organized and sent abroad. The reading and writing of letters come in the same category, and, while not quite as essential to winning the war as are the others, there is no more reason for neglecting them, no more excuse for speaking of them scornfully.

Hunger Will Not End the Fighting. Again there comes the report that the German people not in the army are more than hungry—that in literal truth the amount of food now available for their use is not enough to support life, to say nothing of health and strength, and that for at least two months no new supplies can reach them in quantities large enough to prevent, or even to delay, starvation. Like accounts, however, have been received so many times before that, while there cannot be much doubt that the German civilians are suffering severely from the pangs of hunger, there should be much caution in drawing from that fact the deduction that Germany is either unable or unwilling to fight on till the next harvest is gathered.

The people who are feeling the pinch of scarcity have no effective voice in the councils of their Government, and their woes will be no more regarded by it as a reason for confessing defeat than is the slaughter at the front of soldiers by the hundred thousand. The needs of the workers in the munition factories and other essential industries will be met somehow, as well as those of the army, as long as there is anything at all to eat left in Germany.

As always, too, these stories of utter destitution are coming out of the beleaguered country so easily and in such numbers that their accuracy is open to some suspicion. Presumably, the censors let them out for a purpose, and the purpose may be the familiar one of lowering the war spirit in the allied peoples by making them think that the longed-for end is close at hand. No country as large as Germany ever did lose any great part of its population by starvation, and especially did none ever so lose the part of its population that determines its policies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A charming war story, "The Red Cross Barge," by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, would seem a very appropriate addition to the varied Red Cross literature now being circulated. Not that it deals with the Red Cross organization in the literal sense of the word, but in its vivid narration of those thrilling days which preceded the battle of the Marne and the generous aid that the Red Cross barge tendered both friend and foe. WHY THEY LIKE THE TIMES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When we present a list of New York newspapers at a conference with an advertiser, one detail of the interview is practically identical in every case.

If THE NEW YORK TIMES appears on the list, that newspaper, in the majority of cases, is O. K.'d without argument or discussion. There is rarely any question in the mind of anybody present but that THE TIMES must be used.

It is apparent that THE TIMES has built up a large and desirable circulation, which has drawn many advertisers to its columns.

But why does this public like THE TIMES?

We believe this reason to be simply this—news.

THE TIMES today is giving the public one of the most remarkable news services ever known. This covers not only the gathering of the news, but the presentation of it. It is this prompt, accurate gathering and presentation of news that draws and holds the big TIMES audience of readers.

News is a thing which cannot wear out—a thing the public never grows weary of. And in basing itself upon news, THE TIMES is in direct contrast to newspapers built on the flimsy foundation of mere cleverness.

Cleverness is a thing of which the public inevitably becomes weary, because cleverness so quickly ceases to be clever.

That is why a newspaper audience created on the basis of cleverness will always be a more or less fickle audience, always seeking entertainment.

An audience secured by news is logically a serious-thinking, thrifty, successful audience—an audience with large buying power.

The audience which THE NEW YORK TIMES possesses is the kind which advertisers want to reach. And that is why advertisers like THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Grand Duke Nicholas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With all my heart do I indorse the sentiments of your correspondent regarding the real Russian leader. Certainly he is the Grand Duke Nicholas, one of the greatest Generals this war has produced, in my estimation, and the only one to lead Russia back to life. But he was exiled to the Crimea and placed under arrest by that Alexander Kerensky who helped to bring that great, glorious empire into the chaotic condition she is in today.

I am afraid that too many Americans have forgotten those wonderful triumphs of the Grand Duke Nicholas and his brave, gallant armies, sheeted in ice, marching on and on to rescue the poor Christian Armenian and meet their British brothers in arms.

Who can forget the fall of Erzerum and Trebizond, and the wonderful editorials published in THE NEW YORK TIMES and in the press of England and Scotland. The Allies across the sea owe a deep debt of gratitude to our once-upon-a-time great and formidable ally, Russia, for she saved the day for the Western Allies times without number. There was always a Russian offensive when the Allies on the west were hard pressed. Indeed, Russia's gallant armies helped to save the Marne, and she was the only one of the brave Allies who almost reached Berlin. That honor goes to the Grand Duke Nicholas and his gallant armies, and belongs to the day when it was a common thing to see Prussia on the map with the first letter erased.

I am hoping that we shall yet hear that the Grand Duke Nicholas is leading Russia, for there is a Russian soul not yet betrayed, not yet subdued.

For the Red Cross and Italy.

By an inadvertence in your kind announcement today of the new Italian War Relief of America Attorney General Gregory is given as a member of the New York Executive Committee instead of former Attorney General George W. Wickersham. In addition to those already announced—Mrs. H. B. Duryea, Chairman; S. Reading Bertron, Treasurer; John Foster Carr, Secretary, and Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, Eliot Norton, and Thomas Hastings—there have been added Mrs. George du Pont Pratt and William Church Osborn. The Hon. Charles Evans Hughes, President of the Italy-America Society, has accepted the Honorary Presidency of the committee, and the Hon. Romolo Tritonj, Royal Italian Consul General, the Honorary Vice Presidency.

In behalf of the new association I desire to urge upon all whom these lines may reach the most energetic support of the "drive" for the Red Cross, which has done such wonderful work in Italy as elsewhere, and also similar support of the Italy-America Society in its plan to make the nation-wide celebration of May 24 contribute to the aid and comfort of our heroic ally, "the crowned republic." Now is the time to help Italy in every possible way.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of the first things Senator Hitchcock wishes to do upon assuming the Chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee—and it is something that he says he should have done before this—is to subscribe to Current History Magazine.

The Senator considers this publication the most necessary adjunct to conducting the affairs of the committee, and it is our intention to keep it on file regularly at the Foreign Relations Committee Room in the Senate.

Permit me to convey to you the Senator's appreciation of Current History Magazine and to say for him that he considers it a publication distinctly in a class by itself.

EARL B. GADDIS,
Secretary to Senator Hitchcock.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

ICARUS.

To the memory of Captain Antonio Silvio Resnati, Royal Italian Flying Corps. Killed at Mineola, L. I., May 17, 1918.

Young son of Italy, so strong, so brave,
You've joined them, too—my son among the rest—
Those golden youths who passed war's thrilling test
And with a splendid courage nobly gave
The greatest gift they had, their lives, to save
The World's ideals. Crusaders on a quest
For Freedom's Holy Grail. They are at rest. . . .

Did their souls call to you across the grave?
Oh, looking back, how you must wonder why
You ever tried to climb through God's blue air
On man-made wings that seemed such perfect things,
Yet were so frail! Now you divinely fly!
Farewell! our love to them you find up there. . . .
I almost hear the music of their wings!

PLANS FOR HEALTH DRIVE.

Everybody Asked to Co-operate in Cleaning Up City Next Week.

Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland announced yesterday the details of the forthcoming health drive to continue from Sunday, May 26, to the following Saturday.

The first day will be Church Day, and clergymen will be asked to emphasize to their congregations the importance of having rubbish cleared away and of keeping the home in a sanitary condition. Monday will be School Day, and teachers will be requested to assist the health drive and to urge the importance of cleanliness. Pupils will be expected to explain to the members of their families the lessons taught at school.

A special appeal will be made on Tuesday to all transportation companies, including railroads, trolley lines, elevated railroad companies, and others, to allow no dirt piles or rubbish to collect on their carriers. Wednesday will be Correction Day, and the police will make appeals to all citizens for co-operation. Thursday will be Memorial Day, and no plans have been made for the holiday, but on Friday, which will be Street Day, the members of the Street Cleaning Department and of the Tenement House Department will see to it that all property under their care, as far as is possible, will be free from dirt and rubbish.

The health drive will close on Saturday, to be known as Insect Day, with a request for the population to co-operate in insect destruction, to empty any cans and barrels that may contain stagnant water, the breeding place of insects.

Problems relating to industrial hygiene will be discussed tomorrow at a conference in the office of Commissioner Copeland. Besides a number of officials in his own department, Dr. Copeland says he expects representatives from the following trade union organizations—the Central Federated Union, the Brooklyn Central Labor Union, the United Hebrew Trades, and the Women's Trade Union League.

The question of a cheaper supply of milk by the city will be discussed by Dr. Copeland on Friday with Dr. Jonathan Day, City Commissioner of Foods and Markets; Deputy Commissioner of Foods and Markets Laura G. Cauble, State Commissioner of Foods and Markets Dr. E. H. Porter, and a number of farmers.

Commissioner Copeland said yesterday that he was considering the advisability of establishing branch laboratories in the Bronx and Brooklyn, where culture tests in connection with sufferers from certain diseases might be made. He thought that by taking some work from the central laboratories in Manhattan, where at present all culture tests are made, several hours might be saved.

The charges against Lucius P. Brown, Director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs, suspended more than two weeks ago, will be ready this week, according to Dr. Copeland. Following the preparation of the charges a meeting of the Board of Health will take place to consider the form of the hearing. Mr. Brown will then be served with the charges, and will be asked to state how long he will require to prepare his case, after which the date for the trial will be set.

FARM FOR CAMP DIX MEN.

Government to Provide Work for Men Physically Unfit for Service.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., May 20.—The Government is to operate a 400-acre farm, close to the cantonment, to provide employment for men found physically unfit for military service, and convalescents. It is also planned to utilize prisoners of war brought to this country from overseas in this work, but for the time being the men rejected for physical reasons, will be the farmers. The farm will be in operation within a short time, and large crops are looked for in the Fall. An appropriation of $60,000 has already been made by the Government for this work, which will be under the supervision of Lieutenant E. V. Champlain of Buffalo, member of the Conservation and Reclamation Board.

The first test of the Browning machine gun will be made at the cantonment tomorrow, with Major Gen. Hugh L. Scott in charge. It is said here that Camp Dix is the first national army camp to test one of these large guns.

HOLIDAY IN CUBA.

HAVANA, May 20.—The celebration of Cuba's national holiday, marking the sixteenth anniversary of her independence, began at dawn today with the ringing of bells and the sounding of sirens. The city is bedecked with the Cuban colors and those of the allied nations.

The marchers included thousands of soldiers from Havana and the provinces, and there were marines, mounted rural guards, national police, city firemen, and boy scouts from the Provinces of Havana and Matanzas.

MEYER LEAVES $1,700,000.

Ex-Secretary of Navy's Will Probated Here—Estate Goes to Family.

The will of George von L. Meyer, ex-Secretary of the Navy, who died on March 19 at his home, Hamilton, Mass., was filed here yesterday, as he had owned real estate in Manhattan. The petition shows that ex-Secretary Meyer had $300,000 in realty and $1,400,000 in personal property.

The will and four codicils gives the widow, Mrs. Alice A. Meyer, the property at Hamilton in trust and a third of the residue for life, with an annuity of $10,000. The daughters, Mrs. Alice M. Rodgers of Washington and Mrs. Julia M. Brambilla of Rome, each get a third of the remainder of the estate in trust, the principal to go to their children. The son, George von L. Meyer, Jr., gets a third of the remainder outright as soon as he returns from war duty and also receives all the property left to his mother in trust upon her death.

The will provides that if none of his children leave issue the principal of the trust estate is to go to Harvard University for a cancer research fund, and if there is no necessity for such research the money may be used for medical science, as desired by the trustees.

Bequests of $2,500 each were left to the Boston Lying-in Hospital, the Massachusetts General Hospital, Dedham Home, and the Huntington Hospital. Two sisters receive $1,000 each.

SCHAFFNER WILL PROBATED

Announcement was made here yesterday that the will of Joseph Schaffner of the Hart, Schaffner & Marx Company, who died in Chicago on April 19 last, has been filed there for probate. The will disposes of $3,000,000 in personal property and $75,000 in real estate. The only public bequests are $20,000 to the Michael Reese Hospital of Chicago and $12,500 to the School of Commerce of Northwestern University. A contingent bequest that may amount to $450,000 is left to Northwestern University under which the university receives a trust fund in the event that no survivor of the testator is living at the death of the last survivor of his wife and children. The bulk of the estate goes to the widow and children, a large part of which is left in trust. Among the beneficiaries are Ida Halle and Julia Halle, sisters-in-law of New York City, who get $10,000 each; Nettie Schaffner, a cousin, of Mount Vernon, who receives an annuity of $600.

$8,000 MANAGER FOR BOARD OF EDUCATION

Members Decide to Elect Executive to Relieve Them of Details.

GARY OPPONENT IN LEAD

Tristram Walker Metcalf May Be Chosen for Post Briefly Filled by Leo Arnstein at $10,000.

At the close of its meeting yesterday afternoon as a Committee of the Whole, the Board of Education went into secret session on the question of electing an executive manager, as directed by the new educational law. After the members were in conference for about two hours President Somers said they had concluded this office was necessary, and had fixed the salary at $8,000 a year, but not the term of appointment. The executive manager will relieve the board of much detail work and permit it to attend to larger problems. He will consult with the heads of various departments and report to the board on their various activities.

Mr. Somers said no names had been mentioned at the conference. There are several candidates for the job, among them Tristram Walker Metcalfe, "School Editor" of an afternoon newspaper. Mr. Metcalfe was a warm supporter of the policy of Thomas W. Churchill, while he was President of the Board of Education and has been an opponent of the Gary system and has frequently spoken in public against the plan. The former Board of Education appointed one of its members, Leo Arnstein, to the place of Executive Manager. The old school law did not provide for this and there was opposition to the appointment. Among those who voted against his election was Mr. Somers, who took the matter into court. The court decided against Mr. Arnstein, and he was compelled to give up the office, the salary of which was $10,000 a year.

The matter will come up for action by the Board at its regular meeting tomorrow. None of the other persons mentioned has apparently as good a chance of election as has Mr. Metcalfe. It is also believed that his selection would be agreeable to Mayor Hylan, as their opinions about the Gary system are much alike. The Mayor wrote to President Somers that he had received the latter's report on the record of the Board from January to May and was pleased to note that the Gary plan was being eliminated. He also expressed satisfaction with the other things mentioned in Mr. Somers's report.

Upon recommendation of the Board of Superintendents the Committee of the Whole approved the granting of leaves of absence to five teachers without pay for war work. They are Garry C. Myers, a teacher of physical training, who will make mental tests in the American Army; Clara D. Huebiner of the Morris High School, who will do drafting for the United States Government; Carolyn F. Miller, who will do Red Cross work; Harry A. Jennison of the Bushwick High School, who will do Young Men's Christian Association work in France, and J. Blake Miller of the Curtis High School, who will be with the Young Men's Christian Association engaged in physical training in the French camps.

FOR QUALIFIED SUFFRAGE.

Attorney General Lewis Clarifies His Statement to Mrs. Will.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20.—Clarifying his earlier statement to Mrs. Mary Eits Will, giving his views on woman suffrage, Attorney General Lewis, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, said tonight:

"I am quoted in some of the morning papers today as being opposed to woman suffrage. This is not the fact. I prepared and Assemblyman Welsh of Albany County introduced at my request in the Assembly, I think, of 1916, a proposed amendment to the Constitution of this State which would, if approved by the people, confer the right of suffrage upon women as well as men. I proposed, however, to limit the right to those men and women who might be able to show ability to read, write, and speak the English language intelligently. This amendment, if in operation, would give to the women of the State the same rights as men having the same qualifications.

"Woman suffrage is an established fact in this State. Women will never be deprived of the right which they now have. I hope that, having won the right to vote, women generally will use the ballot and demonstrate the wisdom of their enfranchisement."

TO SAVE AMIENS ART.

Government Orders Removal of Puvis de Chavannes Paintings.

PARIS, May 20.—Louis Laferre, the Minister of Public Instruction, accompanied by Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, Chief of the Department of Instruction and Works of Art, visited Amiens yesterday to study the problem of the removal of the mural paintings by Puvis de Chavannes, which remain in the Amiens Museum.

The experts who had examined the conditions agreed that the removal of the paintings was a possibility, and urgent and precise instructions were given for the safety of these art treasures, endangered by the German gunfire.

SOME U-BOATS IMMOBILIZED

British Report Them Hemmed in at Bruges by Zeebrugge Raid.

LONDON, May 20.—"The recent fine weather," says an official statement issued today by the British Admiralty, "has enabled constant air reconnoisances over Bruges and the Zeebrugge-Bruges Canal to be made and photographs to be taken.

The results show no change has taken place since April 23, and that a greater part of the enemy's submarines and torpedo craft based on the Flanders coast has been immobilized at Bruges since the Zeebrugge blocking operation."

FRIENDS OF 305TH PLAN ITS WELFARE

LETTERS TELL OF VOYAGE

Correspondence to be Tabulated to Keep Families Informed of All Soldiers' Well-Being.

Mothers, wives, and other relatives of the 3,700 men in the 305th Infantry, N. A., which is now "somewhere in France," gathered last night at a double meeting in the Engineering Societies' Building, 25 West Thirty-ninth Street, under the auspices of the 305th Infantry Auxiliary, to plan how they might best serve their relatives abroad. The meeting was originally arranged to be held in the hall of the building, but before it began the hall was filled and it was necessary to hold another meeting at the same time in the lobby of the building.

Stephen Olin, who is President of the auxiliary, opened the meeting by expressing his happiness at the large attendance. Mr. Olin, who is the stepfather of Captain Earl Dodge, said that the purpose of the meeting was to organize the relations of the soldiers in units according to the companies to which their relatives belonged, and to form plans for the general welfare of the regiment.

Mrs. Duncan Harris, the wife of Captain Harris of Company A, who is in charge of the Publicity Committee of the auxiliary, told of the work that the auxiliary had done after the wreck of the train bearing 700 members of the 305th from Camp Upton to New York on April 15. Mrs. Harris said that Mrs. Charles Duncan Miller, Secretary of the auxiliary, with several other women, had remained in the office of the auxiliary at 280 Madison Avenue for thirty-six hours without rest, answering the inquiries of distracted mothers and wives regarding the safety of their relations. Mrs. Harris said that, although only three men were killed, she believed that the relatives of every man in the regiment telephoned the auxiliary.

Many Letters Already Received.

Many letters have been received from the members of the regiment since they went abroad, and among the plans of the auxiliary is one of tabulating the mail received from the members of the regiment, so that if one soldier writes regarding the health or welfare of another the latter's relatives may be informed.

Mrs. Harris read several letters from men and officers. The following is an extract from a letter written by Duncan B. Brown, Chaplain of the regiment, to a relation of a member of the regiment who wishes to remain unknown:

> We have all managed to get some rest on board. Your generous gift is making it possible for me to provide dainties for the sick boys. I have also been able to purchase magazines. Calm seas and clear skies have been the rule until today. On Sunday we held two very beautiful services. The first, that of the Holy Communion, held in the main salon, the second held on deck aft. The Archbishop of York made a stirring address as the men crowded around to join reverently in the service and listened to his words. His text was from St. Paul, "Keep that which is committed to thy trust."

The following is an extract from the letter of another officer:

> You can rest assured that no regiment could be in better spirits or have higher aspirations than ours. The next months will do wonders for the men in their training and as every one has had a little rest, we will enter upon whatever is in store for us with renewed zeal. Let us hope so.

An appeal was made by Mrs. Walter Metcalfe, the wife of Major Metcalfe, who is the Chairman of the Tobacco Committee, for contributions for tobacco for the men of the regiment. Mrs. Metcalfe said that as it was difficult to send tobacco directly to the men, it was the intention of the committee to send $500 a month to the regiment, so that the men might purchase their own tobacco wherever they might be. More than $300 a month had already been promised for the fund, Mrs. Metcalfe asserted, but she hoped that the full amount which was all too little for 3,700 men would be obtained.

Asks Wives and Mothers to Knit.

Mrs. Stephen Olin, the mother of Captain Earl Dodge, who is Chairman of the Wool Committee, said that she hoped that every mother and wife of the regiment would help knit for it. To keep the men supplied with the necessary amount of socks, Mrs. Olin said, at least 7,000 pair must be turned over to the Red Cross every month. As there was no way of shipping the socks directly to the regiment, the Wool Committee gave the socks to the local Red Cross, which guaranteed to distribute an equivalent amount to the regiment through its headquarters in Paris. Mrs. Olin explained that the wool would be supplied by the wives and mothers of the officers, provided that the relations of the men would aid in knitting.

Mrs. Duncan Brown, wife of Duncan Brown, chaplain of the regiment, told of the work of the Welfare Committee, of which she is Chairman. Mrs. Brown said that it was the duty of that committee to discover and take steps toward relieving the suffering and hardships of all the relatives of the men in the regiment who were without sufficient means of support. The committee is working with the Red Cross Home Service and the Civilian Relief Section, Mrs. Brown declared.

An appeal was made for office equipment and knitting machines for the headquarters of the auxiliary. It was said that two knitting machines had already been obtained, but that there was great need of additional ones.

The 305th Infantry, which was stationed at Camp Upton until it sailed, was composed of drafted men from all parts of New York and Brooklyn, officered by men from different parts of the country, most of whom received their commissions after the first Plattsburg training camp.

BIGGEST MILK EXHIBIT

The National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition, which offers demonstrations of the nutritiousness of milk, cheese, and butter, was officially opened by Governor Charles S. Whitman at the Grand Central Palace last night. On his entrance to the exhibit the Governor received a glass of milk, which he promptly drank as a fitting toast to the success of the exhibit.

Addressing the visitors, who were mostly farmers, come from all parts of the State to see the largest exhibit of dairy products in the actual making ever held in this country, the Governor urged the need of consuming milk, cheese, and butter foods, first, because of their superior food values, and, secondly, because the consumption of these foods, which were in all respects the cheapest foods, tended toward the conservation of meats which were required for the allied and American forces abroad.

The feature of the exhibit which attracted the most attention last night and which will probably continue to hold public attention for the rest of the week was the $10,000 fawn-colored Jersey cow, Oxford Briar Flower, which munched nonchalantly a piece of straw while the Governor, Mrs. Whitman, and their party showered her with compliments. Oxford Briar Flower is not only the pride of the exhibit, but she is officially registered as a Red Cross worker and is permitted to solicit money for that organization.

"WOMAN'S HONOR" ACTED.

New Comedy at Greenwich Theatre Amusingly Exploits a Theory.

A new short comedy by Susan Glaspell, who has become a particularly prolific writer of one-act plays, was performed for the first time last night at the Greenwich Village Theatre. It is entitled "Woman's Honor," and is a fairly amusing exposition of the theory that woman's honor is treasured a great more by men than it is by women. The scene is the office of a lawyer, and the story is of a youth who has killed the betrayer of his sweetheart. It is his own idea to go silent to his death for the sake of woman's honor.

To the office, however, come all variety of women, all unmindful of their honor and quite willing to perjure themselves if only they can save the youth by swearing of his affairs with them and proving an alibi on the night of the crime. Woman's honor they are inclined to regard as a liability rather than an asset, and it is the most sheltered among them who are most insistent upon being chosen as the guilty party. Into this situation Miss Glaspell has inserted a number of bright lines, some of them smacking a little of Wilde, but none the poorer for that.

The piece is well played by some of the Greenwichers, and not quite so well by a few of the others. Ida Rauh, Ruth Boyd, and Helen Robbins are the best of the importuning women, and Frank Conroy, with no particular opportunities, is a satisfactory lawyer. The play replaces "Schnitzler's 'The Big Scene.'" "Ile" and "The Maid of France" continue on the program.

SWISS AGREEMENT DISPLEASES FRANCE

NINE MONTHS' TREATY MADE

PARIS, May 19.—The French Government has threatened to withdraw its offer of 85,000 tons of coal monthly to Switzerland if the German-Swiss economic and commercial agreement recently arrived at is ratified by the Swiss delegates. France in this case will supply coal only to the shops and manufactories in Switzerland that are working upon goods for France and her allies.

"We can only maintain the original offer of 85,000 tons monthly provided no compensation whatsoever is given the Germans," says the official note. "If this is not acceptable, the German and Swiss Governments can settle the matter between themselves."

"We cannot countenance a situation in which Germany shall abuse its position toward the Helvetic Federation and establish a system which would lead to the endangering of Swiss suzerainty and inevitably prove prejudicial to the cause of ourselves and our allies," continues the note. "Should the Swiss Government persist in signing the agreement, ratification of which is expected shortly, we shall remain friends with the Government and people of Switzerland. But the allied powers cannot entertain the idea of Germany provoking strikes and disorders in Swiss shops supplying Allies' needs. This would be done through enforced idleness, caused by the scarcity of fuel. Therefore, manufacturers working in the interest of the Allies will be furnished coal."

The official note concludes by warning Switzerland against Germany's effort to raise issues confusing German interests with those of the Swiss.

BERNE, May 18.—The terms of the new treaty between Germany and Switzerland are applicable for nine months, with the proviso that they may be abrogated by either party upon two months' notice. They provide for the monthly export from Germany into Switzerland of 200,000 tons of coal and 19,000 tons of iron and steel. The price of the coal is to be at a minimum, 173½ francs for all but 60,000 tons for small consumers, upon which the price will be reduced by 40 francs.

Among the exports which Switzerland agrees to make are cattle to the number of from 15,000 to 17,000 monthly.

Switzerland, it is provided, will establish a controlling export organization, to be known as the Office Fiduciaire Suisse, to regulate shipments to the Entente. This society corresponds with the existing Societe de Surveillance Suisse, which constitutes the Entente's control over shipments to Germany, but it, like the first-named organization, is a corporation entirely under Swiss management.

Goods manufactured with the aid of German coal may not be exported to countries at war with Germany unless it is definitely proved that the factories manufacturing them possessed an equivalent amount of non-German fuel which was used by them in the manufacture and had its use credited to the plant by the Judiciary Office.

Articles on a special list yet to be designated may be exported by Switzerland if they were manufactured with machines or tools from the Central Empires, as well as with machines or tools from the Entente, until July 15, at least, even though German coal has been used in the production. Excepted from this list are products of machines for wood and iron work, pressing machines for the production of cement, and all materials for the housing or transportation of troops, besides war material and chemicals. These excepted products must not be exported unless the Entente countries have furnished the coal for their manufacture.

Investigations have shown that Switzerland heretofore has been importing between 15,000 and 20,000 tons of coal monthly for these industries, so that if the Entente supplies its promised quota Switzerland will be able to continue its work for the Entente.

The official report concludes with the declaration that the German delegates conceded a whole series of points "of great importance," in the knowledge that all foodstuffs secured through the French port of Cette were to be consumed exclusively in Switzerland.

GERMANY TO SEIZE CATTLE FROM POLAND

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Announcement that the bread ration is to be reduced on June 15 has caused grave apprehension throughout Germany. An official dispatch today from Switzerland says that even the Governmental press has adopted a tone no less pessimistic than that of the Socialist papers, which foresee a great diminishing of the physical and general force which helps in supporting the hardships of the fourth year of the war.

The dispatch quotes the Berlin Vorwärts, the leading Socialist organ, as saying that "it seems too dangerous to start reducing rations, and the danger is still greater in the fourth year of the war than in the second and third, when it was easier to obtain other food and when the general condition of the population was better."

"The Volksfreund of Karlsruhe," also says the dispatch, "speaks of the surprise which the German people will feel when they realize that they must suffer new deprivations while they were counting on an improvement of the food situation based on what has been said about the wheat from Ukrainia and Rumania.

"The tone adopted by the Government press is no less characteristic. The official paper Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung gives a weak expression to the hope that the measure will not endanger resistance of the interior front. As to the newspaper Germania, it does not succeed in hiding its despondency. It declares:

"'We have never been optimistic, but our pessimism was not great enough.'"

In an effort to improve the serious meat situation, the German military authorities have decided to requisition 100,000 head of cattle and 20,000 pigs in Poland. This, says a Swiss dispatch, has caused a panic among the Poles.

Even more critical than the German food situation is that in Austria. An official dispatch today from France quotes Austro-German newspapers as saying that at a recent conference in Vienna on the situation it developed that food supplies to be requisitioned were sufficient only to feed Hungary and the army and that Austria could expect nothing but its own harvest.

Germany's purpose in announcing to the world through its official wireless the reduction of the bread ration for its population was widely discussed here today. Some officials concluded that the German Government, knowing that eventually the news would reach its enemies, decided to anticipate it with the purpose of showing the willingness of the German people to make any sacrifices to win the war.

Another theory was that the purpose of the Government was to encourage peace proposals, supposedly more acceptable to a people suffering hunger, and thus camouflage the final military effort which the Germans now are known to be planning.

STATE GRANGERS TO MEET.

Plan to Make Federation of Farmers a Permanent Organization.

On behalf of the New York Federation of Farmers a call has been sent out to agricultural organizations throughout the State, including the 916 granges, to send delegates to a convention which is to meet at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany on June 7. At that time plans will be discussed for making the federation a permanent organization.

The Federation of Farmers has been known in the past as an anti-Whitman organization. Among its leaders are men who fought bitterly the Whitman program of agricultural and food legislation and the proposal to make George W. Perkins head of the Farms and Markets Council. At an earlier convention held in Syracuse where temporary organization was effected under which the federation is now operating, resolutions denouncing the Governor's attitude toward the farmers were adopted with practical unanimity. In the call sent out yesterday Seth J. T. Bush of Rochester, Temporary Chairman of the federation, disavows on its behalf any connection with political parties, and denies rumors that the movement has been financed by William R. Hearst.

"No politician or political party has had anything to do with the formation of this federation, and no politician or political party has contributed one cent toward it, directly or indirectly," says Mr. Bush in his call. "It was not formed and is not used to promote the candidacy of any man for office—its purpose is permanent, not temporary—it is a movement of farmers, by farmers, for farmers, and nothing else. It has no connection, directly or indirectly, with any party organization or movement outside of the State of New York."

To emphasize its independence of the Non-Partisan Farmers' League which is a power in politics in some States in the Middle West and which has been regarded as lukewarm toward the war, Mr. Bush in his call declares the members of the federation ready to make any sacrifices for the object of winning the war.

"He, the federation farmer, believes that the entry of this country, his country, into the war is the finest, most unselfish, highminded act ever done by any Government on earth, and he will stand solidly behind the President and the Government to the bitter end," reads one of the closing sentences of the summons sent out by Mr. Bush.

CAPT. BIDDLE WOUNDED.

French Scouts Rescue American Aviator Given Up as Lost.

PARIS, May 18.—Captain Charles J. Biddle of Andalusia, Penn., chief of a patrol of the Lafayette Squadron, who recently was reported lost after a fight with the Germans, was found today by French scouts in No Man's Land with a bullet through his leg. His machine was wrecked. He was brought to the rear for treatment in a hospital.

Captain Biddle ascended a few days ago and engaged a German machine. The American was seen to plunge as though his airplane had been hit. He descended in a spiral until within a short distance of the ground, where he apparently righted his craft for a moment, but finally crashed. He was given up for lost until the French patrol discovered him.

PASSES WATERWAYS BILL.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The River and Harbor bill, carrying $21,572,000 and limited to work essential during the war, was passed today by the Senate, with an increase of $2,344,000 over the House bill. It now goes to conference.

The only new projects in the bill are $204,000 for dredging in Los Angeles Harbor, contingent on the building of a dry dock there, and $140,000 for improvement of the Mobile harbor. An amendment by Senator Calder of New York proposing a survey for a ship canal between Coney Island and Brooklyn was rejected. An amendment making it unlawful to dump waste acid into into any navigable stream was adopted.

OTHERS WERE CANCELED

Buyer Will Keep Some of His Purchase for His Collection and Give Rest to Friends.

A sheet of 100 of the new postal airplane stamps, but with the airplane turned upside down through an error made by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington, has been purchased for $20,000 by Colonel E. H. R. Green of Texas, son of the late Hetty Green. Over a window counter at the Post Office in Washington this sheet sold for $24.

So far as is known this is the only sheet that escaped the vigilance of the Washington postal authorities. Three other sheets were discovered and were pen-canceled so that their postal value was nullified, and these probably will be destroyed.

The stamps bought by Colonel Green were turned back by a Washington citizen at the stamp window because the airplane was inverted. In the line behind this citizen was a man who sensed the philatelic value of the sheet, and purchased it at its face value, and it reached the hands of a Philadelphia stamp dealer, who today received a bid of $12,500 prior to the higher offer made by Colonel Green.

Colonel Green said yesterday that he planned to retain a portion of the sheet for his collection, and dispose of the other stamps among his friends. It is predicted by philatelists that if the sheet proves to be the only one in existence outside of Government ownership the stamps will attain a philatelic value of $250 each.

MAIL PLANE HAS MISHAP.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., May 20.—Lieutenant Miller, carrying mail in an airplane from Washington to Philadelphia, descended at the Havre de Grace race track for gasoline this afternoon and in landing broke a blade of the propeller.

After the damage was repaired he attempted to resume his journey, but engine trouble developed when he had risen 200 feet, so he had to descend again. This time the machine turned over, Lieutenant Miller falling under the plane, but receiving no injury. The airplane was badly damaged.

Lieutenant Miller will remain here until tomorrow. The mail was sent to the Havre de Grace Post Office to be forwarded by rail to Philadelphia.

WANT MERX INTERNED.

CHICAGO, May 20.—A warrant for the internment of Hans Merx, musical director of the Chicago Archdiocese of the Roman Catholic Church, has been asked by United States District Attorney Clyne.

Mr. Clyne said the request was based upon pro-Germanism, and that Mr. Merx had been investigated by the Department of Justice in Brooklyn prior to his coming to Chicago.

Hans Merx was the organist and director of music in the Roman Catholic Church of the Queen of All Angels, at Vanderbilt and Lafayette Avenues, Brooklyn, for several years. Mgr. Coan, rector of the church and Chancellor of the Diocese of Long Island, said last night that when Merx's contract expired last year he made no effort to retain Merx because of his pro-German sentiments as expressed in newspaper interviews and because of aspersions alleged to have been made upon members of the congregation.

Mgr. Coan said that Merx had come to the United States from Germany several years ago to become organist and musical director under the Rev. Dr. George W. Mundelein, then rector of the church. When his contract was not renewed he went to Chicago to do similar work in the Holy Name Cathedral. It was said that he received this appointment through Dr. Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago.

GERMAN EXCHANGE FALLING

Stockholm Considers That Drop Shows Trend of War.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—"Germany, judging by foreign exchange rates, has no prospect of smashing the opposition on the west front, despite the fact that she is throwing everything into the scale in order to obtain a decision this Summer," says Bassett Digby, a correspondent of The Chicago Daily News, in a cable dispatch to his paper from Stockholm today. He adds:

"The movements of foreign exchange are a reliable barometer of the war, according to the best informed financial and diplomatic circles in Sweden. German exchange took a sharp upward trend at the beginning of the March offensive. Now, however, it is several points lower than before that offensive and is continuing to fall daily."

5,000 WILL FOLLOW BODY OF CAPT. RESNATI

Aviators to Accompany Funeral Train from Hempstead and Procession, Scattering Flowers.

The body of Captain Antonio Silvio Resnati of the Royal Italian Flying Corps, who was killed on Friday at Mineola while testing a new Caproni airplane, will be brought from Hempstead, L. I., today. The train will arrive at Pennsylvania Station at 2 o'clock. More than 5,000 persons will accompany the body of the great aviator from the railroad station to St. Patrick's Cathedral. The line will be led by Captain J. F. Doherty of the Signal Corps, stationed at Mineola, as Marshal. Following him will come the police escort, and behind the police will be carried the flags of the Allies. Then will come the Twenty-second Infantry Band.

The funeral procession will be made up as follows: First platoon, guard of honor, coffin and two English, two French, two Italian, and two American officers as pallbearers; representatives of the Resnati family, official representatives of the Italian and allied Governments, including the Italian Ambassador and officers of Italy and the allied nations.

Second platoon, 100 men of the 225th Aero Squadron, U. S. A.; the Garde Republicaine Band, societies, civilian representatives, including Mayor Hylan. The body of Captain Resnati will be carried on a gun caisson, draped with the Italian flag.

Major E. J. Canady, the commanding officer of the Mineola Aviation Field, will fly with Captain Hugo d'Annunzio of the Italian Mission and Pilot Serg. Giafelice Gino from Mineola in Captain Resnati's big Caproni biplane. They will follow the funeral train in the air and will accompany the procession, flying low above Fifth Avenue, scattering flowers.

The body will be taken to Calvary Cemetery under escort of a guard of honor from the aviation service. It will be placed in a vault there and later will be shipped to Italy.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, May 20.—Colonel Roosevelt is preparing a detailed statement on his charges that Postmaster General Burleson and others in the Government showed favoritism in their enforcement of the Espionage law as it affects newspapers. He declined today to reply at once to the statement issued in Washington on Sunday by the Postmaster General in which Mr. Burleson intimated that those who criticised him were dealing in "half truths."

YANKS ARE JOLTED BY CHAMPION SOX

FLASHES BY EDDIE COLLINS

The skillful baseball art of Edward Trowbridge Collins embellished the 6-to-2 victory which the world's champion Chicago White Sox worried away from the Yankees at the Polo Grounds yesterday. The young master performer of the national pastime studded the eighth and ninth innings with fielding gems that brought forth storms of applause from the big Monday crowd of soldiers and sailors.

It was on double plays that Collins showed a baseball brain that worked like a flash and a physical execution which was unerring. In the eighth, with Peck on third and Baker on first, Pratt smashed a hopping grounder to Buck Weaver. Weaver made a lightning fast toss to Collins at second, the ball going high. Collins nipped the ball, tagged second, and while in midair, with both feet off the ground, he whipped a throw to Gandil at first which killed the runner on the second half of the play.

The very same play happened in the ninth on Bodie and Miller. On both plays if Collins had waited to get into a throwing position he would have lost the runners on the second out, but the remarkable ability to throw from any position, while off the ground, brought about plays which made it easy to see why Eddie Collins is the greatest infield performer of the game.

It is the first time the White Sox have been to town since they beat the Giants in the world's series last October. The club is the same now as it was then, with the exception of Shoeless Joe Jackson, who has been drafted into the national army. The Yankee pitchers, Love and Mogridge, were easy for the Sox batsman and they won about as they pleased.

Yanks at Loss on Bases.

It was a thoughtless Monday for the Yanks on the base paths. In the fifth inning, Truck Hannah made the onlookers marvel by trying to steal second when Elmer Miller had a perfectly legal lease on that locality. Manager Huggins was coaching at first at the time and of course he probably flashed a signal for a double steal.

The radio service, however, was very poor, for Miller's attempt to get on toward third brought forth a merry cackle. When he saw the huge figure of Hannah thundering toward second, he was so dumfounded that he stood stockstill in his tracks. Miller was an easy out and Hannah was lucky not to be a victim, also.

A couple of new umpires were on the job yesterday, Silk O'Loughlin and George Moriarty taking the places of Bill Evans and Dick Nallin, who have been at the Polo Grounds so much this year that they were beginning to look like part of the scenery. There is one familiar figure missing from the White Sox retinue.

Kid Gleason, the official goat-getter of the world's champions, no longer takes his place at third base to worry the opposition. After the winning of the world's title last Fall the Kid retired on his honors. It is generally supposed that Gleason had more to do than any other one influence in rattling Heinie Zimmerman so badly that he was away off his game in the series.

The Sox got only one run out of three hits in the third. Shano Collins singled to centre and was forced by Schalk. Williams singled to right and sent Schalk to second. On an attempted double steal Schalk died at third. After Nemo Leibold walked McMullin singled to centre, scoring Williams.

Collins Gets a Pass.

Eddie Collins got a pass in the fourth and went to third on Felsch's single. Weaver singled, scoring Eddie Collins and Felsch. Weaver stole second, and Hannah's throw hit Buck and sailed out to centre field. Miller made a wild return of the ball to third base and Weaver went all the way home.

The first Yank run came in the seventh. Bodie walked and went to third on Miller's double. After Hannah fanned, Zinn Beck, batting for Mogridge, sent a sacrifice fly to John Collins, Bodie scoring. The Yanks got their other tally in the next inning. Peck singled and went to third on Baker's one-base drive to centre. Peck scoring when Pratt hit into the double play so artistically executed by Eddie Collins.

In their portion of the eighth the Sox added another run on McMullin's single, a steal, and Weaver's single. A walk to Schalk, Williams's sacrifice, and McMullin's hit added their last run in the ninth.

ROBINS SURPRISE CUBS.

Heavy Stick Work Earns a Brooklyn Victory, 5 to 2.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The much abused Dodgers gave the Cubs a real surprise this afternoon when they earned a 5 to 2 victory. It was the heavy stick work of the visitors in the first inning that brought disaster to the Chicago clan. Four runners were sent scurrying across the plate in the initial session, and while these were enough to win, the Brooklyn team added another in the sixth to make things certain.

Rube Marquard was on the mound for the Robins and he doled out his curves so effectively that the Cubs were almost helpless. They secured eight hits, but Marquard kept them so well scattered that there was little damage done. The Chicago pitchers, on the other hand could not stay the assault of the visitors. Walker lasted only a part of one inning before seeking cover, and Carter and Weaver then took up the overheavy burden.

Hi Myers brought himself into the limelight by whipping out a home-run drive.

GIANTS BEAT CARDS IN RAGGED CONTEST

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 20.—The Giants won from the Cardinals, 5 to 3, today, in a pastime chiefly notable for the ragged playing of both teams. The Cardinals, however, were somewhat more unsteady than the league leaders, and the Giants won without a great deal of trouble.

Poll Perritt hurled gilt-edged ball for eight innings, allowing only three hits, but in the ninth he wabbled badly, and the Cards put two runs over the plate before Fred Anderson was rushed to the rescue of the slim pitcher. Anderson had only one man to dispose of, and he quickly got him out of the way.

Bill Sherdell, a kid southpaw, pitched a fair sort of game for St. Louis, but six errors committed by his teammates robbed him of any chance he might have had to humble the Giants.

Hendricks's men were the first to score, an error by Niehoff giving them their opening. Smyth led off in the Cards' half of the first inning with a single to centre. Smith lined to Kauff and Baird hit to Fletcher, who threw to Niehoff to force Smyth. But Bert muffed the throw, and both runners were safe. Cruise poked a single to left and Smyth scored.

Young walked to start the third for New York. Kauff flied to Smith and Burns grounded to Betzel, who allowed the ball to go between his legs, Young reaching third. Zimmerman boosted a sacrifice fly to Smyth, and Young jogged over the plate. An error by Larmore, playing at shortstop for the Cardinals in place of Hornsby, who is laid up with a bad leg, paved the way for the Giants' second run, which was registered in the seventh. With two out, Larmore fielded Young's grounder and pegged the ball far over Paulette's head, Young reaching third on the error. Kauff singled to centre, scoring Young.

In the eighth the Mound City team cracked wide open, and the Giants hung up three runs. After Burns had been retired, Smyth muffed Zimmerman's easy fly. Fletcher was out on a high bounder that carromed off Sherdell's hands, Betzel recovering the ball and pegging it to first. Zimmerman then pulled a delayed steal of third. Holke raised a Texas Leaguer back of third that was good for two bases, Zimmerman scoring, and Niehoff singled through the box. Betzel threw home to head off Holke, who had rounded third on the hit and dashed for the plate, but Holke was declared safe when Gonzales dropped the throw. Niehoff, who had taken second on the throw, stole third, and scored on McCarty's single to centre.

WAR ZONE FINISHES IN VAN AT JAMAICA

Outfoots Whitney's Purling in Suffolk Selling Stakes—Friday Red Cross Day.

One of the important happenings at the Jamaica track yesterday was the announcement that next Friday would be set apart as Red Cross Day and that all the receipts on that day would go to the Red Cross Fund. A special Red Cross Handicap at six furlongs will be arranged in addition to the Highland Stakes for three-year-olds and four other races.

There was a continuance of high class sport yesterday, with the Suffolk Selling Stakes for two-year-olds and the Clarendon Handicap as features. The juvenile event brought about an upset in the defeat of Harry Payne Whitney's Purling, a daughter of Peter Pan, which graduated from the maiden class on Saturday with the greatest of ease. Robinson, who had the mount on Purling, was not as vigorous as usual in his handling of the Whitney entry, which was badly outrun in the early stages, while Mrs. C. W. Starr's War Zone was cutting out a hot pace with George W. Loft's Sweepiet in attendance.

Sweepiet and Purling began to close on War Zone at the stretch turn, but Knapp kept hustling War Zone along with the result that he had a margin of a length on Purling at the finish. Sweepiet, which had dropped back at the top of the stretch, came again in the last sixteenth and lost the place by only a head.

Courageous and fainthearted sprinters were pitted against each other in the Clarendon Handicap. James Butler's High Noon, the top weight, gave one of his exhibitions of curling up over the short distance of five and a half furlongs.

High Noon was six lengths in front of Arnold on entering the stretch, with R. F. Carman's stouthearted Startling some distance back. As High Noon faltered Startling was urged along by Dominick until he captured the long end of the purse by half a length, with Arnold third.

News was circulated that A. K. Macomber's Sunbonnet, the champion three-year-old filly of last year, had bowed a tendon in her preparation for the Metropolitan Handicap, and that Wilfrid Viau, the owner of Omar Khayyam, had refused an offer of $75,000, made by Edward B. McLean, for his colt.

NET TITLE FOR MISS RICE.

She Beats Miss Aydelotte for Metropolitan Honors.

Miss Helen Rice was crowned yesterday as the girls' Metropolitan tennis champion in singles when she defeated Miss Winifred Aydelotte in the final round of the event at Forest Hills in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3.

Miss Rice won her way through three matches yesterday. Her first victim was Miss Janet Travell, who gave the new titleholder her hardest match of the tournament. This was a three-set contest which Miss Rice won at 6—3, 3—6, 6—2. There were many sharply-played rallies during this encounter and some spirited duels at the net. A tendency to double faults on the part of Miss Rice proved costly at times, but she worked her way out of the difficulties admirably.

The champion next disposed of Miss Joy Hansel, a capable player, at 6—4, 6—2, and then tested strength, in the final round, with Miss Aydelotte, whose tennis skill was developed in California. The latter showed herself a worthy opponent, but Miss Rice, inspired by her close approach to victory, played even better tennis than in the earlier rounds and swept through to a comparatively easy victory.

The doubles championship will begin on the Forest Hills courts Friday afternoon and the event will end with Saturday morning's play.

The scores of yesterday's matches were:

Second Round—Miss Winifred Aydelotte, Horace Mann School, defeated Miss Louise Kreuter, Horace Mann School, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Helen Rice, Chapin School, defeated Miss Janet Travell, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2.

Semi-Final Round—Miss Winifred Aydelotte defeated Miss Ruth Goldsmith, Horace Mann School, 6—4, 6—3; Miss Helen Rice defeated Miss Joy Hansel, Cranford, 6—4, 6—2.

RICHARDS AND TAYLOR WIN.

Advance to Final Round of Brooklyn Tennis Championship.

The Brooklyn junior tennis championship at the Terrace Club yesterday narrowed down to the final round, the remaining contenders for the title being Vincent Richards, the national boys' champion, and Harold Taylor, holder of the Metropolitan junior championship.

Richards won his way to the advanced position in the tournament by disposing of two contenders. In the third round he vanquished Richard Myers of Philadelphia at 6—0, 6—2, and in the semi-final round defeated Gerald Emerson at 6—0, 6—4. Taylor also disposed of a Philadelphian, G. B. Pfingst, but only after a spirited three-set match. The score was 3—6, 6—4, 7—5.

PREDICT AFTER-WAR INDUSTRY CONTROL

Manufacturers Think Federalization Results Will Justify Its Being Retained.

HOLD CONVENTION HERE

Committee on Interstate Commerce Does Not Want Return to Pre-War Conditions.

The prediction was made yesterday at the opening session of the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers, held at the Waldorf-Astoria, that the Government's war control over commerce and industry would be retained in large measure after peace was declared, and with results beneficial to American business.

J. G. Battelle, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce and Federal Incorporation, read the report of the committee, which reviewed the results obtained from Federal control of transportation, commerce, and industry as a war measure. After discussing the control and centralization effected in all lines of industry by the national Government, the report said:

"In the opinion of your committee one of the results of the federalization of our resources will be the permanent enlargement of national control of our industrial and commrcial life. For we are now at last acting as a nation through unified action. We do not believe that there will be a return of pre-war conditions, for we hold that the efficiency of a larger degree of national administration will justify itself in post bellum conditions.

"We hazard the opinion that a great many of the obstacles, which have heretofore so seriously interfered with the stream of commercial development, will be removed; that there will be a new spirit of enterprise and permissive legislation which will stimulate our industrial growth along marvelous lines of prosperity."

The committee said it did not mean to imply the slightest change in our structure of Government, nor that the inherent powers of the various States should be diminished.

"We merely suggest," the report continued, "that from the experience in nationalization the results would prove the wisdom of a more centralized and less diverse and devious control of our industries, commerce, and trade. Probably the best proof of our contention will be the effect upon our transportation systems.

Effect on Transportation.

"We have seen the effect of forty-eight different State laws governing the operation of interstate commerce, with their conflicting and restricting regulations. When we add to this the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and all the difficulties inherent to such dual control over our arteries of trade it seems to your committee that one of two alternatives must prevail—either the railroads, and indeed all forms of interstate commerce must be protected by a larger sphere of Federal control and a diminishment of State control, or after the war is concluded we will be in the unfortunate and intolerable conditions which have so long served to interfere with the natural and logical development of our carriers and our interstate commerce."

In another part of its report, the association's Committee on Interstate Commerce and Federal Incorporation said it believed that another reformation would take place, "as a result of our more closely knit national co-operation." This, it was explained, would be a revision of this country's entire scheme of corporate taxation.

"Not only will there be a greater degree of uniformity in the State laws dealing with the incorporation, organization, and supervision of corporations," said the report, "but there will be, perhaps, means and devices whereby needless expense and unnecessary obstacles may properly be eliminated."

H. E. Miles, as Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Education, submitted a report in which it was held that industrial training of an intensive and practical kind would prove one of the most potent factors in winning the war. Other reports read related to industrial betterment, bankruptcy, health and safety, patents, and a variety of other subjects of interest to manufacturers. The different reports were approved by the convention.

John Kirby, Jr., of Dayton, Ohio, Chairman of the Board of Directors, called the convention to order, and spoke feelingly of the loss sustained by the association in the recent death of Colonel George Pope, its late President.

MAY LIMIT TICKER SERVICE.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Federal Court decrees sustaining an order of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission requiring the Western Union Telegraph Company and the United Telegram Company to furnish to Calvin H. Foster, a Boston broker, New York Stock Exchange quotations by ticker service, were set aside today by the Supreme Court.

The above litigation arose out of an attempt on the part of C. H. Foster to compel the Western Union to furnish him with New York Stock Exchange quotations after his application to the telegraph company had been disapproved by the Exchange authorities. Foster then applied to the Public Service Commission of Massachusetts for an order compelling the Western Union to supply the quotations. This was granted.

On an appeal to the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, made by the Western Union, the order of the commission was upheld. The telegraph company thereupon carried the case to the Supreme Court of the United States on the theory that the matter was an interstate one and, therefore, not subject to the jurisdiction of State courts. At the same time, the New York Stock Exchange joined in the litigation as the question of the ownership of its quotations was involved.

TRACTORS REPLACING AUTOS

Production of Pleasure Cars Cut 30 Per Cent., Credit Managers Hear.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20.—The production of pleasure cars has fallen off 30 per cent. since America's entry into the war, according to a committee's report to the war conference of the credit managers of automobile and accessory manufacturers here today. The production of tractors will be substituted for pleasure automobiles and other parts of the industry listed as nonessentials by the Government. The falling off in production of pleasure cars has been more than balanced by the entry of manufacturers into the construction of airplanes and airplane motors, and committees reported they were also going in for building submarine batteries on a large scale.

Charles W. Stiger of Detroit, President of the association, stated that the commandeering in the West of horses for cavalry and other war purposes has become the demand for tractors, making it an attractive business now, and which would continue after the war.

WORLD'S PRICES ARE RISING

Flax, Which Was $269 Per Ton in 1914, Has Reached $1,188.

A compilation issued yesterday by the National City Bank showed that the prices of merchandise being exported from all parts of the world have increased in most cases from 50 to 100 per cent. above those prevailing before the European war, while most prices are materially higher than those of one year ago. Among the articles showing heavy advances in prices are bananas, bristles, horseskins, edible olive oil, beans, flax, sisal, and peanuts. Some of these articles advanced as much as 100 per cent.

The average price of cotton entering the United States, much of it from Egypt, was quoted at 1[illegible]3 cents per pound in February, 1914, while in January and February, 1918, it averaged 35 cents per pound. Raw silk, chiefly from Japan and China, averaged $3.63 per pound in February, 1915, and $5.50 in the closing months of 1917. Flax, imported normally from Russia, Scotland, and Ireland, averaged in February, 1914, in the country from which exported, $269 per ton, and in February, 1918, $1,188. Among the articles in which there was no advance in price, and in some an actual decline, were coffee, cocoa, and india rubber.

Building a Reserve

The wise investor is regularly investing his surplus above war taxes and Government Bonds in short term securities of industries essential to our nation at war.

He thus secures a fairly liquid and high interest bearing investment that will provide a strong reserve should there be a business depression following the war.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

After an opening that gave every promise of a resumption of the bullish movement in stocks, which was interrupted in the final days of last week, the market turned heavy yesterday and prices clung persistently to the lower levels made in the reaction following the first burst of enthusiasm. The close was irregular, most issues ending the day at about their lowest figure, but the net declines from Saturday's figures were for the most part small.

Yesterday's selling converged upon United States Steel and brought about a reaction in that issue of 3⅛ points from the best price of the early morning. It closed off 2⅝ points for the day, with Republic, Crucible, Gulf States, and Lackawanna sympathetically heavy. The outstanding exception in yesterday's traders' market was Baldwin, which swung into its stride for a time by going to within a small fraction of par and retaining a gain of 2⅜ points after a reaction of more than 3 from its best price of the day.

The list opened under the influence of the news that the Government had approved budgets for the railroads totaling $937,000,000, to be spent on improvements and additions. It was generally assumed at first that the Washington announcement meant that the Railroad Administration had committed itself to provide the sums authorized for expenditure, but a different interpretation placed upon the announcement by bankers and railroad executives removed some of the gratification which traders displayed in bidding for the rails at the opening. It is the understanding in well-informed financial circles that Mr. McAdoo has in effect given the roads permission to carry out plans submitted to him which would call for the expenditure of almost a billion dollars without obligating the Government to provide the money. It is the present understanding that wherever possible the carriers will be expected to finance their own needs, subject, of course, to approval by the Capital Issues Committee, and that only where the credit of a company is obviously too poor to attract new investment capital will the Government make use of its revolving fund to allow a company to buy needed equipment and pay for new construction.

It is felt in important banking quarters that the Administration must recognize the impossibility of borrowing the huge sums needed if a maximum of 6 per cent. is to be fixed as the outside cost of new capital. One suggestion made yesterday is that where the roads are to be financed through short-term issues, which will have to be met before the probable expiration of the period of Government control as fixed by law, it would be proper to pay the current price for funds, but that it would be unfair to burden a company with high interest-bearing obligations which will have to be provided for some years after the war, when the Government's responsibility is ended.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Call money rates ranged yesterday from 4½ to 5 per cent., compared with 5 to 5½ per cent. on Friday. Renewals were made at 5 per cent. and new borrowings were relatively small in volume. Time money rates were unchanged, with only a small supply available.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Baldwin's Counter Movement.

The course of Baldwin Locomotive shares in yesterday's market was more of a puzzle than ever to watchers at the ticker. Opening at 94¾ the price moved forward to 99⅝ before noon, and, while highly irregular in its afternoon swings under the influence of what appeared to be short selling and profit-taking, scored a net gain of 2⅜ points for the day. The size of the net advance was not unusual for Baldwin except in contrast with the market tendency among the other speculative issues. With the Steel stocks, particularly Steel common, under fairly steady pressure, the rise of Baldwin was hard for the average run of traders to explain. Presumably, the buying which buoyed up the price was not predicated on the expectation of a dividend at the meeting of Directors on Thursday. In quarters close to the company doubt was cast on the likelihood of dividend action at this time.

Land Bank Bonds Go Well.

Members of the banking syndicate which has charge of the distribution of the new 5 per cent. Federal Land Bank bonds reported yesterday that the offering of the securities brought a very encouraging response on the first day. Applications for the bonds came in principally from individual investors but there was also a good demand from institutions. One investor placed an order for $1,000,000. It is believed that within a very short time $30,000,000 worth will be disposed of.

The Big Marine Deal.

There will be a special meeting of the Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company today, in connection, it is understood, with the progress of the sale of the company's British interests to a syndicate on the other side of the Atlantic. Officials of the company, however, continue to deprecate too complete acceptance of the assumption that the deal is completed, as there are always possibilities of hitches in negotiations of such magnitude and so complicated a character.

Wabash Not Mentioned.

The Wabash Railroad Company may never have realized how many friends it had until its name failed to appear yesterday morning on the list of approved capital expenditures made public by Director General McAdoo. A vast number of anxious inquiries were made all day yesterday, by telephone, by messenger, and by direct appeal, of everybody who might be expected to know something about the Wabash's affairs. Directors of the road, at least such of them as were in New York yesterday, professed themselves as much puzzled as any one else at the omission, as the Wabash had submitted a budget of capital expenditures along with every one else. The general theory was that its allotment was accidentally left out.

Competition for Honor Flags.

Of the 2,100 communities in the Second, or New York, Federal Reserve District, Liberty Loan honor flags have already been awarded to about 1,700, and before the final reports are completed it is predicted that the cities and towns which have oversubscribed their respective quotas will number between 1,800 and 1,900. The town which shows the largest oversubscription will receive a silver cup from the Manhattan Club.

Regulating Bank Mergers.

The recent movement toward banking amalgamations in England has elicited some criticism and a committee was appointed to consider the subject. This committee will soon file its recommendations and it is reported from London that it will advise that all future fusions of banks be subject to approval by a special committee of three, one of whom shall represent the Government.

Heavy Sales of Steel Common.

The "flush buying" of the first half hour, stimulated by the announcement of proposed railroad expenditures, was strongly reflected in Steel, which rose a full point. From this level steady offerings carried the quotation down at one time 3⅛ points, a movement which gratified the bears but was disturbing to holders who had bought in the buoyant days last week, not only because of the extent of the fall but also for the reason that the weight of offerings at times indicated that some long lines were coming on the market. Several commission houses which do a large business through their offices in the Middle West were reported as important sellers. The same firms were insistent buyers early last week.

Royal Dutch Shows Strength.

Royal Dutch Petroleum shares at 91 yesterday established a new high record, with a net gain of 8½ points for the day on top of a 7½-point rise last week. The movement was in marked contrast with the price tendency of other oil stocks on the Exchange, Texas Company receding 4½ and Mexican Petroleum 1⅝ points.

Cities Service Stockholders.

The Cities Service Company had 13,598 stockholders on April 15, compared with 12,768 on Jan. 15 and 10,529 on Jan. 15, 1917. In the year ended April 15 last the number increased 18 per cent.

Southern Spot Cotton Sales.

No cotton at all was sold yesterday on five out of ten Southern spot markets, and at only one market—New Orleans—did sales run into four figures, where 1,783 bales were sold at 29.25, the same price that ruled most of last week. At Galveston only 718 bales changed hands at 28 cents; at Little Rock 571 bales at 30 cents; at Memphis 850 bales at 30 cents, and at Houston only 168 bales at 27.50 cents.

New Security Issues.

Caldwell Hardy, Chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Capital Issues of that district, has issued a letter in regard to new capital issues in which he points out the desirability of co-operation on the part of bond houses and others interested in the sale of securities to the end that a uniform policy might be pursued in all districts in respect to the flotation of new securities. "If while the authorities in some districts are aiming to co-operate in securing the postponement of construction of school buildings, roads, bridges, and other improvements," he says, "other districts are not pressing the same policy, it will work a manifest injustice in districts in which stringent elimination is being enforced. For instance, if the Richmond District is not living up to the spirit of the movement, and other districts are at the same time pursuing a searching policy and rigid enforcement of restrictions, it would impose an unequal burden upon such other districts."

Making Adverse Reports.

"We are reporting adversely," continues Mr. Hardy, "upon many propositions involving school construction in communities which have gotten along satisfactorily up to the present time, even though facilities may be somewhat over-crowded, where the expenditures do not seem to be imperatively necessary to meet a definite and positive menace to the health and welfare of school children. We are urging upon all communities to reduce proposals to a minimum or eliminate them, unless it can be shown not only that they are desirable from the standpoint of public health and welfare, but that they are absolutely necessary to prevent injurious results. If such a test cannot be applied, proposals should be judged as to whether the expenditures will contribute definitely and directly to the successful operations of the Government and the winning of the war. Roads which might in a general way help the movement of crops can hardly be included in this category. Crops at present high prices will continue to be moved at no more inconvenience than has attended the movement of them heretofore, and the more economical movement of them by good roads may reasonably wait until the war is over and good roads can be more readily financed."

RAILROAD LEADERS LIKE FINANCE PLAN

Executives and Financiers Here, However, Regard the McAdoo Program as Tentative.

DISCUSS NEW SECURITIES

Stronger Roads, Bankers Believe, Will Have No Difficulty, and Government Will Aid the Weaker.

Railroad executives, Directors, and financiers in New York yesterday generally seemed inclined to regard the announcement of the Railroad Administration, of the capital expenditures authorized for various roads, as to a large extent a tentative program, upon which the roads could "carry on" until the operating contracts, by which the provisions of the Railroad Control act assume definite form in the case of each road, are put into shape and accepted by both parties to the negotiations.

As a tentative program, however, the general sentiment was that the announcement authorized by Mr. McAdoo was thoroughly sound and praiseworthy. It was interpreted by bankers interested in railway financing, not as a pledge that the Government would finance the roads throughout up to the amounts set opposite their names—this would immediately consume the entire "revolving fund" appropriated for the Railroad Administration and much more money besides—but as authority to the roads to go ahead with their improvements, additions, and betterments, up to the limit assigned them, but to finance them themselves, with the understanding, however, that the Government would assist them as far as possible in doing so.

In the case of railroads now in receivership, or in comparatively shaky financial circumstances, bankers take it for granted that the Government will see that they get the money, because they cannot get it elsewhere, and their upkeep as operating properties is as important in many cases to the country's wartime transportation system as that of more fortunate roads. It was noted that in many cases, as in that of the Denver & Rio Grande, which is in receivership, Mr. McAdoo made a very deep cut in the estimates, presumably to the minimum required to maintain the efficiency of the road.

It was pointed out that advances had been made recently by New York banks to several different roads, in some cases with Mr. McAdoo's assistance as an intermediary; in other cases through a direct private arrangement, but of course with the Director General's approval. In this way some of the funds called for in yesterday's announcement already have been provided.

Paring of Railroad Estimates.

Regarding the various cuts in the estimates, as approved by Mr. McAdoo, one well-known railroad banker yesterday said that the estimates for capital expenditures, on which the list was made up, were submitted to the Director General some time ago, in obedience to a call which he issued almost immediately after taking charge, and that since then the Railroad Administration in some cases, by different routing of traffic, or by various similar redistributions of the strain, had very largely removed the immediate necessity for some of the largest expenditures asked for.

Thus some estimates were submitted on the basis of very large improvements to terminal facilities, and others for new rolling stock, whereas Mr. McAdoo has since, by combining terminals, removed the need for one, and has taken the other under direct charge of the Government for all roads combined.

Regarding the degree of success to be expected in floating the new capital issues called for, if, as they expect, the roads are to finance themselves as much as possible, bankers were much more cautious. The general sentiment was that all the stronger roads could be taken care of without trouble, that all the weaker roads would have to be taken care of by the Government, but that in between there was a very large twilight zone, through which the drawing of the exact dividing line depended on the state of the market and the degree of progress made, and the nature of the terms in the individual contracts.

"We cannot figure definitely on getting the money for the roads," said one banker who has floated many railroad security issues, "until we know what their income is to be, on which the securities will be based, and we will not know that until the contracts are signed. Much depends on the liberality with which the Railroad Administration itself interprets the law as affecting the individual roads. The market, also, could improve some more without injury to the possibilities of floating new issues. But we all welcome this announcement, as meaning that the Government proposes to live up in spirit to its agreement to permit no deterioration in the properties intrusted to its care."

Details of Central's Budget.

Alfred H. Smith, President of the New York Central Railroad Company and Regional Director of the Eastern railroads, permitted yesterday an inspection of the New York Central's budget covering the $70,672,087 of capital expenditures authorized by the National Railroad Administration.

The budget, which is voluminous, containing long tables of estimates, covers several hundred items, large and small. Its subject matter is described as "additions, betterments, and extensions, inclusive of equipment, authorized or contracted for since Dec. 27, 1917, or which in the judgment of the management it is necessary should be authorized or contracted for during the calendar year 1918."

The $70,672,087 of capital expenditure approved is for the New York Central Railroad Company proper, being the lines east of Buffalo and the Lake Shore route from Buffalo west to Chicago, but does not include the dozen affiliated companies which make up the New York Central Lines, or system. For the entire system the capital expenditures authorized aggregate $163,-000,000.

The New York Central Railroad Company's budget is divided as follows: For additions and betterments, $32,428,693; for equipment, $38,168,394; for extensions, $75,000. The authorized expenditures for roadway and facilities are divided: Buffalo and east, $22,847,-493; west of Buffalo, $9,656,200.

The $38,168,394 authorized for equipment, which is in addition to $3,640,685 to be expended during the year but charged to operating expenses, in apportionment of the investment will be expended as follows:

Locomotives—Contracted for, $8,731,800; not authorized but necessary in 1918, $9,340,400.

Freight train cars—Contracted for, $265,-634; not authorized but necessary in 1918, $8,600,000.

Passenger train cars—Contracted for $3,112,808; not authorized but necessary in 1918, $2,274,000.

Marine equipment—Contracted for, none; not authorized but necessary in 1918, $1,-280,000.

Other equipment—Contracted for, $22,200; not authorized but necessary in 1918, $1,-967,000.

Betterments to equipment—Locomotives, $794,529; freight cars, $5,069,741; passenger cars, $370,967. Of this total for betterments to equipment, $3,640,687 is to be charged to operating expenses, and the remainder to investment account.

HOW 1918 WOOL CLIP WILL BE DISPOSED OF

POINTS OF DISTRIBUTION

Named to Concentrate Crop Near Manufacturing Centres—Guards Against Profiteering.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Federal regulations for handling the wool clip of 1918 were announced today by the War Industries Board. They define the prior right of the Government to take all of this year's clip, fix the prices as established on July 30, 1917, at Atlantic seaboard markets, provide for the distribution of the clip through approved dealers and distributing centres, one of which is New York City, and contain what are regarded as necessary safeguards against profiteering. The Board gave out a table also setting forth the valuations as of July 30, 1917, on which the prices are based. In summarizing the new regulations, the War Industries Board said:

"The Government shall have a prior right to acquire all of the 1918 wool clip or any portion thereof which it may require at the prices fixed by the War Industries Board. The remainder will be subject to allocation for civilian purposes under the direction of the War Industries Board.

"A very large portion of the wool manufacturing machinery working on Government contracts is located close to the Atlantic seaboard, and in order to avoid the possibility of railroad delay and congestion late in the season when the crops are moving it is desirable and necessary that the wool clip shall be collected as soon as possible at points near to the manufacturing centres. For these reasons it has been considered advisable to designate as distributing centres those centres which are close to points of consumption and which have the necessary facilities for handling wool.

"The necessities of the Government at this time are such as to require the use of all existing agencies for concentrating the wool near the centres of consumption. Therefore, all the wool of the 1918 clip must be distributed through approved dealers in approved centres of distribution.

"Approved dealers shall be those dealers authorized by the War Industries Board to handle wool who are located in the distributing centres and who buy from growers direct, through agents, or from country merchants; and also those dealers authorized by the War Industries Board who are located in wool growing districts, and who buy direct from growers and resell, or consign to the dealers in distributing centres.

"In a general way the clip may be divided into fleece wool and territory wool.

"Fleece wool shall be considered as that which is grown in the States east of the Mississippi River, and also the States of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, and Louisiana, and also those parts of Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota, and other localities where the same general conditions prevail. All wool not listed as fleece wool shall be considered territory wool.

"Approved dealers shall be entitled to a gross profit in no case to exceed 1½ cents a pound on the total season's business, this profit to cover all expenses from grower to loading wool on board cars.

"The grower shall receive fair prices for his wool based on the Atlantic seaboard price as established on July 30, 1917, less the profit to the dealer as stated above and less freight to seaboard, moisture, shrinkage, and interest.

"In no case shall this be construed to mean that there shall be more than 1½ cents gross profits from time wool leaves the growers hands until it arrives at the distributing centre.

"On consignments forwarded to distributing centres, the prices to be paid for wool to the approved dealers therein shall be those established by the Valuation Committee on Atlantic seaboard values of July 30, 1917, to which shall be added a commission of 4 per cent. to be paid by the Government, if bought by the Government, or by the manufacturer to whom the wool is allotted for other than Government purposes. This commission is to include grading and other expenses of handling. The consignor shall be charged with the freight on his shipment and interest on all advances made for his acount to the date of the arrival of his wool at a distributing centre as shown by the railroad receipt.

"Growers who desire to do so will be allowed to pool their clips in quantities of not less than minimum carloads of 16,000 pounds, and consign the wools so pooled as one account to any approved dealer in any approved distributing centre. Growers are urged to adopt this latter course through county agents or others, thus eliminating the profits of one middleman.

"Approved dealers in approved distributing centres for such wool as they may require are to be those established as of July 30, 1917, at the Atlantic seaboard markets. In addition to said prices the Government is to pay a further sum equal to 4 per cent. of the selling prices to cover compensation or commission to approved dealers for their services in collecting and distributing wool. On wool not taken by the Government for its own use, and which may be allocated for other uses, prices will also be fixed in accordance with July 30, 1917, values at Atlantic seaboard markets, and on such wool approved dealers shall be entitled to a commission or compensation of a sum equal to 4 per cent. of the selling price, and this commission or compensation shall be a charge against said pool, and shall be collected from the manufacturer to whom said wool is allocated.

"As a guard against profiteering, the books of all approved dealers in distributing centres shall be at all times open to Government inspection, and if it be found that their gross profits, including the aforesaid commission of 4 per cent., are in excess of 5 per cent. on the season's business, then such gross profits shall be disposed of as the Government decides.

"The books of the country dealers shall, likewise, be open to Government inspection. If it be found that their gross profit for the season's business is in excess of 1½ cents per pound, then such excess profits shall be disposed of as the Government may decide.

"The approved distributing centres for fleece wools are: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Louisville, Baltimore, and Wheeling, W. Va.

"For the reasons stated, in order that the 1918 wool clip may be promptly concentrated near the manufacturing centres and to make use of every available agency for storing and grading, all territory wools must be consigned to one of the designated distributing centres, which are as follows: Portland, Ore.; Chicago, Ill.; New York City, St. Louis, Boston, and Philadelphia.

"The only exception is that clips of under 1,000 pounds may be sold by the owner. In buying these small clips, the buyer must recognize that he is entitled to only a small profit, which must not exceed 2 cents a pound.

"The grower does not pay the commission or compensation for handling wools in the designated distributing centres. This commission or compensation for handling will be added to selling price of the wool and paid by the buyer. If sold in the original bags the commission or compensation shall be 3 per cent. of the selling price. If the wool is graded the commission or compensation shall be 3½ per cent. of the selling price.

"All dealers in approved centres desiring a permit to operate should apply to the Wool Division of the War Industries Board stating their capacity for storing and grading. All country dealers should apply for a permit to operate by writing to the Wool Division of the War Industries Board, giving name and address. In order to expedite movement of wool, dealers in country districts and distributing centres may operate immediately in accordance with the above regulations, pending application for and granting of permit."

STEEL MEN SEE REPLOGLE.

Discuss Ways to Furnish Adequate Supply for War Needs.

The special committee of steel manufacturers which was appointed last week to confer with a similar committee of the War Industries Board over ways to furnish adequate supplies of material for the United States Government and the Allies met yesterday with J. Leonard Replogle, Director of Steel Supply, at the offices of the Lackawanna Steel Company. The session began early in the day and continued until late in the evening. E. A. S. Clarke, President of the Lackawanna, said while the meeting was in progress that no information in respect to the matters under discussion would be made public for the present.

The Steel Committee consists of Mr. Clarke, J. A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation; E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; H. G. Dalton of Pickands, Mather & Co., and John A. Topping, Chairman of the Republic Iron and Steel Company. Mr. Replogle was the only member of the Government's committee who attended. It was understood in the steel trade circles that the conference was called to compare data on the amount of steel the Government must have in the remainder of the year for its own war and shipbuilding purposes, railroad work, and for the European allies with the tonnages which the industry expects to turn out. Other meetings will be held in the near future.

THE COTTON MARKET

New Crop Months Reach New Low Ground for Season—Net Losses 29 to 41 Points.

There was a flavor reminiscent of the uncomfortable—to shorts—days of the early season about the opening of the local cotton market yesterday, when May contracts were in demand at 21 points above Saturday's closing, with the rest of the list selling off from 9 to 36 points. It speedily developed, however, that the shorts who had bid so high had nothing to fear, for the whole tendency of the day's news and of market conditions was all the other way. The new crop months, in fact, before the day was over had sunk into new low ground for the current season, and July and May soon followed them down. The close was steady, with net losses from 29 to 41 points.

The fine growing weather reported from nearly everywhere in the South had a predominant effect on quotations in what many operators are now calling "a weather market, pure and simple." They are now expecting not only a favorable weekly weather report from the Weather Bureau tomorrow, but also a better end-of-May condition report than was hoped for last week. A few localities are still complaining of too much rain, but beyond this there was little to encourage the bulls, while continued reports from England emphasized the further drastic restrictions there upon dealings in raw cotton and upon mill consumption.

At about 49 to 56 points under Saturday's close, however, the selling tapered off and some of the early sellers proceeded to cover. May contracts were apparently still regarded somewhat gingerly by bear operators, for this delivery, which is closed out on Friday, was slowest to follow the new crop months down and the quickest to rally. Aside from short covering, however, there appeared to be little or no support in the market.

No exports were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged or slightly lower.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

The stock of wheat at visible supply points in the United States decreased 306,000 bushels during the last week, bringing the total to only 1,566,000 bushels, compared with 30,179,000 a year ago. The new harvest is so near at hand, however, that the trade is not particularly concerned over the small visible, especially as the distribution of wheat this year has been on a different basis than formerly, and much wheat has gone direct to the mills and country elevators without appearing at the principal terminals.

RYE.

CORN.

The corn market showed decided firmness, and at the close the July position was 2⅛c net higher. The visible supply in the United States decreased 301,000 bushels for the week, bringing the total to 13,118,000 bushels, compared with 3,872,000 last year. In the local cash market kiln-dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.53; No. 4 yellow, $1.42, cost and freight, New York.

July	1.43⅝	1.40⅝	1.43⅜	1.40⅞	1.54⅜

OATS.

Further fears of congestion in the May position gave the oats market a firm tone and there was a good demand from shorts. Offers were comparatively small and at the close prices were slightly below the top, but 1¼c to 1⅝c net higher. The visible supply decreased 882,000 bushels and the total was 20,514,000, compared with 22,892,000 last year. In the local cash market natural was quoted at 82½c to 85c, clipped white at 84c to 89c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was irregular, lard and ribs closing with slight declines, while pork was firmer. Receipts of hogs were smaller than expected, but there was considerable pressure on every upturn and this kept the markets within a narrow range. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 37,000, estimated for Tuesday 27,000; Kansas City received 10,000 and Omaha 9,500 hogs.

COFFEE.

There was no change in the general ruling of the coffee market yesterday. The opening was nominally unchanged to 1 point lower, and the only sales reported were of September at 8.36c and October at 8.39c, with the market closing at a net decline of 2 to 3 points. The local spot market was dull and unchanged, at 8⅝c for Rio 7s and 10⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There was no change in raw sugar prices, which remain at the fixed level of 4.985c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c for centrifugal, although trading was pretty active. The committee reported purchases of 55,700 bags of Cubas, 1,500 tons Porto Ricos, 8,000 tons St. Croix, and 525 tons Vera Cruz, all for May shipment, which, together with previous purchases for May shipment, brings the total well above the 300,000 tons promised last month. With no complaint of any great amount of scarcity of ocean freight room, it would seem that there will be enough raw sugar here to take care of the early Summer demand for refined. Prices for refined sugar remain at the fixed level of 7.45c for fine granulated, with all refiners in the market and said to be making pretty fair delivery.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,459 packages. Very little business and no quotable change to values. The feeling is still unsettled, with buyers having some advantage. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 45½@46c; extras, (92 score,) 45c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 43¾@44½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37½@41½c; thirds, 35@37c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 47@48c; extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 45½@46c; seconds, 40@42c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 44½@45c; good to prime, 42@44c; common to fair, 35@41c; renovated, extras, 38½@39c; firsts, 37@38c; lower grades, 33@35c; imitation creamery, firsts, 34½@35c; ladles, current make, firsts, 32½@33½c; seconds, 31@31½c; lower grades, 29@30½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 31@31½c; No. 2, 30@30½c; lower grades, 27@29½c.

EGGS.—14,688 cases. The market opened with liberal accumulation on hand, dull trade, considerable pressure to sell, and further decline. Receipts are lighter and advices indicate lighter shipments in transit. It is hoped that this may restore healthier conditions during the week, but at the moment holders are anxious to move stock and disposed to accept any reasonable bids, particularly for the medium and ordinary qualities, which comprise a considerable part of the supply. Fine qualities can be bought at the reduction quoted, although some fancy goods are not offered at the reduction. Dirties and checks rule lower. Nearby white eggs were in somewhat lighter receipt, but there are liberal supplies carried over from last week, and the demand is limited even at unchanged prices. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36@37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed extra firsts, 34½@35c; regular packed firsts, 33@34c; seconds and poorer, 30@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, storage packed, 31½@32c; No. 1, regular packed, 30½@31c; No. 2 and poorer, 29@30c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 29@30c; undergrades, 22@28c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39@40c; ordinary to prime, 37@38c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 36@38c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 37@38c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 33½@35c.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks closed weak in an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Net declines from a fraction to more than two points were registered in a majority of the issues, and the few stocks which did show increases were substantially below their high quotations for the session. Throughout the session stocks were freely supplied. There were occasional and spirited rallies following the reaction which came after a strong opening, but they were brief in duration.

MISSISSIPPI COUNTY—
Location—It is the north-east county in Arkansas.
Area—554,000 acres. Taxable value $14,502,000.
Population—1918 (estimated) 50,000. 1910 Census 30,468. 1900 Census 16,384.

Soil—Probably as fertile as any in the United States, needing only drainage.
Drainage—County successfully drained with the exception of this District No. 17.
Crops—Principally cotton, wheat and corn, but it has been demonstrated that the soil and climate will profitably grow any cereal, vegetable and fruit.
Flood Protection—Entire county lies within the St. Francis Levee District.

DISTRICT No. 17—
Location—Extends from north-east corner of county, west and southwest, containing 148,331 acres.
Population—About 15,000. Assessed valuation, $4,457,500.
Soil and Crops—Practically the same as the entire county.
Value of Land—Varies from $200 for improved land to $25 for the unimproved. The improved land rents for from $20 to $10 per acre.
Cultivation—About one-third of land now under cultivation. Experience in other districts in this county after completion of drainage assures rapid increase in cultivated area.
City in District—Entire city of Blytheville lies within the District. The drainage of the district includes storm water sewer for this city.
Railroads—District is traversed by St. Louis & San Francisco and four other railroads with a total of 32 miles of track.

The bonds are issued for the construction of a complete system to thoroughly drain the District. The plans follow closely those used in the other districts in the county, which have proved adequate in every way. The improvement will, no doubt, largely enhance the value of the land.

The bonds are issued under authority of an Act of the Legislature of Arkansas, in accordance with which benefits have been assessed against all the land and railways therein. These assessed benefits (total $4,008,000) have been approved by the County Court and are incontestable.

Payment of the bonds is provided by a general yearly tax on all the real property in the district in proportion to the benefits assessed, at a rate sufficient to produce 110% of the next maturing principal and interest. The law provides that taxes may be levied against real property up to the total amount of the benefits so assessed. This limit of taxes is so much in excess of the total required to pay principal and interest that it would appear that this limit would never be reached.

For the payment of principal and interest of this issue of bonds, the annual average tax will amount to from $.24 to $1.20 per acre. These taxes are collected by County Officials and the laws prevent the acceptance of the payment of state and county taxes without the payment of drainage taxes.

Since 1910, excluding this District No. 17, there have been organized in Mississippi County six drainage districts with a total area of 366,000 acres with total bond issues of $2,040,000. There has been no default in the payment of either principal or interest and the delinquencies in tax payments have been negligible.

Legality approved by Messrs. Rose, Hemingway, Cantrell, Loughborough & Miles, Attorneys of Little Rock Ark., and Messrs. Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland.

Statistics and statements above given, while not guaranteed by us, are considered reliable and are those upon which we based our purchase of these bonds.

Tan Caps Popular.

Reports from manufacturers in this city indicate that caps for men are very much in demand in many parts of the country. Tan shades, both light and dark, are said to be the most generally sought. They are wanted in the lightweight mohair caps as well as in those made of heavier materials. In no other item of men's dress, it seems, has the military exerted so strong an influence on styles. Various adaptations of the trench cap are reported to be very much in favor everywhere. In all colors but tans, it seems that the darker shades are usually preferred.

Floor Coverings Well Sold Up.

In view of the prospects of still higher prices and the certainty of an unusually limited production, big buyers of carpets and rugs have let no grass grow under their feet when it came to making sure of supplying as much of their normal Fall requirements as possible. The result is that practically all of the goods which can be shipped within the delivery limits set by the different mills are already under order. Particularly is this true of the medium-priced grades of rugs. A similar situation exists in the linoleum end of the trade, where the production outlook is even more serious. Official information, obtained by the Department of State from the British Government, makes certain that no more wide burlaps will be woven in Dundee for some time, possibly not until the end of the war. Because of the high cost of good battleship linoleums, most of the attention of buyers so far this season has been given to the cheaper grades of this construction and to 8-4 plain and 16-4 printed goods.

Stimulates Skirt Sales.

It is said that the vogue for sleeveless coats has proved to be one of the greatest stimulants that the separate skirt trade has ever experienced. It was pointed out by one prominent dealer in the trade that sleeveless coats, usually made in a solid color or in black velvet, are considered very smart when worn with a skirt of some striped or checked material and made up with long vertical pleats. Thus a demand has resulted for skirts of this type which is said to be unequaled, as to volume, by any previous season on record.

Tunic Styles in Vogue.

Tunics are very popular this season in separate skirts as well as in dresses, according to reports from the local trade. In fact, this type of drapery is so generally favored, it is said, that few manufacturers are devoting very much attention to developing garments without tunics of one sort or another. There is a wide variety of tunics being used, ranging all the way from the long, even type to those made very short, little more than hip length, and irregular. Many are gathered up in draped effects on one or both sides, and all seem to be considered very attractive.

Now Comes the Trench Helmet.

The newest thing in the local millinery world is a medium-sized mushroom hat on the order of a trench helmet. It is made of khaki-colored faille silk, and is trimmed with a band of ribbon and a small tailored bow in the front. A chin strap is used to heighten the military effect. Another innovation is a turban of grosgrain or taffeta ribbon, which is loosely braided to represent straw. The ribbon ranges from one to two inches in width, and the rough effect is obtained by puffing it out here and there. These hats are shown in navy, navy and white, and sand.

Burlaps Open Quietly.

The usual May-June slump in the demand for burlaps is at hand, and the results are apparent in the limited amount of business that is now going on here. Prices are steady, all things considered, and a firmer feeling at Calcutta is said to presage higher quotations in this market if it continues. Yesterday spot lots of 8-ounce 40-inch goods were quoted here at 19 cents, with "10s" at 23¼ and "10⅛s" at 23½ to 23¾ cents. Eight-ounce "40s" on the West Coast were quoted at 18½ cents, and 10½-ounce cloths were held at 22½. The improved price tone at Calcutta is attributed in good part to the already active buying reported for July-December shipments.

Some Are Holding Back.

While there are a great many cloak and suit buyers in town now who are placing quite substantial orders for Fall merchandise, there are reported to be many others who are still holding back. It is said that these latter regard the cloth market as uncertain, and present prices for Fall garments as too high, and finally to be rather skeptical as to the extent of the retail demand next Fall. "Granting for the sake of argument," said one authority in the market in this city, "that all their fears are to materialize, if they don't come to market pretty soon and buy at least something of their Fall requirements, they are likely to find a pretty sad looking assortment to choose from later on."

Ribbon Looms to Make Webbing.

Reports that had been current in the local dry goods trade for several days, to the effect that a good portion of the country's ribbon looms were to be turned over to the manufacture of cartridge belts for the army, crystallized yesterday into the assertion that what the Government wants made on these looms is a narrow cotton webbing. This webbing, which is said to be not very heavy, is three-quarters of an inch wide, and can be made on the average ribbon loom without much shifting of the mechanism. While no information was available concerning the amount of this material, which is used for binding haversacks and for other military purposes required by the Government, it was asserted that its effect on the production of ribbons would be "noticeable."

Does Not Cover Clerks.

Apropos of the amendment to the New York State Workmen's Compensation law, recently signed by Governor Whitman, the impression is being given by certain insurance companies to many business men that insurance of this kind must be carried by all employers, excepting employers of domestic or farm help, who have more than three persons working for them. Counsel to the National Jewelers' Board of Trade, however, advises that this is not so, and that before the Governor signed the amendment he received an opinion from the State Attorney General that the act applies only to cases where four or more workmen or artisans are employed, in which all must be covered. This leads to the opinion by counsel that a retailer or jobber who only employes salespersons, office help, &c., does not come under the provisions of the law.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A fair business was done in the local gray goods market yesterday, principally on printcloths and from first hands, at full prices. For June-August delivery, sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were put through at 18½ cents and 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 20½. Eighteen cents was paid for May-June shipments of 38½-inch 64-56s, while for June-July lots of 38½-inch 60-48s 16 cents was the price. There was little of interest to coarse-yarn goods. Closing mill prices on printcloths were:

SUES REVIEW FOR $100,000.

Chicago Police Deputy Says Movie Magazine Assailed His Patriotism.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, second deputy superintendent of police and moving picture censor for Chicago, filed a suit today in the Circuit Court for $100,000 damages against the Exhibitors' Trade Review, a motion picture journal, and Lesley Mason of New York City, its editor.

Attorney William J. Lindsay, representing Major Funkhouser, said today that for the last two months the journal has consistently attacked the Major, questioning his motives and impugning his honesty.

"They have published purported interviews with the Kaiser, who thanks Major Funkhouser for the aid and comfort he is giving Germany by his actions," said Attorney Lindsay. "Furthermore, the paper has caused letters to be written to the United States Attorney General Gregory and Governor Lowden accusing him of being pro-German or anti-American."

Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll Operated Upon.

Word was received by her friends in this city yesterday that Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll, who suffered a serious injury by being struck by an automobile near London, England, nearly two years ago, underwent another operation on Sunday. Sir Arbuthnot Lane extracted a bone. It was reported that the operation has had a beneficial effect. Mrs. Nicoll is living at 8 Seamore Place, Park Lane, W. L., London, England.

TROPHIES TO HELP IN WINNING WAR

Other Valuables May Also Be Exchanged for War Stamps at Metal Market.

TO BE MELTED INTO BULLION

Useless Plate, Bridal Gifts, and Ornaments Will Be Turned Over to Government.

A new way of helping the Government both by furthering the sale of war savings stamps and by increasing the supply of bullion has been devised by a committee of wealthy society women, who will open next Monday the War Savings Metal Market, at Fifth Avenue and Fortieth Street, where all possessors of gold, silver, and metal plate will be invited to sell their valuables to the Government for War Savings Stamps. Thousands of appeals were issued by the War Savings Metal Market Committee yesterday, calling upon all owners of plate, from the bride with many wedding gifts, to the athletic winner of many cups, to bring them to the War Savings Metal Market and sell them there for an equal value in War Savings Stamps.

Beginning next Monday, assayers from jewelry establishments in the city will aid in appraising the value of the plate brought to the market. It will be a "strictly over the counter business," the appraisal being made and the value in War Savings Stamps being paid as soon as the goods are delivered. The opening of the market will be auspicious, the Governor's wife, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, having agreed to be the first person to deliver some plate to the Government.

The committee in charge of the War Savings Metal Market will be Mrs. Joseph G. Deane, Chairman; Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany, Vice Chairman; Mrs. J. Louis Stade, Miss Charlotte Delafield, Mrs. Charles C. Goodrich, Mrs. Alfred Hess, Mrs. Thomas H. Lamont, Mrs. E. T. Morgan, Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, and Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip.

After the plate is purchased it will be transferred at once to the United States Assay Office at 23 Pine Street, where it will be melted into bullion for Government purposes. In order to intensify public interest in the market the committee in charge has decided to specify days upon which a special clientele will be invited to bring its valuables. Thus, there will be a "Bride's Day," when wedding gifts will be the special article of goods desired, and "Golfers' Day," when golfers will be called upon to deliver their cups in the cause of democracy.

Associations Suspend Rules.

The committee has already obtained the agreement of many golfing associations to suspend the rule which bans a person who sells a cup from competing in tournaments. No such forfeit will be demanded if the cup is exchanged on the War Savings Metal Market for War Savings Stamps. There will be other "sportsmen's days." Then there will be a general appeal to families of wealth to exchange for War Savings Stamps all of the useless plate that is maintained in their households for purely ornamental purposes. The notice sent out by the chairman of the committee yesterday read:

Do you want to help the Government in a new way? You must have some old pieces of gold, silver, or plated ware which you would be glad to get rid of if you could put them to any use.

Your Government, working through the committee named above, gives you an opportunity to make these useless articles help win the war.

Bring them to the War Savings Metal Market, which opens on May 27 at Fifth Avenue and Fortieth Street. Here experts from the leading jewelry stores will appraise them and give you their market metal value in United States Government War Savings Stamps. We do not ask you to give your gold and silver, but to sell it to the Government for War Stamps paying 4 per cent. interest compounded quarterly.

While you lose nothing, you are aiding the Government in increasing the War Savings Loan.

Furthermore, you are helping the United States Treasury. The metal which you bring will be turned over to the United States Assay Office and melted into bullion for circulation.

The fact that the War Savings Metal Market is a regularly authorized agency of the Treasury Department will convince you that it is to be run on a strictly business basis.

Remember the address, Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue, and tell your friends.

With the Thrift Festival at the Polo Grounds less than two weeks off, Lieutenant John Philip Sousa arrived in town yesterday to rehearse the members of his band who are now playing with different orchestras and musical organizations throughout the city.

The exhibition of War Savings Posters submitted by prominent artists in the competition for the best War Saving Poster several weeks ago, opened in the Public Library yesterday. More than 200 posters are on display. Adolph Treidler, with a poster depicting a German soldier in the act of trampling down a woman, won the first prize of $1,000. The inscription on the poster reads, "Help Stop This."

Corporal Marlow H. Plant, a member of the "Old Fighting 69th," and winner of the Croix de Guerre, began his tour of the city for the War Savings Society Bureau of the War Savings Committee yesterday. He addressed the members of the Comedy Drama Club at the Hotel Astor, and the employes of the North British and Mercantile Bureau Insurance Company at 76 William Street. "I hope that before I go back, the full quota of War Savings Stamps has been sold and all America rallying for a tremendous oversubscription. Then they'll know over there the boys are behind them, heart and soul."

TIMES GUIDE FOR WOMEN.

Political Leaders and Suffragists Spread Supplement All Over City.

Suffragists and political leaders alike are using the special supplement, containing matter to guide women voters when they enroll next Saturday, which was published by THE NEW YORK TIMES and distributed with its city editions on Sunday morning, in the educational work which will be in progress practically all week, preparatory to the enrollment.

The city organization of the Woman Suffrage Party, under direction of Miss Mary Garrett Hay, has distributed 1,500 copies of the supplement among its workers, and has sent others to their district headquarters throughout the city and to business establishments where women are employed in large numbers, with requests that it be posted on the bulletin boards. The special supplement, besides a list of all the polling places in the city, a map of the Assembly Districts, and directions through which any woman may find the place where she should present herself for enrollment, contained a synopsis of the questions women voters will be required to answer and the qualifications for enrollment.

In practically all the Democratic and Republican Assembly district clubs, it was said yesterday, the supplement has been posted in the rooms set aside for the work among the women in the districts. Thousands of women voters will see them there, for this week will be woman's week in every Assembly district club of the two leading parties in New York City. Besides the house-to-house canvass, to induce women to affiliate with one or other of the parties, the district leaders are planning rallies at their clubhouses at which women will be instructed how to mark their enrollment blank and how to go about enrolling generally. In all the Republican district clubs in the Borough of Manhattan meetings for women have been called for this evening.

INVESTIGATES B.R.T. WOMEN

Conduct of Some Conductorettes Looked Into by Grand Jury.

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn yesterday called ten witnesses before the Grand Jury to testify in an investigation begun by him as to alleged immoral conditions said to exist in and about the Brooklyn Rapid Transit car barns at East Forty-ninth Street and Avenue N. Some of those summoned were employes of the railroad company and the rest were residents and business men of the neighborhood. Although the District Attorney would not tell what took place at the hearing it was learned from another source that some of the witnesses asserted they had seen women employed by the company as conductorettes kissing and hugging motormen and conductors, and heard some of the women employes use indecent and profane language.

"I am satisfied," said Mr. Lewis, "that the great majority of women employed by the B. R. T. are high-minded persons who are working earnestly and honestly in their new occupations to make a living. It is necessary that the objectionable persons be weeded out to protect the honest and decent ones."

T. S. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, would make no comment on the investigation, but was present when William Siebert, Superintendent of Surface Transportation, said:

"We are doing everything in our power to surround our women employes with the best influences, physical and moral. We have fitted up rest rooms in all our barns where women are employed, and a responsible matron is in charge of each. We believe the reported conditions must have been greatly exaggerated. However, we shall give District Attorney Lewis our fullest cooperation in his investigation."

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The receivers of the Atlantic Dock Company sold a tract of land fronting on the East River, at the foot of Coffey, Dikmann, Sullivan, and Walcott Streets, Brooklyn, comprising approximately eight and three-fourths acres of level land. The purchaser is Rodney T. Martinsen, an attorney, who acted for the Ramberg Iron Works, which operates a large ship repair plant at Imlay and Pioneer Streets, Brooklyn, with a capacity of 1,000 men.

The property fronts 900 feet on Buttermilk Channel, which is the chanel between Governors Island and the Brooklyn shore, and has an additional frontage of about 380 feet on a private slip at the southerly end of the property, making a total water frontage of about 1,280 feet. It immediately adjoins the New York Dock Company's property and the Atlantic Basin, and is in the immediate vicinity of the Erie Basin and the State Barge Canal. The property was held at $650,000 by the receivers of the Atlantic Dock Company. Joseph P. Day was the broker in the transaction. Extensive improvements will be made and the tract used for drydocking, ship repairing, and building.

Investor Adds to Holdings.

Charles E. Rushmore added to his holdings at Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street yesterday, by purchasing from William E. Silverthorne the five-story American basement dwelling at 44 East Sixtieth Street, on a lot 20 by 100. The property has been held at $100,000. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

Mr. Rushmore owns the two adjoining dwellings at 46 and 48, including the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street, and now controls a plot 60 by 100 at this point, which he will hold for investment.

Resale on West Forty-eighth Street.

Charlotte Weatherley has purchased from Ennis & Sinnott the five-story residence at 10 West Forty-eighth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5, near the Block, Starr & Frost Building, at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue. Thomas A. Weatherley was the broker in the deal. The property, which is assessed at $93,000, was acquired recently by the sellers from Phillips B. Thompson.

Operators in Other Deals.

Ennis & Sinnott figured in another transaction yesterday involving a west side parcel. From Joseph Schwartz they purchased the five-story building at 443 West Thirty-third Street, on a lot 25 by 100. This property was later reported resold by Ennis & Sinnott.

Mr. Schwartz took the property last Thursday from Jacob Hirsh in part payment for the apartment, 1,520 St. Nicholas Avenue. The latter parcel was secured by him the day before, together with the flat at the northeast corner of Davidson Avenue and North Street, and the tenement, 402 East Seventy-third Street, in exchange for the southeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 192d Street. Mr. Schwartz is also reported to have resold the Davidson Avenue and Seventy-third Street properties.

Tenement Investment Buyer.

Henry Hencken has purchased for investment from the Central Trust Company, as trustee of the estate of Hugh J. Grant, the two five-story flats at 309 and 311 West Fifty-fifth Street, each on a lot 25 by 100.11, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues. The houses have remained in the same ownership since 1877 and are assessed at $66,000.

Bronx-Harlem Exchange.

Frederick Brown has resold to Samuel H. Kahn the five-story apartment house at the southeast corner of Clay Avenue and 176th Street, on a plot 65 by 95. The house was held at $85,000 and was acquired by the seller several weeks ago from the C. and C. Construction Company.

United States.

The commission announces an examination for library assistant, for men and women, on May 22 and June 19, at the New York Custom House, for vacancies in the departmental service at Washington, D. C., or elsewhere, at $900 to $1,200 a year. There are at present vacancies in Washington, D. C., and one at Madison, Wis., the entrance salary for the position at Madison, Wis., being $900 a year. Competitors will be examined in library economy, cataloguing, classification, and bibliography, German, and either French or Spanish, education and experience. At least one year's training in a recognized library school or one year in a training class in a library using modern methods, and one year's experience, or three years' experience in a library using modern methods, is a prerequisite. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination.

Education Notes.

Mrs. Walter Miller of 106 Logan Street, Brooklyn, has preferred charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher against Miss Mary Duncan, Principal of P. S. 65, Richmond Street and Ridgewood Avenue, that borough. The charges will be heard by a committee of the Board of Education.

Miss P. K. Keyes, teacher in charge of the annex to the Girls' High School, and Dorothy Murtagh and Martha Mandell, pupils of the school, appeared before the Board of Education yesterday and pleaded for a new school building.

The following letter, addressed to President Somers, was received yesterday from William C. Breed, Chairman of the Red Cross War Fund Committee:

"The Red Cross War Fund Committee has had called to its attention the fact that there has been considerable solicitation by school children on the streets for the last three or four days. We deeply appreciate the spirit behind this endeavor to help the Red Cross, but some weeks ago the committee decided to adhere to the rule that there should be no solicitation by children or by any one under 18 years of age. Will you please be good enough to have this announced, and do what you can to stop further solicitation by the children? We feel that, where cash is received, there is an element or lack of responsibility of which the public does not approve."

Maude Frank has been appointed first assistant in English in the De Witt Clinton High School, to take effect June 1.

The offer of the Emanuel Sisterhood of a room and equipment for an anaemic class at 318 East Eighty-third Street, as an annex to Public School 190, Manhattan, has been declined with thanks, as the room is on the fifth floor of the building and it would be too much to ask such children to climb so high.

Max Pincus has been appointed as an assistant teacher of physical training in the High School of Commerce.

Mae R. Higgins has been assigned as a kindergarten teacher at large in the office of the Director of Kindergartens to serve in the absence in France of Miss Fanniebelle Curtis, the directress.

A leave of absence with pay has been granted to Jean B. Zacharie of the De Witt Clinton High School from May 22, 1918, to May 22, 1919, for the purpose of service with the military forces of the United States.

An unexpended balance of $14,000 in the evening schools has been transferred to the vacation schools.

Mrs. Lillian U. Vecht of Public School 88, Manhattan, has been suspended by District Superintendent O'Flaherty for continued neglect of duty. It is said that she has been in the practice of staying away from her school for days at a time. The Board of Superintendents will prefer charges against her.

The Board of Education yesterday decided to grant the request of the Additional Teachers' Association that its members be permitted to report for duty at their several schools on May 31, which has been made a holiday for public school teachers and pupils.

WILL ADD 12 WOMEN TO REGULAR POLICE

Within a Week They Will Wear Uniforms and Shields and Carry Revolvers.

TO ASSIST MRS. O'GRADY

They Will Investigate White Slave Cases, Juvenile Delinquents, and Crimes Affecting Soldiers and Sailors.

Twelve women will be added to the uniformed force of the Police Department within a week, announced Acting Commissioner John A. Leach yesterday when he assumed charge of the department for the week Commissioner Enright will be away on vacation. Uniforms, revolvers, and shields will be worn by the policewomen, they will each get $1,000 a year, and their powers to enforce the law will be the same as those exercised by the men on the force.

The policewomen, he said, would be assigned to duty under the Fifth Deputy Commissioner, Mrs. Ellen O'Grady, and among their duties will be the investigation of the white slave traffic, juvenile delinquency, and all forms of crimes affecting soldiers and sailors. They will also look after wayward girls and attend to complaints made by women.

The decision to appoint the women was reached after the review of the police parade on Saturday by Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Enright. The Mayor was greatly impressed by the showing of the women marchers and suggested more on the regular force. Commissioner Enright approved.

At headquarters yesterday it was stated that no method of selecting the policewomen had yet been determined upon, but that the appointments probably would be made from the civil service list of matrons. At present there are five matrons doing detective work under the supervision of Commissioner O'Grady. The latter first learned of the decision to add to her staff from newspaper men. She was much elated, but declared that the number should have been four times as great.

"We have many social workers who start to help unfortunates after the crime has been committed," she said, "but these new policewomen will prevent crime. These policewomen will be possessed of tact and discernment and have sympathy for young girls. They can instill into the mind of a girl who has erred better ideals and show her the consequences of her wrongdoing."

Mrs. O'Grady also said she planned to have her new assistants work through the parents of girls who come in contact with the law. She declared that she would instruct her staff to inform girls' parents to take steps to correct their daughters' ways. Should no improvement be shown by the girl the parents would be summoned to headquarters and given the alternative of taking care of their offspring or going to jail.

In an effort to thoroughly comb the motion-picture houses and other places which Commissioner O'Grady regards as potential sources of youthful criminality the aid of the Big Sister movement will be enlisted.

Mayor's Wife Sells Buttons.

A crowd of several thousand persons were on hand at noon yesterday when the band of the Street Cleaning Department opened the drive in City Hall Park by playing the "Star-Spangled Banner." Women of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense began at once to sell buttons in the crowd. These included Mrs. John F. Hylan, wife of the Mayor, and their daughter, Miss Virginia Hylan. An address was made by Borough President Alfred E. Smith, who stood on a platform surrounded by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran, Mrs. N. Lawrence Keen, Mrs. F. Egerton Webb, Mrs. James B. Duke, Mrs. Frank G. Griswold, Mrs. Stephen Olin, Mrs. Francis Bishop, Mrs. Ralph Ellis, Mrs. Leonard Thomas, Miss Mary [illegible], Miss Elisabeth Marbury, and Miss Emma Frohman.

The first of the daily meetings at St. Paul's Chapel, at Broadway and Fulton Street, was started at noon yesterday. The Police Band of sixty-five pieces with its fife and drum corps, and the 350th Field Artillery Band of seventy-six pieces furnished music, and George W. Wickersham and George Gordon Battle spoke.

Several thousand contributions were made yesterday at the Stage Women's War Relief booth in front of the Public Library, where the Police Glee Club sang. Other entertainers were Louis K. Anspacher, Carroll McComas, and Margaret Dale. Today will be Lambs Day at the booth, with Edwin Mordaunt as master of ceremonies. Joseph R. Grismer, Shepherd of the Lambs, will make the opening address.

Theatrical Profession Assists.

The theatrical profession, which has generously given its time, talent, and money for the Liberty Loan, Red Cross, and other war enterprises, has laid out a program for the week which will surpass those of earlier campaigns. The plans have been worked out by the Allied Theatrical and Motion Picture Team of the Red Cross, headed by William Fox. More than 30,000 volunteers are co-operating with the committee, many Judges, lawyers, and other men of prominence having joined the players. The five great benefits have been planned, with scores of smaller performances in playhouses, moving picture theatres, clubs, and open-air meetings. The major part of the theatrical benefit program is announced as follows by the Red Cross:

The benefits will begin on Thursday night at the Hippodrome with "Cheer Up" and added attractions. R. H. Burnside and Mark Luescher, for Charles B. Dillingham, have this in charge.

On Friday night at Madison Square Garden a great patriotic concert will be given, with a boxing carnival to follow, with the co-operation of all the best known men in New York's sporting fraternity. Joe Humphreys and Charles J. Harvey are the directors of this enterprise.

On Saturday night at the Hotel Astor a ball by the allied theatrical and motion picture players in the drive will start about 10 o'clock. This will be one of the events of the week. Charles Gehring and John Zanft, with a full committee of volunteers, have this work in hand.

On Sunday night at the Century Theatre the Benefits Committee, of which Sam H. Harris is the Chairman, will present what is promised to be the greatest musical, dramatic, and vaudeville bill ever seen in New York. The list of those who are to participate includes almost all the stars of this season.

On Monday night at the Metropolitan Opera House a great vocal and instrumental concert will be held. The benefit is possible through the efforts of Enrico Caruso, Gatti-Casazza, the attaches of the Metropolitan Opera House, and the different directors of concert stars. Max Hirsh will be in charge of this performance.

Colonel Roosevelt Speaks Today.

One of the chief events of the week will take place at Carnegie Hall this afternoon, when Colonel Roosevelt will speak and Josef Hofmann will give a piano recital. The demand for seats for this has been extremely large. Mme. Alma Gluck sold $10,000 worth of tickets at auction.

The first of the series of concerts for the benefit of the Red Cross at the house of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt at 677 Fifth Avenue was a great success yesterday. On the program for the concert this afternoon are Mme. Povla Frijsh, John Barnes Wells, George F. Reinherr, Carlos Salzedo, and Mrs. Samuel Barlow. This evening Amparito Farrar and Harriet McConnell will sing, and a performance will be given by Caroline Bebbe and her players. Ruth Draper will recite, and Abram I. Elkus will make an address. The Comedy Club will present a new play at the Casino tonight, the entire proceeds of which will be devoted to the Red Cross fund.

Justin Godart, member of the French Chamber of Deputies, now on a special mission to this country, has issued the following appeal on behalf of France to the American public:

On the battlefield of France stands now the American flag, firmly held by your fighting men. But all over the cities and villages of France, in all the places where works of kindness are needed and performed, the Stars and Stripes are to be seen; they have been carried there by the American Red Cross.

I have seen our wounded dressed, our old people encouraged, our women strengthened, our children nursed and cuddled, our homesteads rebuilt. What the American Red Cross has achieved is immense. It must be continued.

It has made the French nation feel that the American nation comes to her rescue with the spirit of a brother ministering to his suffering brother. It welds together our democracies, fighting shoulder to shoulder with our Allies for the sake of righteousness, into one large family of men united in the service of duty and liberty.

Message from British Red Cross.

The British Red Cross Society, on the eve of the American Red Cross drive, cordially wishes you success in your great appeal. Your splendid work speaks for itself in every war zone, and your civilian relief work has brought fresh heart to those of our allies whose countries have suffered so severely from the devastation of war. Good luck and godspeed, and may your fresh efforts beat even the wonderful record that you achieved last year.

H. G. Gibson, the General Manager of the American Red Cross, has stated in a letter to Frederick Dixon, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, that the Red Cross does not approve of enforcing collections by threats of discharge or any such methods of collection.

Red Cross Issues Warning.

The following statement was issued by the Red Cross Headquarters yesterday to prevent the unauthorized collection of funds:

Solicitation of donations and subscriptions for the Second War Fund of the American Red Cross by persons under 18 years of age and by persons not officially authorized to make collections by the National War Finance Committee is forbidden by the campaign organization having the $25,000,000 Greater New York drive in charge. This fact has been announced repeatedly since the preliminaries of the campaign began, but reports are constantly arriving at headquarters that overzealous men, women, and children are collecting money on their own responsibility.

There need be no doubt as to who is authorized to solicit Red Cross subscriptions. All solicitors are provided with an official badge, official identification card, and official pledge book. The number on the identification card must correspond with the number on the official badge, and the signature on the pledge card must be the same as that on the identification card.

To give money or sign subscriptions blanks not presented by the duly authorized representative of the Red Cross is to run the risk of having the money diverted to other channels, and perhaps in some cases having it pocketed by impostors.

The Red Cross badge is regularly numbered and captioned to indicate its genuineness and authority. The identification card bears the signature of William C. Breed, Chairman of the War Fund Committee, and must be also signed by the solicitor. The pledge book is also regularly numbered and has other means of indicating its authoritative use.

A number of instances of children soliciting donations and subscriptions have been reported to the Second War Fund Committee. In some cases they have actually set up booths of their own. Their work is unauthorized.

G. M. Dahl, Chairman of the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross, announced last night that incomplete returns for the division yesterday totaled $3,491,105. The division, for the purposes of this drive, is composed of New Jersey, Connecticut, and New York State with the exception of New York City.

The best showing for a single town in the Atlantic Division was made by Ramapo, N. Y., which subscribed yesterday a total of $15,520, against a quota for the drive of $5,000. South and West Orange, N. J., whose joint quota was $300,000, subscribed yesterday $293,000.

The employes of the office of County Clerk William F. Schneider met yesterday and subscribed one-half of 1 per cent. of a year's salary to the Red Cross Fund, the contributors including every member of the department from the County Clerk himself to the youngest messenger. The fund amounts to more than $1,000. The City Court attaches agreed to contribute 2 mills on every dollar of their salary.

REFUSED TO GIVE OUT CARDS.

Patrolman Alexander M. Bennett of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station was suspended from duty by Acting Police Commissioner Leach yesterday pending an investigation as to whether a charge of insubordination is to be preferred against him. The suspension followed a report that the patrolman had refused to fasten placards bearing on the present Red Cross drive to the doorknobs of houses on his post.

According to Inspector Daly Patrolman Bennett went on duty at 12:01 o'clock yesterday morning and was handed the Red Cross placards by Lieutenant Suttie, who was at the desk, with instructions to hang them on the doorknobs of houses. At 1:30 o'clock the patrolman, according to the Chief Inspector, said to Lieutenant Suttie over the telephone: "I am not going to hang these Red Cross cards on doorknobs. I think it is nothing but a piece of autocracy."

Captain William H. Scoble was notified, and when the patrolman returned to the station it is alleged he repeated to the Captain the sentiment expressed to the Lieutenant.

When Acting Commissioner Leach heard of the matter he ordered the patrolman's suspension from duty.

Patrolman Bennett, according to the Chief Inspector, was transferred about a month ago from the Bureau of Repairs and Supplies of the Police Department to the West Thirty-seventh Street Station to do regular patrol duty. The transfer was made by Commissioner Enright, the Chief Inspector said, after the patrolman had written, "Thou shalt not kill!" on the card supplied to all members of the department asking them to subscribe to the Liberty Loan, or to give a reason for not subscribing.

The records show that Bennett, who resides at 84 Clinton Street, was born in Germany, Jan. 31, 1884, the Chief Inspector said. He was naturalized on Oct. 31, 1905, and became a patrolman April 30, 1907.

COUNTRY IS RESPONDING.

Enthusiastic Reports on Red Cross Drive from Many Sections.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Enthusiastic reports of the progress of the American Red Cross drive for a second war mercy fund of $100,000,000 came to headquarters here in a steady stream throughout the opening day of the campaign. Messages telling of oversubscriptions in towns and counties from New England to Hawaii began arriving early in the day, while Governors of nearly all States telegraphed promises of hearty co-operation in the auctioning off for the benefit of the Red Cross packages of wool clipped from the President's White House sheep.

Conflicting claims to the honor of first subscribing their allotment have been received from several points. Governor Pinkham cabled from Honolulu that Hawaii had oversubscribed its quota of $250,000. Peabody, Mass.; Kossuth County, Iowa; Pontotoc County, Okla., and Yolo County, Cal., were others that reported early in the day that they had gone over the top.

Much rivalry in the sale of the White House wool was manifested in the telegrams from the Governors. Governor Boyle of Nevada wired:

"State that realized $275,000 by sale of Gridley sack of flour for the Sanitary Commission in the civil war has not forgotten how to bid for liberty."

"Every dollar contributed will help the boys who are going over there to shear the Kaiser's goat," telegraphed Governor Catts of Florida.

"Lively bidding is expected," wired Governor Frazier of North Dakota, and telegrams of similar purport came from Governors Riggs of Alaska, Pinkham of Hawaii, Bilbo, Mississippi; Pleasant, Louisiana; Capper, Kansas; Whitman, New York; Beeckman, Rhode Island; Harrington, Maryland; Lowden, Illinois; Louis F. Hart, Acting Governor of Washington, and others.

BIG RED CROSS WORK FOR FRENCH IN APRIL

327,213 Civilians Reached by American Ministrations in 119 Cities and Villages.

PARIS, May 20.—Some idea of the activities of the American Red Cross may be gained from its report to the Department of Civil Affairs for April. It has a staff of 97 physicians, 164 nurses, and 334 men and 606 women attendants, and is carrying out regular work in 119 cities and villages in France.

There are fourteen civilian hospitals with a capacity of 1,364 beds. Forty-seven dispensaries give medical care to children, tubercular patients, and refugees. The organization has seventy-eight delegates distributing relief to refugees in fifty-eight departments in France. In Paris 30,000 school children get supplementary school lunches from the Red Cross.

During the month 119 workers were added to the staff, 19,424 persons received medical care in hospitals, a gain of 2,468 over March, 9,817 refugees were housed and 9,594 received employment. The total number of civilians reached during the month was 327,213, of whom 243,846 were children, 6,553 tubercular patients, 73,367 refugees and refugee children, and 3,447 French war cripples. The increase in persons reached over March was 158,895.

Money donations to outside organizations in April totaled 633,159 francs, of which 83,983 francs were devoted to persons suffering from tuberculosis, 377,864 to refugees, 10,000 to reconstruction and relief in the devastated area, 155,451 to children, and 5,911 to incapacitated wounded.

A large number of garments and pairs of shoes were given away during April. Furniture, household utensils, bedding, linen, cloth, food, and coal are distributed by all the Red Cross bureaus.

RED CROSS AID TO ITALY.

Americans Have Fed Hundreds of Thousands of Needy Families.

ROME, May 19.—While the material aid given to Italy by the American Red Cross has been large, the most important part of its work has been in the creation of good-will between the two countries. A report on Red Cross work in its first five months in Italy gives detailed figures of what has been done, and adds:

"It is impossible for statistics to convey even the more important results, as they may be measured only by the present universal spirit of brotherhood and sincere good-will for all Americans now existing throughout Italy. It has meant much for the Italians to have a visible sign that the United States is actively in the war. It has meant also that Americans have realized that in Italy the United States has an ally whose great heart is opened to Americans and who is ready and willing to co-operate with the United States zealously and effectively."

There is scarcely a village where the American Red Cross has not brought a message of friendship to the Italians. During April Red Cross representatives, traveling day and night, visited more than 3,000 towns and villages and distributed relief among 318,000 needy families of soldiers at the front.

Throughout Italy the American Red Cross is now operating 41 kitchens, distributing 120,000 rations weekly; 43 workrooms, employing 3,000 women who produce 60,000 garments monthly, and 30 schools, having 2,000 children as pupils. There are also 10 hospitals for children, who will be transferred to camps for the Summer; 14 lace, mattress, shoe, and carpentry shops, and 3 stores selling canned food at nominal prices. Then there are 5 asylums for children, and 10 rest stations and canteens for soldiers and refugees, which feed 1,000 persons daily.

A model American village to take care of 2,000 refugees is being erected near Pisa. At the front there are four ambulance sections and seven mobile kitchens giving hot coffee and American jam to the tired soldiers. Italian commanders have been very grateful for this small but humane service.

More than 500 hospitals are supplied with drugs, bandages, and instruments. All the supplies come direct from America or from the Red Cross warehouses in France. All the work is supervised by Americans, most of whom are volunteers.

SENATE PASSES MEDAL BILL

Allows Our Soldiers and Sailors to Accept Allied Decorations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Senate, by a viva voce vote, today adopted the joint resolution offered by Senator Chamberlain last April, authorizing American soldiers and sailors to accept and wear decorations conferred by allied Governments and the President to confer American medals on soldiers of the Allies. The bill was urged by Secretary of War Baker on recommendation of General Pershing, who cabled:

"Service of our troops with French has already resulted in a number of cases of individual gallantry. Some of these have been rewarded by citations in orders by the French, and award of the Criox de Guerre, which our soldiers are unable to accept officially. Such recognition is a very powerful incentive to gallantry in action. A number of our men won the Croix de Guerre in previous service under the French, and are not permitted to wear them since entering the army. Both the French and British Governments would permit their troops to wear our campaign badges and would accept our decorations. No good reason exists why we should not be empowered to bestow decorations on French and British men entitled to them, especialy when serving alongside our troops, and we should accept theirs. Decorations carefuly bestowed would contribute to good feeling and closer relations with our allies."

CORRESPONDENTS ORGANIZE

An association of correspondents representing newspapers in all the allied countries, as well as in South America and neutral countries, has been formed here with the approval of this Government to enable the foreign correspondents here to acquire better facilities for reporting the war activities and aims of the United States. The name of the organization is the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents in the United States, and the stated purpose of the journalists from the allied countries is to convey information from America that will help in bringing about an early victory, to foster a friendly feeling among all the Allies during the war and after peace, and to aid in the trade adjustments after the war.

Frank Dilnot, correspondent of The London Daily Chronicle, who has been a special correspondent for many years and is the biographer of Lloyd George, is President of the association. The members of the Executive Committee are Percy Bullen of The London Daily Telegraph, M. Lechartier of Le Petit Parisien, S. Levy Lawson of Reuter's Agency, H. N. Hall of The London Times, Marcel Knecht of the French Official Bureau of Information, and W. F. Bullock of The London Times and London Daily Mail.

JORDAN BACKS THE WAR.

LOS GATOS, Cal., May 20.—"I am convinced that the action would not have been taken had they not been misinformed," David Starr Jordan, Chancellor of Stanford University, said when informed that the Cornell Class of 1873 had adopted resolutions, asking that his certificates of graduation and degrees be revoked.

Chancellor Jordan, who spoke here last night in aid of the Red Cross, said that his attitude toward the war had "been one of consistent support of the President since the day we entered hostilities."

"There was a time," he continued, "when like many other people, I was opposed to having the United States enter the war, but, once the die was cast, I believed that whole-hearted prosecution of the war should receive the active support of every loyal American."

CUT IN FOREIGN TRADE.

Heavy Reduction Here Both in Exports and Imports.

The big drive made by the War Department in April to get American troops overseas resulted in a heavy reduction in foreign trade in the customs district of New York in April. Domestic exports from New York were $185,810,427, against $262,610,658 in April, 1917, and $247,802,068 in March last. Imports in April aggregated $121,564,991, compared with $126,801,160 in April, 1917, and $98,344,252 in March. Merchandise of all kinds for Europe in April had a value of $142,163,512, compared with $216,009,802 in the same month last year and $201,302,986 last March.

REPULSES COUNTERATTACK

Germans, Despite Artillery Aid, Make No Impression Upon New British Lines.

FRENCH REPULSE TWO RAIDS

LONDON, May 21.—By a local operation northwest of Merville, on the Lys front, the British troops last night improved their positions and captured thirty prisoners and six machine guns.

This morning, after heavy artillery preparation, the Germans made a strong counterattack, on a front of 1,200 yards, against the new positions, but came to close quarters at only two points, where, says Field Marshal Haig's night bulletin, "they were dealt with effectively," the British line remaining intact.

Hostile artillery has been active at various points on the British front from Albert northward. The gas shelling north of Bethune has been especially heavy.

The day announcement from the British War Office is as follows:

A successful local operation was carried out by troops of the Surrey Battalion yesterday evening northwest of Merville. A re-entrant in our line in this sector was closed up, and thirty prisoners and six machine guns were captured by us.

Early this morning a hostile counterattack against the new positions, delivered after a heavy bombardment, was broken up by our artillery and machine-gun fire.

We carried out a successful raid last night southeast of Arras and brought back a few prisoners and a machine gun from the enemy's trenches.

During the night the hostile artillery was active in the Albert sector, about Hebuterne between the Forest of Nieppe and Meteren, and more active than usual between the Scarpe River and Hill 70, north of Lens. The gas shelling reported to have taken place yesterday north of Bethune was heavy.

A hostile counterattack launched this morning against our new position northwest of Merville was made in considerable strength upon a front of 1,200 yards. A very heavy bombardment preceded the enemy's advance; but, despite the intensity of his artillery preparations, his infantry only succeeded in reaching our positions at two points, where they were dealt with effectively by our troops in each case. Our whole line is intact.

Two raids which the enemy attempted last night in the sector north of Bailleul were repulsed by the French troops.

We secured a few prisoners and a machine gun this morning in a patrol encounter in the neighborhood of Boyelles.

The official statement from the French War Office tonight reads:

There were no infantry actions. The artillery was intermittently active south of the Somme, along the Meuse and in the Vosges.

On May 19 our fighting pilots destroyed six German airplanes and nine other enemy machines fell within their lines severely damaged. That day and also on the night of May 19-20 twenty-five thousand kilograms of projectiles were dropped by our bombing machines.

The day statement from the French War Office reads:

Both artilleries were active last night in the region of Thennes and Hailles and at other points south of the Avre.

French patrols operating southwest of Lassigny, on the right bank of the River Meuse and in the Lorraine sector, returned with prisoners.

The night was calm on the rest of the front.

Kerensky Wrongly Reported As Arrived from Russia

A report which reached Washington last night that Alexander Kerensky, the picturesque young chief of the Russian revolution, who was overthrown by the Bolshevist element, had arrived in this city from Europe proved last night to be unfounded.

There was an inclination in Washington to credit the report not only on account of its semi-official origin but because there has been reason to believe that Kerensky was on his way to America from a place in Northern Europe. At the Russian Embassy, however, no advices of his arrival were received, and further investigation proved the report to be incorrect.

RUSSIA'S PLIGHT GROWING WORSE

Famine, Civil War, and Cholera Are Ravaging the Distracted Country.

ALLIED ACTION AGAIN URGED

Civil Commission, with Military Support, to Rally Better Elements in Siberia Proposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Conditions in Russia are worse than ever. People are starving in several parts of the country. A famine exists in Petrograd. There is cholera in Astrakhan, and in the Caspian Sea region.

Information as to these conditions came to the State Department today. This Government is anxious to afford relief, but it was said at the department that there seemed to be no way to extend assistance, as supplies would fall into the possession of the Germans. It was suggested, however, that as the port of Archangel was open it might be possible for the Red Cross to resume relief work if it could obtain assurances from the Bolshevist authority that the Red Cross agents would be permitted to distribute the supplies.

The whole country appears to be in a state bordering on anarchy. The Bolshevist Government has done nothing to remedy the situation, and the Germans are carrying affairs with a high hand, paying no attention to the obligations into which they entered at Brest-Litovsk with the Bolshevist delegates and the envoys of the Ukraine. Civil war is raging in Siberia and sections of European Russia.

Al this brings advantage to the Germans. As long as they are able to prevent Russia from having a strong central Government and keep various factions fighting among themselves, they will be building up sentiment that will drive the starving and perturbed people to seek the re-establishment of law and order from the Germans themselves. It is conceded that this outcome is possible, even probable, in spite of the fact that the hatred of Germany is growing with the spreading knowledge that the Berlin Government regards the pledges made at Brest-Litovsk as mere scraps of paper.

Cling to Dream of Peace.

The Bolshevist Government and the Government of the Ukraine cling, however, to their dream of peace. This is indicated by a dispatch received at the State Department today from Moscow, dated May 12, saying that a Russian delegation was leaving for Kiev to enter into peace negotiations with the Ukraine. This information would be an encouraging symptom to those who are hoping for a reuniting of the various Russian political and racial segments if it were not for the practical certainty that Germany had assented to the meeting.

In the meantime, while everything that is happening in Russia will ultimately help Germany's plans unless assistance is extended to the better elements in the former dominions of the Czar by the allied nations, nothing has been done to afford promise of allied intervention.

The Allies are apparently divided into three groups of opinion on this important situation. Great Britain and France are anxious to take military action without delay. The United States holds, it is understood, that the situation will tend to adjust itself if there is no interference from outside. Japan, having proposed that she take possession of Vladivostok and other places in Eastern Siberia for the purpose of protecting foreign interests and preventing the spread of German influence and having had her suggestion vetoed by the United States, is credited with being indifferent in that direction. Japan has taken her own course by entering into an agreement with China for the mutual protection of their interests from possible German aggression aided by the Bolshevist forces.

All that can be learned here concerning the position of the Washington Government indicates that it has not been moved by the desire of Great Britain and France for quick action, having the double purpose of saving Russia and bringing her back as a strong nation into the Entente. The officials con-

Scherpenberg, Mont Rouge, and Mont Noir Now Made More Difficult of Approach.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, May 21.—The successful French attack in Flanders yesterday was important defensively because it broadened the grounds between the enemy on Mont Kemmel and the French positions around Scherpenberg, Mont Rouge, and Mont Noir, those three hills upon which the Germans have fixed covetous eyes.

The places regained most gallantly by the French troops include the hospice at Locre, where, as I have written before, the grave of Major Willie Redmond is in the garden, very peaceful in the shade of the trees beyond the old convent where the Flemish nuns used to wait at table on the Irish soldiers before the war swept up to it and around it.

Beyond that are little bits of ruin amid the litter of these new battlefields—a farm and Klein Vierstraat cabaret and the Pompier (fireman) Estaminet—and these are now in French hands, extending their line eastward and giving them more elbow room.

To me and to many of us Scherpenberg, which the enemy made fruitless efforts to take, is a place to which our memories of this war will often go back, because on a fine day, when there was nothing else to do, it was good in the old days to climb up its slope and watch the panorama of the Ypres battlefield which lay outspread before it, with the City of Ypres itself, white and woeful, in the distance, and the tall spire of Poperinghe as a landmark, and the roads from Dickebusch and Vierstraat charging up toward Wytschaete Ridge, where the German trenches were very clearly seen before the battles in Flanders last year made them British until April of this.

Scherpenberg is but a small hill of sandy earth covered with undergrowth, very green in Summer, except on the crest, where the old windmill stood on a bare space of ground with sails creaking in the wind. This windmill may be as famous after the war as that other one in France from which the English King at Crecy watched the scene of battle.

Here in March, 1915, close to the mill house, stood a number of English officers, among whom was Sir Henry Smith-Dorrien, watching the attack upon Wytschaete Ridge, and presently a very young officer came up, saluted the General, and somebody by my side said: "Who is that, Lieutenant?"

It was a royal Prince who had come to watch one of the first assaults upon the enemy's fixed positions and the preliminary bombardment. It was a shrapnel bombardment and the feeblest thing compared with our modern power in artillery, with one old grandmother fifteen-inch howitzer, newly arrived—there were simple souls who thought she would win the war—to add to the noise and smoke.

Needless to say we did not take Wytschaete Ridge that day, nor for two years later, and it was a futile attack which we watched from Scherpenberg in times unlike these.

Many visitors to our front went to that hill, which was a nice safe place for people of importance, and a Flemish woman up there could claim acquaintance—and she was a pleasant, gossipy soul—with distinguished stran-

Cleveland H. Dodge and Standard Oil Give $500,000 Each, Payne Whitney $250,000.

LEADERS ASK MORE SPEED

Atlantic Division Reports $4,797,607 Already Pledged—Roosevelt Urges Sacrifice.

New York's total in the Second Red Cross War Fund Drive for a minimum of $100,000,000 in the entire country was $8,280,317.39 at noon yesterday, the second day. The largest individual subscription yesterday was $500,000 from Cleveland H. Dodge, in addition to the gift of $250,000 by the Phelps-Dodge Corporation. The largest corporation gift was $500,000 by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Yesterday contributions here were slightly below those of the day before, when the total was estimated at $4,500,000. The rate at which contributions have been received so far, if continued, would make New York's total about $29,000,000, which would be $4,000,000 above its quota. But if New York City does not go over its quota by more than $4,000,000, the leaders of the drive will be greatly disappointed. Word was sent out yesterday to team leaders and Red Cross workers to increase the speed and aggressiveness of the drive in every possible way.

Committees collecting in the business district and the workers making the house-to-house canvass worked hard all day yesterday in spite of the rain, which spoiled most of the open-air meetings.

Few Individuals to be Overlooked.

The Red Cross organization is so large in numbers and has worked out its plans in such detail that few individuals and firms will be overlooked, and most will be solicited many times, but any one who has been missed may make his contribution by a check payable to the American Red Cross, sent to "The American Red Cross, Woolworth Building."

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's appeal to investors in Liberty bonds to turn their bonds over to the Red Cross has produced a number of gifts of this kind, and the Red Cross wants all it can get. A ruling from Washington has been received, however, that War Savings Stamps cannot be accepted.

Several large meetings were held successfully indoors yesterday and last night, the greatest being the benefit given by Josef Hofmann, the pianist, at Carnegie Hall, at which Colonel Roosevelt stirred a large audience with an appeal in fervent and dramatic language, in which he rated the man who came out of the war with an increased fortune as second only to the draft dodger on the calendar of infamy.

Missing Captain Suffered Only Fractures—How Germans Hide Air Losses.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 20.—At the funeral this afternoon of Major Lufbery it was announced by the American General that the boche battleplane which brought down the American "ace" yesterday had been downed by the French.

This avenging of Lufbery's death by a Frenchman was a fitting climax to the life story of the American whose career epitomized the sisterhood of the two great Republics. Lufbery's father was an American; his mother was French. He fought in the French Army until his own nation entered the war and then was our foremost "ace."

The boche battleplane that brought down Lufbery was got by the French a few miles away. After one French pilot had been lost, another succeeded in getting a lucky bullet home through the steel armor to the pilot. The Germans in the plane were dead when found. The machine, it was found, carried six machine guns, which were operated by two gunners.

American fliers feel gratitude for the avenging of Lufbery's death, but it is tinged with regret that they had not done it themselves.

Military Honors at Funeral.

Major Lufbery was buried with full military honors on a hillside back of the American lines. His grave was dug in a field of buttercups. On a perfect day, it was a brilliant military spectacle when America and France joined in last honors to the American flier.

It was an imposing ceremony. As the Chaplain was uttering the last prayer, six of Lufbery's fellow-fliers swept low over the field and dropped red roses on his bier. A tender tribute to Lufbery's memory was paid by the French General, who said that Lufbery's work was typical of the union of America and France in the common cause. He closed his eloquent tribute with the simple words, "Au revoir."

Starting out this morning to avenge the death of his friend Lufbery, Captain D. M. K. Peterson ran into two boche machines and forced down one. Peterson is the first American to become an "ace" in working with the American air service back of the American lines.

Captain Hall a Prisoner.

I learned today that Captain Norman Hall, who was brought down recently behind the German lines and was believed to have been killed, is in a German hospital with broken arms and an injured foot, but is otherwise well.

A captured German aviator gave interesting information as to the composition of the German official statement as to aerial losses. He said that whenever even a part of a machine in falling was recovered as salvage, the machine was not counted as lost. This course is far different from the Allies' way of keeping count of both the German and their own losses. This German said the boche aviators did not take the official statements of air losses seriously, and that they were larger than Berlin stated.

I saw today at Toul the wreck of the machine brought down yesterday by Lieutenant Douglas Campbell. It was a photographic machine of very heavy construction. The engine was especially heavy, with six cylinders of the stationary type. On the bottom of a piece of the wreckage was the word "Verboten"—just a touch of the pathos of this game called war.

Director General McAdoo's Announcement Of New Plan for Operation of Railroads

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Director General McAdoo's announcement of the new policy of railroad control, dictated from his sickroom at home tonight, was as follows:

In view of the direct responsibility for the operation of the railroads of the country placed upon Director General McAdoo by the act of Congress and by the proclamations of the President, he has been unable to escape the conclusion that it will be advisable to place in direct charge of each property for operating purposes a representative, to be known as the Federal Manager, who will report to the Regional Director. As far as practicable, this Federal Manager will be chosen from the operating officers of the particular property, who are therefore entirely familiar with its employes and with its conditions.

Except so far as may be necessary to meet the emergency conditions which compel the Government to take control of the railroads, the Federal Manager of each railroad will endeavor to avail himself to the fullest extent of the advantages incident to the operation of the particular railroad as a unit and the preservation of its identity. This is believed to be of essential importance, not only to secure the best results during the period of Government control, but also to give the greatest degree of reassurance to the officers and employes that the railroad careers upon which they have entered will not be narrowed, but, if anything, will be broadened, and to give the greatest possible reassurance to the stockholders that their just interests in the properties will be respected and that nothing will be needlessly done to have even the appearance of impairing their just rights.

While in this way the responsibility for the operation of the property will be directly to the Regional Directors, and not to the Boards of Directors, it is the purpose of the Director General to accord to the Boards of Directors and their representatives the fullest opportunity to keep advised as to the operation and improvement of the properties and to maintain with the Director General and the Regional Directors the fullest interchange of views as to what is in the best interest of the Government and of the stockholders.

In the development of this policy the Regional Directors, and also the Federal Managers, will be required to sever their official relations with the particular companies and to become exclusive representatives of the United States Railroad Administration.

The first moves in the inauguration of this policy will be through the creation of two new regions, to be known as the "Allegheny region" and the "Pocahontas region."

The Allegheny region will consist, broadly, of the Pennsylvania lines east of and including Pittsburgh and Erie; Baltimore & Ohio, east of Pittsburgh and the Ohio River, including Pittsburgh terminals; Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad, Cumberland Valley Railroad, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Coal & Coke Railroad, Philadelphia & Reading Railway, Western Maryland Railway, Cumberland & Pennsylvania, and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. This region will be placed in charge of C. H. Markham as Regional Director, (who has resigned his connections with the Illinois Central and other companies,) who will have offices in Philadelphia.

The Pocahontas region will consist of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway east of Columbus, Cincinnati, and Louisville; the Norfolk & Western Railway, and the Virginian Railway, including the terminals of all lines at Hampton Roads. With the exception of the Allegheny and the Pocahontas regions, the Eastern region will remain as originally defined, with A. H. Smith as Regional Director, and District Directors under Regional Director Smith will be appointed for New England and for that portion of the Eastern region west of Pittsburgh and the Ohio River and south of the Erie main line. The selection of the Regional Directors for the Pocahontas region and for the Southern region, succeeding Mr. Markham, as well as of the two new District Directors under Regional Director Smith, will be announced later.

The same policy will be applied from time to time, as rapidly as may be convenient, in other parts of the country, always with the greatest possible regard for all the interests affected and with a view to preserving intact, as far as reasonably practicable, the operating organizations of the companies.

CARDINAL FARLEY ACTS ON SINN FEIN

MEETS WOMEN'S PROTEST

Mrs. Francis C. Barlow of 47 East Sixty-fourth Street and the other patriotic women who sent a letter to Cardinal Farley protesting against Catholic priests taking part in Sinn Fein meetings in this country received a reply from the Cardinal, through Mgr. Thomas G. Carroll, his secretary, yesterday. The specific protest was against the activity of the Rev. Peter E. Magennis, who presided at Irish meetings in Madison Square Garden and in Carnegie Hall. Mrs. Barlow sent her protest to the Cardinal on May 10, and, failing to get a reply, she made the letter public. The letter from Mgr. Carroll follows:

The Cardinal's Residence,

Dear Madame: His Eminence Cardinal Farley, Archbishop of New York, has received the protest signed by a number of ladies and gentlemen of this city regarding the meeting held in Madison Square Garden on the evening of May 4. His Eminence desires me to state that this meeting was not held under the auspices of the Catholic Church and that he did not believe the notices published that the Rev. Peter E. Magennis would preside.

The fact that Father Magennis did act as Chairman of the meeting surprised his Eminence, who has since informed the father that he will not be permitted to remain in the Archdiocese of New York if he attempts to preside at such meetings.

Father Magennis is a member of the Carmelite Order, and does not belong to the diocesan clergy of New York. His Eminence, however, as the local Bishop, has control of his public activities. Very sincerely yours,

THOMAS G. CARROLL, Secretary.

At the Cardinal's residence it was learned that the Cardinal had taken up the matter of the protest, and that he had ordered Father Magennis, because of his official character as a member of

IRISH RISING PART OF BIG PLOT HERE

Attempts Also Made by Germans to Incite Negroes, Finns, Lithuanians.

REVEALED BY WASHINGTON

British Search for More Evidence in Ireland—Anti-Draft Manifesto Issued.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Disclosure today that the Government has gathered evidence in this country of conspiracies between Sinn Fein leaders and German agents to precipitate a rebellion in Ireland was followed by the announcement that Government agents had uncovered similar German intrigues with other nationalistic groups in the United States.

German money, it was said, had been used to finance agitation among negroes and also among Finns, Lithuanians, and others of the so-called "oppressed nationalities" which for years have had nationalist grievances against Russia. In most cases, this propaganda has been carried on by Americans affiliated with these groups, paid from some mysterious source believed to be the German Government. Except among the radical Irish agitators, the propaganda did not appear to make much headway.

For many months, it is now revealed, United States Government agents have been inside the councils of the Irish in this country, who plotted armed insurrection against British rule, and have discovered conclusive evidence that German money and promises of aid stimulated the conspiracies as a means of diverting the British Government from its war task in France.

Evidence Given to British.

Direct action to stop the intrigue was not considered advisable, as the Government did not wish to meddle in domestic problems of the British Empire, but the the information gathered was turned over in some cases to British representatives, and it is understood that the recent arrest of a number of Sinn Feiners was prompted partly by evidence of German-Irish plots discovered in this country.

Full details of the evidence were not made public, it was explained, because a number of persons are still under surveillance. Some announcement of the reasons for the arrest of the Irish

NEW PLAN OF RAIL CONTROL

SALARY LIMIT IS $20,000

HUNTINGTON FIRST TO GO

Virginian Railway Head Removed for Alleged Disobedience—Young Is Successor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A sweeping order was issued tonight by William G. McAdoo, Director General of Railroads, providing for the removal of all railroad Presidents from active participation in the conduct of the various systems and the selection, as operating heads of the lines, of experts to be named by the Railroad Administration.

It is understood here that the step was taken because of the lack of cooperation on the part of some of the railroad executives who are involved in the wholesale shake-up. At the same time it was intimated that the majority of the deposed railroad Presidents would be named by Mr. McAdoo as Federal Managers.

The new régime will have the effect of placing in charge of each individual system Government agents who must sever all relations with the companies with which they are at present connected, and make themselves, as Government employes, answerable only to the Railroad Administration, through the various Regional Directors.

These men, it is said, will be expected to accept salaries to be fixed by the Administration, and it is reported that no salary of this kind will be in excess of $20,000 a year. No official confirmation of this could be obtained, however.

The railroad Presidents who are stripped of their powers and not named later as the Federal Managers of their roads, it is understood, are not to receive remuneration out of the operating revenues of the railroads for whatever services they may hereafter perform, but must look to the owners of the roads to pay them out of the moneys received from the Government.

Many Rumors of Antagonism.

There have been rumors for some time of an impending shake-up, based largely on reports that Mr. McAdoo believed the Executive heads of some of the railroad systems were not co-operating fully with the Railroad Administration. In fact, it has been stated that in some quarters a spirit of antagonism has existed ever since the Railroads War Board was deposed by Mr. McAdoo.

This condition, it was said, was not widespread, but presented a condition which some of the officials of the Railroad Administration believed required drastic action. It also was argued that placing a Federal manager in charge of each of the systems would be a step toward complete Government control which would prove most effective in obtaining the highest efficiency in carrying out Government policies.

It has been asserted further that the lack of complete co-operation in all directions had hindered the Government program of routing all freight by the shortest way, despite the best efforts of the Government officials in charge here. It is believed that the greatest efficiency in this connection could be obtained by placing the Government in full control of the lines as individual systems as well as [illegible], and selecting as the head of each system a man who would be answerable to Mr. McAdoo and who could be dealt with as a Goverment agent and not as an employe of a corporation.

It was said tonight that where the railroad Presidents were not renamed as Federal Managers, it was probable that one of the Vice Presidents in charge of operations, who met with the approval of the Railroad Administration would be chosen. A careful study of the situation, and of the men who have been directing the operation of individual lines under Government control, has been in progress for some time, and carefully prepared reports have been obtained.

C. W. Huntington Removed.

The first direct intimation that there was trouble in store for some of the high-salaried railroad executives and that the Railroad Administration was preparing to enter upon a new system of operation came this morning with the removal of Charles W. Huntington, President and General Manager of the Virginian Railway, by order of Mr. McAdoo. It was stated that the power of Mr. Huntington had been curtailed because of disobedience of orders concerning the improvement of the road and maintenance of roadbed and equipment.

J. H. Young, a Director of the Virginian Railway, was designated as Federal Manager of the road. Mr. Huntington, it was said, would remain as President of the corporation, and it is probable that similar action will be followed in regard to the Presidents of other railroads who are stripped of their powers in connection with the operating end of the systems. They must not, however, look to the Government for their salaries, or expect to have powers over the physical properties involved.

In the case of Mr. Huntington, it was said that he would, so far as the Railroad Administration was concerned, continue to draw his salary, which is to be paid, if the Directors see fit, out of the funds supplied to the corporation by the United States Government, in compensation for the use of its property.

The Virginian Railway, built by the late H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company, is a coal road running from Norfolk to Deepwater, W. Va. The principal complaint against Mr. Huntington, as far as could be learned at the offices of the Railroad Administration, was that he had failed to be prompt in complying with orders in regard to the conduct of his road and of its maintenance.

In this regard the case is said to be typical of others which prompted the decision for a general shake-up. It was intimated, for instance, that Mr. Huntington insisted upon supporting methods differing from those adopted by the Railroad Administration, and this course, it was held, was not the one desired now that the Government had taken control and was responsible to the people for the maximum of efficiency.

In connection with Mr. Huntington's road—and it is said that the same experience has been had with others—opposition was raised on technical questions. The Railroad Administration was not in a mood to discuss the merits of such points and asked simply that instructions be carried out.

It is understood that the Federal Manager of each road will have complete authority to remove any operating officials of the road whose services are unsatisfactory.

RAILWAY PRESIDENTS SURPRISED BY SHAKEUP

Move Also Unexpected in Banking Circles—Salary Question a Vital One.

The news of Director General McAdoo's action in removing the railroad Presidents was received with decidedly mixed feelings in railway and banking circles last night. While railroad officers who had been working in close touch with Washington since the Government took charge were expecting a number of changes, few if any looked for a clean sweep to be made in a single order. The Presidents of several large roads who were reached by telephone said the Director General's action was entirely unexpected.

"While there had been rumors that some such development was possible," said E. E. Loomis, President of the Lehigh Valley, "nothing definite had been heard. The decision by the Director General is a surprise."

The railroad men were reluctant to offer conjectures about the result of so revolutionary a change of existing executive management for the reason that they did not know the personnel of the appointments to be made to the vacant offices. In banking and business circles it was the general opinion that most of the Presidents would find themselves returned to their tasks as Federal Directors. Many persons, however, doubted whether the average high-salaried railroad executive would be willing to continue his work as a Government officer at a substantial reduction of income. While railroad men who were directly affected by the new ruling were naturally unwilling to discuss the matter of salaries, the prediction was made in business circles that as a war service the Presidents would submerge the consideration of income in the purpose of keeping the carriers in shape to handle their quotas of the war-brought traffic.

"Except it be put on the ground of patriotism and war service," said Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, who has devoted much time to the study of the railroad situation since the United States entered the war, "a sharp reduction of salaries in railroad executive positions would be a step backward. The danger of Government ownership in all countries where it has been effected is that men of initiative and brains are impelled to seek places in other fields where the remuneration is greater."

Eugenius H. Outerbridge, former President of the Chamber of Commerce, said he did not believe a wholesale change in the personnel of railroad officers was indicated by the order.

"It must be a method for making the executive officers more directly responsible to the Government," he stated. "Any wholesale alteration of the personnel in charge of railroad systems could hardly help causing disorganization at a time when the most efficient organization is needed. Most of the railroad heads are men who have grown up with their roads, know them thoroughly and could not be replaced. I should look on the order as merely a matter of form rather than as indicating any radical changes. It is a way of getting more direct responsibility by having the railroad executives hold office by appointment of the Federal Government rather than by the stockholders of the roads."

Hustis Withholds Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 21.—James H. Hustis, President of the Boston & Maine Railroad, who is also receiver of the railroad, had not received official notice from Director General McAdoo tonight that he had been relieved from active duty.

"As I do not appreciate the significance of such an order, I rather hesitate to comment upon it," said Mr. Hustis. "The Boston & Maine is under Federal control, and sweeping and sudden action as this appears to be is perfectly proper during war, and we have to expect such steps from time to time. I am at a loss to say just what it means, but I judge that it is simply to bring the railroads under direct control of the Government.

"Like all the railroad heads, I want to do all I can to help the Government, and can only repeat in effect what I have said before, that our whole organization is doing its best to comply with the wishes of the Director General and facilitate the movement of freight and practice economy and efficiency in every department."

The order from the Director General in no way affects Mr. Hustis's appointment as receiver of the railroad.

Ripley Expected It.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 21.—With one exception, railroad Presidents residing in Chicago expressed surprise over the new order of Director General McAdoo relieving all railroad Presidents from active duty. The exception was E. P. Ripley of the Santa Fé Railroad.

"It's no surprise to me," he said. "I had not heard of the explicit order until now, but I have expected it."

"Had such a contingency been discussed in railroad circles?" he was asked.

"Not that I know of," he said. "I haven't talked to any one about the likelihood of such a move, but it comes as no surprise."

Asked if he thought that the present organizations of the various railroads would be affected by the new order, he said there were "a good many other things that affect the organizations more.

"But I don't care to comment on the order," he added. "Wait until I'm out."

Harry E. Byram, President of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, said: "This is news to me. I had no intimation of it. I do not think it will make any difference. After all, employing the same men for the same purposes is merely a change in title, not in duties. The railroad executives have been doing their best, and when employed by the Government directly will continue to do so. I have no idea that this is a step toward permanent Government ownership, but merely something which Mr. McAdoo deems best for the present time."

Other Presidents said they had no intimation that such an order was on the way, and none was found who had learned of its existence through official channels.

W. G. Bierd, President of the Chicago and Alton, said: "I expected that about June 1 the Government would take some step to divorce the corporate and operating interests of the roads, but I had no intimation what it would be, and Mr. McAdoo's order is a distinct surprise to me. On the whole, I think it fair. It will make no real difference in the operation of the roads, so far as efficiency is concerned, for they would be in about the same hands as before apparently.

However, I think it is the Government's purpose to see to it that its interests shall be the sole consideration. Therefore sole direction by the Government and the divorcing entirely of corporate interests from operating must lend itself to the success of Government operation. I do not think this a step toward continuous Government operation after the war."

Hale Holden, President of the Burlington road, said he had heard nothing of the new plan.

"It had not reached us this afternoon," he said after listening to the reading of the Washington dispatch. "As to its effect, I don't think I can comment on that at this time."

R. H. Aishton, President of the Northwestern Railroad, said:

"It is all news to me. I had not heard of any move in that direction—no talk whatever. I don't want to say anything about it at this time."

Without putting it in that many words, James E. Gorman, President of the Rock Island Railroad, indicated hearty approval of the action taken by Director General McAdoo.

"It seems to be the logic of the situation," he said.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 21.—"No official or unofficial notification of my removal has been received in connection with the plan for Federal control of the railroads," said W. P. Kenney, President of the Great Northern, tonight. "So far as I know no other St. Paul Presidents have received any notification. It would be unwise for me to predict what the immediate effect of the change will be on the various roads."

Other railroad officials refused to discuss the issue.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—Comment on the part of the Pennsylvania, and Reading Railroad officials regarding Director General McAdoo's action was withheld tonight in the absence from the city of Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania, and Agnew T. Dice, President of the Reading. It is understood, however, that the chief executives of both roads knew of the change before the news was made public.

The creation of the Allegheny region is interesting here because of the fact that Mr. Rea was Chairman of a committee directing the affairs of four of the roads in this new group. Besides Mr. Rea, the committee known as the Philadelphia-Baltimore-Pittsburgh District Conference Committee, Eastern railroads, was composed of Mr. Dice and A. W. Thompson, Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio.

DENIAL BY HUNTINGTON.

Charge of Disobedience False, Deposed Official Asserts.

Soon after the news of his removal from the Presidency of the Virginian Railway reached this city, C. W. Huntington issued a prepared statement from his office at 60 Wall Street. The statement, which he refused to supplement, was:

"President Huntington, when seen at the office of the Virginian Railway Company, said that he had been 'retired as the chief operating officer' of the Virginian Railway Company by a telegram sent from Washington at 9:55 P. M. Saturday, May 18, and received by his secretary Sunday morning, which read as follows:

C. W. Huntington, President, Virginian R. R. Co., 60 Wall Street, New York.

It is hereby ordered, effective at 12:01 A. M., Tuesday, May 21, 1918, that C. W. Huntington, President of the Virginian Railway Company, be retired as the chief operating officer of the railroad of that company, and that thereafter his compensation be paid by the corporation so long as the corporation desires to utilize his services, and that Joseph H. Young be and he is hereby appointed Federal Manager of the Virginian Railway and placed in charge of operations thereof, with office at the Norfolk Terminal Station Building, Norfolk, Va., with full power to do and perform any and all acts which may be necessary or appropriate in the efficient operation of said railroad, and in the making of all improvements and betterments which may be necessary or appropriate to enable said railroad adequately to serve the public needs.

All officials, agents, and employes of said road are required to obey orders issued by or under the authority of said Federal Manager.

W. G. McADOO,
Director General of Railroads.

"Mr. Huntington said that no reason had been assigned for the action of the Director General and that he had no information on the subject except a news report that his retirement as chief operating officer of the Virginian Railway was because of his failure to obey an order of the Director General to make certain improvements on the railway. He added that the statement about failure to make ordered improvements was false, as no such order had ever been issued."

While Mr. Huntington himself was reticent, his retirement was discussed widely in Wall Street. It was pointed out that H. H. Rogers and his brother-in-law, U. R. Broughton; Samuel McRoberts, Vice President of the National City Bank; Edwin S. Marsten of Blair & Co., and many other big men of finance were members of the Virginian's Board of Directors. For a long time the retiring President has been regarded as the spokesman of the Rogers-National City interests in the control of the railway.

Mr. Huntington began his railway career in 1876, when he entered the employ of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad as a freight brakeman. He served that road for sixteen years in various capacities, and for a year was Superintendent of the Des Moines Northern & Western Railroad. From 1894 to 1902 he was General Superintendent of the Iowa Central Railroad, going over to the Central Railroad of New Jersey as General Superintendent. Later he became connected with the Virginian.

Joseph H. Young, who succeeds Mr. Huntington, is a native of Salt Lake City, and, like his predecessor, started at the bottom. In 1882 Mr. Young was office boy and warehouseman for the Utah Central at Sandy Station. He advanced rapidly, however, and a year later was ticket agent for the Union Pacific at Ogden. Eight years later he went back to the Utah Central as General Superintendent. In 1910 he was made General Superintendent of the Southern Pacific Company, and from 1910 to 1912 was President of the Alaska Steamship Company, the Northwestern Steamship Company, and the North Coast Lighterage Company. At the same time he held the post of Vice President of the Copper River & Northwestern Railroad. In later years he was elected President of the Spokane & Inland Empire Railway, the Oregon Electric Railway, the United Railways, and the Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation Company.

FRANCE EXPELS BRITISH WRITER

No Time Even to Get His Luggage Allowed to Manchester Guardian Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 21.—Robert Dell, the Paris correspondent of The Manchester Guardian, has been expelled from France. Writing in this morning's issue of his paper, he says that on Saturday morning he was notified that a decree of expulsion had been signed by the Minister of the Interior on May 11, and that he must leave Paris that afternoon. The customary three days' notice was not allowed him; neither was he permitted to return home from the Police Commissary's office to lunch. He was even told he could not take any luggage but must leave Paris for an indefinite period with nothing but a handbag.

But on his protesting vigorously the Commissary consented to let him go home in the company of two inspectors and fetch his baggage. Two inspecters accompanied him to Havre, whence he left for England on Saturday night.

"The reason why the decree was not notified to me until Saturday morning, although it had been signed a week before," says Dell, "probably was that two influential persons who would certainly have protested against my expulsion had both left Paris on Friday and it was probably known they intended to do so. There was an evident desire in particular to prevent me from communicating with the British Embassy, which M. Le Grand [Special Police Commissary] categorically declared had not been consulted about the matter.

"The French police officials impressed upon me that mine was not a case of expulsion recommended by the police to the Minister of the Interior, but was purely a political expulsion on the initiative of the Prime Minister, decided upon at a Cabinet Council."

The Paris correspondence of The Manchester Guardian has of late dealt with the circumstances attending the discussion of the letters of the Austrian Emperor to Prince Sixtus of Bourbon, with the implication that these documents had not received sufficient consideration from the allied statesmen. One complaint expressed in the newspaper was that knowledge of the first letter had not been imparted to President Wilson at the time. In reply to this, however, it has been explained that the letter was delivered in confidence on condition that it should not be shown to any one other than the British Prime Minister and the King.

BRITISH IN GAIN BEAT OFF ATTACK

by the British in their local attack last night just northwest of Merville, where they carried out a successful operation which advanced their positions along a front of 600 yards. The effect was to reduce a salient which bulged into their territory. Some prisoners were taken in the engagement, which of course falls in the category of minor attacks.

The enemy counterattacked, but his effort was broken up by artillery fire.

The opposing forces northeast of Aveluy Wood, north of Albert, have continued to exchange blows in contention for desirable positions. Yesterday morning the Germans rushed some posts there and obtained a footing at a few places. They have been driven out again entirely.

The latest reports concerning the fighting in the Locre sector show that 600 unwounded prisoners were taken, and that the casualties of the attackers were slight. In this drive the French retook Bruloose and the now famous crossroads near by, aswell as several fortified farms which have been the scene of desperate fighting recently. They also pushed forward their line east of Hill 44, which the poilus retook a few days ago after a fierce encounter.

Importance of Ville-sur-Ancre.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 21, (via Ottawa.)—Australasian captures on Sunday at Ville-sur-Ancre exceed 400. Several prisoners say that when they learned that they had to face the Anzacs they felt considerable foreboding. The casualties inflicted during the attack were very heavy.

The successful little operation has greatly improved the British position. The British now hold the entire village. The Germans have been forced back from the awkward little salient they had created and are now probably back upon the railway. More than thirty machine guns were taken from the enemy between Ribemont and Dernancourt.

The French yesterday attacked on a front of 3,000 to 4,000 yards, apparently pivoting on Locre Hospice and extending eastward. It is reported that the operation succeeded, and that more than 300 prisoners have already been collected. Every yard of ground the Allies take in this locality represents an important gain, inasmuch as it pushes the enemy from important hills running west of Mont Kemmel.

BERLIN CLAIMS VICTORY IN KEMMEL FIGHTING

Says French Attacks East of Locre Broke Down with Bloody Losses.

BERLIN, May 21, (via London.)—Savage fighting on the northern side of the Lys salient in the Flanders battlefield is reported in the official statement issued by the War Office today, which says that strong allied attacks were repulsed with heavy losses at various points.

The text of the statement reads:

Kemmel was again the objective of strong enemy attacks yesterday. The attacks by the enemy broke down with sanguinary losses, and the defenders of Mont Kemmel have gained a complete victory. On the front from Voormezeele to west of Dranoutre the infantry attacks were preceded by the most violent artillery fire, the main thrust being directed against Mont Kemmel and its western slope. The French troops which had been brought up to the front line advanced in several waves. Infantry and artillery fire broke down their assaults and forced them to retreat with the heaviest losses.

Counterattacks threw the enemy out of our crater zone at points where he had penetrated. There is still a French nest east of Locre. According to the statements of prisoners, British divisions were in readiness in the third line.

In the evening and during the night the artillery fire often increased to the greatest violence. Renewed enemy attacks from Locre in the evening and local advances northeast of Locre during the night were repulsed.

An intense fire was directed on our battery positions and rear areas on both sides of the Lys. The firing increased intermittently in the evening in the neighborhood of Bucquoy and Hebuterne, south of Villers-Bretonneux and the Avre.

During the last three days fifty-nine enemy machines and three captive balloons have been brought down.

1,000 GERMAN PLANES DOWNED IN 2 MONTHS

British Official Statement Also Records Dropping of 1,000 Tons of Bombs.

LONDON, May 21.—An official statement on aerial operations issued tonight says:

During Monday night airdromes in the neighborhood of Ghent, Tournai, and St. Quentin used by the enemy's night bombing machines were heavily attacked. Thirteen tons of bombs were dropped on these, and four and a half tons were dropped on the railway stations at Thionville, Metz, and Coblenz.

At 8 o'clock in the morning of May 21 twenty-two heavy bombs were dropped on the railway stations at Namur and Charleroi. One of the machines has not returned.

Since the beginning of the German offensive, exactly two months ago, 1,000 German airplanes have been brought down or driven down out of control, and more than a thousand tons of bombs have been dropped over the enemy's lines.

TELLS AMERICA TO HASTEN.

Send "Whole Resources" to Aid Allies, Says E. O. McCormick.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

DUBLIN, May 21.—Ernest O. McCormick, Vice President in charge of the traffic of the Southern Pacific Railroad, upon taking a boat for Holyhead tonight, said:

"The biggest impression I shall carry back to America from war-stricken Europe is the immediate need of America knowing the whole truth over here. I shall recommend that our Government request that a European commission of able men be sent to America at once to tell our people just what the conditions are and what we face in order that America may get down to bedrock and have less claptrap. I shall go home an optimist, but full of the realization of the herculean task before us. I shall go home and tell America that the trouble is not in the trenches nor on the field of battle, but in the homelands not appreciating what our brave soldiers are facing and doing.

"I have been on the British, French, and American fronts, and close up to the German line, and nowhere in the whole line is there a pessimistic note. The most encouraging aspect in the allied trenches is the belief that Germany can be defeated. Our men who are doing the fighting have the most superb courage the world ever saw; they are not afraid of anything that Germany can bring on.

"The only big thing we have to fear is lack of co-operation behind the fighting men back home. If we back them up as we should, Germany is doomed, and the day is sure to come when the Prussian reign of terror will end. Our people at home cannot understand the terrible sacrifices our allies are making here, and when they do and respond, militarism will quickly get its death thrust.

"My message home, after having seen the sacrifices the European nations are making, is to put everything else to one side, whatever the sacrifice, and bring to Europe as quickly as the boats can come the whole resources of the United States. Tell the United States to get rid of the claptrap and hurry men, food, guns, and airplanes. Germany must be crushed, and we can do it, if we work quickly."

BRITISH CASUALTIES LOWER.

LONDON, May 21.—British casualties to the number of 36,677 have been reported in the week ending today, divided as follows:

Killed or died of wounds: Officers, 313; men, 3,815.

The British casualty reports are still reflecting the recent heavy fighting, although the totals are beginning to decrease. The figure last week was 41,612, the largest of any week since the German offensive began.

PLANS FOUR NEW SHIPS.

Schwab Begins Expansion of Sparrow's Point Shipbuilding Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 21.—Two million dollars will be spent immediately by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation for building four new slips at the Sparrow's Point shipbuilding plant.

Fully 4,000 new workmen will be added to the force. Officials are casting about for housing facilities for them.

Plans have been made for the new slips to accommodate ships as large as 15,000 tons. Charles M. Schwab recently said he intended to expand the plant to be the largest in the country.

ASSERT HERTLING REJECTS ALLIANCE

LONDON, May 21.—Strong opposition to the recently arranged alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary is voiced by Chancellor von Hertling and Foreign Secretary von Kühlmann, according to reports received in The Hague and transmitted by the correspondent of The Daily Mail. The Chancellor and the Foreign Secretary are reported to have said that they washed their hands of the entire matter, as they objected to the methods by which the military part of the convention was devised over their heads by the German higher command.

General Ludendorff is said to be insisting that the agreement be passed and signed at once.

The military sections bind each party to aid the other with all its forces against any and every enemy, thus compelling Austria to place all her forces at the disposal of Germany.

REVIVE HINDENBURG RUMOR.

German Civilians Circulate the Report of Marshal's Death.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21, (Associated Press.)—The rumor that Field Marshal von Hindenburg died recently has become current very generally among the enemy in the back areas, as well as among civilians. What basis, if any, there is for this rumor, is not known here.

According to a London dispatch on May 13 German prisoners captured in France declared that von Hindenburg was dead. This rumor gained some support by the fact that General von Mackensen, the conqueror of Rumania, was either to be shifted to the western front or had already arrived there to take part in the renewed offensive against the Allies. Later dispatches reported Hindenburg at the conference of the Kaiser and Emperor Charles at German Headquarters.

PATROL ACTIONS IN ITALY.

VIENNA, (via London,) May 21.—Reporting on operations on the Italian front an official statement today from Austro-Hungarian General Headquarters says:

Reconnoitring activity on both sides led to frequent fighting actions. Southeast of Mori Hungarian infantry detachments penetrated on the night of the 20th into enemy positions. At Lake Loppeo, near Asiago, and on Sasso Rosso Italian patrols were repulsed. Near Fener strong enemy reconnoitring detachments were driven back by counterattacks.

Register German Women June 17.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The registration of German alien women will begin June 17. In all cities of 5,000 population and over by the census of 1910 the registration will be conducted by the police, and in all towns of less population by Postmasters.

All women of German birth who are alien in their political status will be expected to go to Police Headquarters or to police stations and register, and in the smaller towns they must go to the Post Office. Every woman will be required to register her finger prints.

cerned are said to believe that it would be a grave error for any of the allied nations to send troops into Russian territory. This, they contend, would drive the Russian people against the Allies and probably cause them to join with the Germans. Officials are understood to be of the opinion that the German aggressions, with the anger they have caused among the Russian people, together with the conditions of famine prevailing, will do more to bring the various Russian elements together than any other means.

A compromise between the two views, one held by the United States and the other by Great Britain and France, is urged by men who are in accord with the belief voiced in allied countries that something should be done, and done at once, if Russia is to again become a national factor in the great war. It is admitted by some of these that military intervention with the object of assisting the Bolshevist Government would be a mistake. Nothing could be accomplished, it is insisted, and the Germans would soon overcome any such resistance. This, the argument proceeds, would cause hopeful Russians, those of the better class and the great army of small farmers and tradesmen, who dislike the Bolshevist rule, to lose faith in allied statesmanship and would compel them to turn to the Germans for relief from intolerable conditions.

But it is insisted that the middle ground that may be taken with almost certain results favorable to both Russia and the allied cause, is that suggested recently to send a civilian commission to Siberia. All the allied nations would be represented by distinguished men, with the leader of the commission preferably an American. The commission would be protected by a large military force, in which the predominating nationality necessarily would be Japanese, but with Great Britain, France, and the United States also represented by troops.

It would be the object of the commission to obtain the confidence of the Russian people by assurances of unselfish intentions and by furnishing protection for local governments established by the best classes of people in the communities visited by the commission. If the Bolshevist forces attempted to interfere with the operation of the local governments the allied troops would give protection. The commission would proceed westward in Siberia, encouraging the best elements to form local governments, assured of stability by the allied forces.

News of this course of the Allies would spread through Russia, and it is claimed that it would cause the Russian people generally to organize with a view to establishing a central Government that would take means to combat the German advance.

It is conceded that to carry out this policy would take a long time, a year or more; but the helpful results would be apparent soon enough to prevent the Germans from accomplishing their aggressive objects toward the great territory formerly ruled by the Czar, and the future of Russia as a nation would be assured. In these circumstances some surprise is expressed over the apparent indifference of the United States Government toward the effort to do something of an active character that will help save Russia from becoming a German vassal State.

ARREST MEMBERS OF SOVIET EXECUTIVE

LONDON, May 21.—Several members of the Extreme Right wing of the Soviet Executive, who supported Japanese intervention in Siberia, have been arrested, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow, dated May 18. The arrests were made after a sitting of a convention of the Bolshevist Party.

The Extreme Right held the view that it was necessary for Russia to lean upon the Allies, especially Japan, in the struggle against Germany in Siberia. This wing was outvoted.

MUST AID RUSSIA QUICKLY.

Chance to Do It Would Be Welcomed by Allies, London Paper Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 21.—The Times, commenting upon the signature of the Chino-Japanese defensive alliance against Germany, after pointing out that its purpose is to defeat the German scheme of penetration of Asia, says:

"Long before the advent of the Bolsheviki to power Japan foresaw that the less ambitious projects then entertained in Berlin were fraught with danger to the peace of the Far East. The width of vision which marks many of President Wilson's judgments led him to discern the bearing of these earlier German designs upon world politics nearly a year ago. Even then he perceived that Germany intended to extend her military power and her political control into the heart of Asia.

"The sagacity of this forecast has been singularly confirmed by all that has since happened. Before Brest-Litovsk, he saw that Germany would have won the war could she keep what she had acquired in the East; and the Brest-Litovsk treaty reduced 435,000 square miles of Russian territory under her vassalage. He has always put defense of a liberated and orderly Russia in the forefront of his policy. Only on Saturday he stated that her helplessness and friendlessness gave her fresh claim to sympathy and to succor, and he affirmed once more that he intended to stand by her as well as by France.

"It would be surprising, in the present circumstances, if so intelligent an observer remained indifferent to the manifest trend of German activities in the East, or blind to the many indications that a change is passing over Russian opinion.

"Our Washington correspondent gives us to understand that, while the attitude of Washington toward intervention by Japan in Siberia is unaltered, the rapidity with which events are moving in Russia is realized, and the possibility that they may permit the adoption of a policy which would lead to allied action is contemplated.

"American reports, we are assured, agree that the Soviet leaders are thoroughly alarmed by the German infiltration into the whole of Russia and by the progress of German propaganda in Siberia. It is added that the Soviet Government have but to indicate a desire for help in resisting the German invasion in order to obtain it. Washington, it is declared, 'would welcome the opportunity to serve Russia in co-operation with Japan, China, and the other allies.'

"We are sure all the Allies would welcome such an opportunity, for all of them have refused to hold the Russian people as a whole answerable for the calamities which the folly of the Bolsheviki have brought upon Russia and upon her friends. The invitation has only to come from some body of men qualified to speak for the real Russia, for the millions who are necessarily themselves inarticulate, to be gladly and effectively met.

"But every hour that the practical help of the Allies is delayed strengthens the German grip on Russian territory and enlarges the area of German penetration. Unless it is given soon, the opportunity of giving it at all may be lost forever."

JAPANESE TO OFFICER CHINESE EXPEDITION

Military Co-operation to be Confined to the Northeastern Frontier Zone.

PEKING, May 17, (Associated Press.)—China and Japan have signed the treaty, concluded after negotiations lasting several days, concerning the military operations to be conducted jointly by these two countries in Siberia. The treaty also contains clauses dealing with other matters, the details of which are not made public.

The treaty is said to concern joint defensive operations against the enemy on the Northeastern frontiers. Three conditions were insisted upon by China and were conceded by Japan. The first was that the convention would not be enforced unless the situation required Chino-Japanese co-operation in Siberia and Manchuria; second, the convention would be null and void after the termination of the war, and third, the scope of military co-operation would be confined to the Northeastern frontiers.

After the treaty had been signed by the Cabinet, General Yin Yung-pung, Vice Chief of the War Department Participation Bureau, signed it in the presence of a Japanese Military Commission headed by General Saito. Baron Gonsuke Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to China, is absent on a trip to the south.

It is reported unofficially that the treaty contains twelve articles providing for placing the troops concerned under Japanese officers and the interchangeability of arms, war maps, and other materials. The railway zones will be under Japanese control and Japan will give financial assistance where it is required for military purposes. Japan may establish fortifications and military police within the zone affected.

DICTATOR URGES MONARCHY.

Only Form of Government for Finland, Judge Svinhufvud Says.

STOCKHOLM, May 21.—A constitutional monarchy is the only form of government for Finland, in the opinion of Judge Svinhufvud, who has just been declared temporary Dictator by the Finnish Diet. He says he is convinced that the only way for Finland to secure independence and freedom and a Government above party passions is to choose a constitutional monarch.

Judge Svinhufvud said he would refuse categorically to become a candidate for the Presidency if asked to do so. He believed that most of the members of the Landtag would resign if a republic were declared.

He added that 16,000,000 marks were subscribed during the first week to the Finnish Liberty Loan.

FEAR OF FAMINE APPALS AUSTRIA

PEOPLE JEER AT THE WAR

German Promises of Victory Flouted —Soldiers Beg for Bread and Long for Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 21.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Annemasse, on the Franco-Swiss frontier, says:

"I have just received from sources I must not reveal, but for the honesty and authentic nature of which I can personally vouch, a series of oral statements direct from Vienna and Styria recording observations made in Austria up to almost the end of April. My informant said:

"'The great masses of the Austrian people are more than war-sick. No longer do they talk of their success or nonsuccess. They talk and think of nothing but bread. They want peace because it will give them bread. Their morale is so low that the Government is afraid of Bolshevism. I cannot tell you what we in Austria have suffered this last year, and of deeds done through hunger that are whispered about.

"'One whole issue of the Arbeiter Zeitung was confiscated last March lest it should speak of events abominable to hear. It demanded an investigation in two horrible cases of murder of prisoners of war by their fellow-workmen in gas works in the Sixteenth Municipal District of Vienna, and accused the workmen of eating part of the bodies. I do not think this is sensation mongering or the fantastic invention of the mob. I knew a member of the Town Council appointed to inquire into the matter, and it was clear, he maintained, that at least two such instances of cannibalism occurred at the gas works, one at the end of December and the other last March. It was referred to in Parliament, but was hushed up in the press in Vienna itself.

Quarantine Against Bolshevism.

"'The Austrian Government fears nothing more than the spread of Bolshevist ideas among these people, and it is a matter of common knowledge in Austria that all the Austrian prisoners returning from Russia are quarantined for three weeks at the frontier to make sure that they are politically clean and unlikely to infect their comrades at home with the leprosy of Bolshevism.

"'I was present at Graz five weeks ago, on a journey through Styria, when food riots broke out there. The workmen in munition factories struck. They marched to the Town Hall and flung their loaves at the windows as a protest against the bad stuff that was in the bread, which was made of maize plentifully mixed with flour got from the bark of trees and ground into powder. Other workmen marched through the town, and with loaves smashed the windows of all cafés and shops and often plundered buildings and scattered their contents in the street. Similar outbreaks had taken place in other towns, and not a word of it do they dare put in the papers.

"'The police afterward gathered up the loaves lying in the mud, and they were served out as an extra ration to the population.

"'In Vienna there were whole weeks when the people got nothing but sauerkraut for the principal meal of the day, followed by other weeks when we had only pickled cucumbers and gherkins, and others again when we had nothing for dinner but those nauseous mangel-wurzels, things they usually give only to cattle, together with a little maize bread. Sometimes, but at the cost of hours and hours of standing in queues, one would get a couple of pounds of potatoes in a week.

"'My family and I have lived for weeks on hardly anything but some toadstools which we gathered in a forest near the town.

Real Famine in the Country.

"'People often faint in the streets from inanition. I tell you there is not only hunger, there is famine in Austria. The health of many of the people is so sunk that they can hardly stand, let alone work, and things are getting worse and worse every day.

"'Even soldiers get insufficient food. They, too, are not only sick of the war, but also thoroughly apathetic. It is a common sight to see troops begging for bread and food from the inhabitants; and on railway journeys during the last six weeks I have seen soldiers, at stations where we stopped, imploring the people in the train to give them even peelings and remnants of food.

"'Austria is shuddering at the prospect of the next three months. The people, as far as they dare whisper, jeer at Hindenburg's promise of smashing the English and French with a big offensive and getting a German peace.

"'"You have humbugged us too often already," they say, "with your U-boat promises, your Brest-Litovsk, and all the rest of it, and the only result of your beautiful U-boat war is that you brought America in as a new enemy."

"'At first everybody in Austria made fun of President Wilson as a mere Don Quixote and pedant, but now they are changing their tune and are "afraid America means business."'

Saxons Eat Camels and Dogs.

Camel meat, dog meat, and horse meat are being eaten in Saxony by the poorer classes, according to the Berliner Tageblatt of April 7, a copy of which has been received here.

The camel meat is being sold in Zwickau and comes from the mohair camels of the Hagenback menagerie, which gave a show at Zwickau in March. The camels were sold to a butcher because of lack of fodder. The largest camels yielded from 300 to 400 pounds of meat.

Consumption of dog meat and horse meat has increased greatly and the price also has gone up. Dog meat sells for 2 marks 75 pfennigs a pound and horse meat at 1 mark 80 pfennigs.

MASSING TO ATTACK ITALY.

Austrians Withdrawing Troops from Their Eastern Front.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Further evidence that another great Austrian drive against Italy is impending came today in an official dispatch from Switzerland, which said information from Vienna showed that Austria had planned to suppress all military operations in the East on May 20 to concentrate forces for the Italian front.

Austrian newspapers are quoted as saying that this step marks the restoration of civil administration in Bukowina and in Galicia, and that similar measures are to be taken in Hungary toward Transylvania.

The military importance of the decision is emphasized, because it enables the withdrawal of a considerable military force from Galicia and Bukowina, while the Austrian General Staff will be able to turn all its attention to the operations against Italy.

PHILIP GIBBS'S STORY FROM BATTLEFRONT

Shelled With Broken Glass.

Then one day out of a blue sky the hill was shelled, and the shells were the queerest things that were ever fired by German guns, for they were filled with broken glass and bits of brass candlesticks. Not for a long time after that did Scherpenberg get 'strafed'—not until a few weeks ago, when the enemy's artillery closed up around Mont Kemmel and made a target of that other hill. Some Scottish officers in whose mess I luncheoned, not far off, said: "This place is 'no bon,'" and pointed to a hole in the roof of the hut which then existed and listened a little anxiously to some crashes on the slopes outside.

Nothing happened when I was there, but they told me afterward that next day a good deal happened, and it was of the most unpleasant kind, for the enemy indulged in his special hate of this place where we used to find the view of war so safe before geing closer to the country beyond Ypres, where every track was marked down by German guns and every ruin sinister with the menace of death.

Now the French are defending Scherpenberg and its neighboring hillocks, and the attack they made yesterday was to drive the enemy further away from them.

Many Aerial Combats.

Apart from some raids in which our men took a few prisoners, there was no infantry movement on our side yesterday, and the greatest fighting was in the air again. The enemy sent some of his scouts to reconnoitre our back areas and made a very fierce endeavor to keep our flying men from crossing his lines, as though more than usually anxious to prevent observation of his movements behind the lines. So there were many combats in the clear sky, but, curiously, in spite of clear moonlight later, and a wonderfully still night, there was no general bombing activity by German raiders, and on one part of the front, at least, which had been noisy of late with night-flying enemies, there was unusual quiet.

PARIS LEARNS OUR MEN ARE ON BRITISH FRONT

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 21.—The ban of censorship has been partly lifted and today's Paris newspapers publish the fact, known and discussed privately for several weeks, that the new American armies have arrived in the zone of the British forces in Northern France and are now completing their training in the area occupied by the troops blocking the way to the Channel ports.

These accounts give details of the brotherly welcome extended to the Americans by the British. Americans here, who have known of the location of these troops through officers visiting Paris, are glad to see the facts printed. Nearly everybody here has friends among the officers of the new army, many of whom are Plattsburg graduates and representative of the finest young manhood in America.

These units are the early arrivals under the new plan for brigading Americans with the English. Their presence behind the Nieuport-Ypres-Kemmel front and the probability of their use by General Foch in the actual fighting after their training is completed brings home vividly the nearness of America to the Flanders battlefront and the prompt working of the arrangements for sending American infantry direct to the Franco-British commands.

The rushing of great bodies of American youth, freshly gathered from professional and business life and from the farm and workshop, straight to Armageddon is a romance which thrills war-worn Europe. All reports from the freshly arrived troops are of a kind to gratify the pride of families and friends at home. They are worthy of association with the French and English and fit champions of the great cause of human freedom.

ORVILLE WRIGHT DOUBTFUL.

Thinks Armored Plane, If Used, Would Be Cumbersome.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, May 21.—Orville Wright said today of the report from the American front in France, describing the new type of German armored airplane responsible for the death of Major Lufbery:

"It would not cause me to become panicky if the report were true. It would not be possible to use as heavy an armor as that without at the same time making the machine hard to manoeuvre, thus taking from it one of the most vital and best features of a successful fighting plane. The usual armor of the machines that are armored at all is one-sixteenth of an inch, so you can readily see what weight this new machine, if the Germans really have one, is required to carry.

"The armor might not lessen its speed on a straightaway course, but it could not be turned quickly, dart about or be used nearly as effectualy as the single and stationary gun machines that are stripped of all protection. The best experience in actual fighting has been that the machines that can shoot and then quickly get away give their operators a much better chance of life than the cumbersome ones that must necessarily take whatever shots come their way.

"In the earlier stages of building fighting machines the United States Government tried using armor, but in the newer models much of this has been discarded. There is nothing to prevent the United States, or any other of the allied nations, armoring their own machines to the same extent as the reported new machine of the Germans. If it is thought effective, this would be one solution of the problem, but, as I said in the beginning, I do not think such a type, because of the weight it would be required to carry, can ever be made sufficiently effective to cause a great deal of damage or to become a great source of worry."

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

In two minor actions in two days of this week the Allies have succeeded in harassing the Germans considerably, while at the same time improving somewhat local positions on both the Flanders and the Amiens fronts. The first of these actions in order of time was that of the British along the Ancre River, which resulted in the capture of Ville with about 350 men and twenty machine guns. Mention of the number of machine guns captured gives some idea of the large number of these weapons used in the German field army. Germany was the first power to appreciate the part that these weapons were to play in war and in her preparations for the present war she organized special troops to handle this arm. This was the beginning of the machine gun companies, which have now become a part of every army.

The village of Ville, which the British retook two days ago, is on the Ancre, a few miles south of Albert and about a mile north of Morlancourt. The general lay of the land in the angle between the Somme and the Ancre is generally well known by now, its essential features being a plateau, the longer axis of which corresponds to the centre of the angle, the sides of the plateau sloping rapidly to the Ancre on the north and the Somme on the south.

Ville is in the northern valley just where the Ancre turns westward before joining the Somme. It is without any particular importance except that every yard the British gain in this part of the line strengthens their hold on the territory just behind Albert.

The Germans have launched several attacks near Albert as one of the pivotal points of the British stand. As long as the line about Albert holds the passage of the Ancre, which the Germans accomplished when they first took the town, is of little value. The town fell in the first rush of the German offensive, but just beyond the British held the heights and prevented a further advance. As things stand, the Germans have not sufficient room between their lines and the river to manoeuvre or concentrate, so that they have not been able to take advantage of the situation which their early successes created.

The German situation in this angle has never appeared very comfortable. The Australians, who hold this part of the line, are continually causing trouble by making attacks under cover of darkness without artillery preparation. Morlancourt has been their particular objective ever since their first offensive at Villers-Bretonneux. They have now brought their lines up close to the edge of the town, and this movement up the valley is the first step toward surrounding it from the north. Its principal value is in relation to the plateau mentioned, the town commanding a large part of it north and south.

The other action was one by the French near Locre, the front attack being over two miles. Every gain here materially benefits the situation. The positions about Locre make up the main defense of the low saddle of ground between Scherpenberg and Mont Rouge. It was on this ground that the back of the last German offensive was broken. Step by step the French have been recovering the important ground about Locre, driving the Germans little by little back along the road which runs north and south through the village.

It is a question whether these two successes of the Allies give any clue to the point of attack of the next German effort. There may be significance in the relative ease with which these attacks were pushed forward. The fact that they were made at such widely separated points on the line may well have been with the purpose of finding out just where the Germans were in greatest force.

These actions furnish indications, not positive, it is true, that wherever the next German attack is launched, it will not be in the Somme-Ancre angle or northward against Ypres. The concentrations for the attack are already well under way, of that we may be sure. We may be further certain that in so far as it is possible with safety, all sections of the front which are not to be involved have been drawn upon so that the maximum strength may be present at the vital section of the line.

The fact that the line was sufficiently weak to permit these attacks to succeed without expenditure of effort may well indicate that these points are to remain immune and that the attack will fall in another quarter. Altogether these two minor efforts have cost the Germans about a thousand men in prisoners, killed, and wounded. It is somewhat expensive even for a local operation.

The only other interesting news from the war theatres comes to us from Macedonia. The French and Italians have made a material advance in a wild and mountainous country, with no roads and no communications of any kind except mountain trails. They were opposed, presumably by Austrians, though it is possible that the Bulgarians were also involved. With matters in their present state, an advance from this region would have to be made for many miles before its effect would be felt.

LUFBERY'S DEATH QUICKLY AVENGED

any good. It is not helping to win the war. The United States fighter himself does not want the war to end this year, because he wants the Kaiser well beaten and knows there is small chance of that being done this year.

While a healthy spirit generally pervades our army, the boys in the trenches have difficulty in understanding the evidently spreading belief that the war will end very soon. The American soldier does not want the war to end very soon. Not only does he want the Kaiser defeated, but he wants to see America have a big share in doing it. He knows America will not be in a position to do its best this year, but that it can do much more next year. He no more wants to quit now than would he at a baseball game in the fifth inning with the other side one run ahead.

In reality, no mother of an American soldier wants her boy to come home before he has completed the job he came here to do. Now the boys always read their mothers' letters many times and remember what is in them. Therefore only harm can be done by oft-repeated longings for early peace.

I feel confident in making the statement that an announcement of peace today would bring a strong wave of bitter regret throughout the American forces. Every American fighter is possessed of an innate confidence in the great power of his country and confidence that the Allies will completely beat the boche. He wants the folks back home to understand that this is the only way the war can end; and, most of all, he asks for a chance to carry the Stars and Stripes across the Rhine.

CONFIRMS TIMES DISPATCHES.

By FLOYD GIBBONS.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21.—The avenging of the death of Major Raoul Lufbery has begun. Since the American Ace of Aces was brought down, his flying partners have succeeded in bringing to earth two German planes, one of them containing two enemy airmen. At the same time their French comrades of the air engaged the armored enemy plane responsible for Lufbery's death and shot it down.

The American Major General, speaking at the burial of Lufbery in the Valley Cemetery on the front, announced the death of the enemy fliers who killed the aviator.

The French aviator who brought down the plane which had downed Lufbery followed his quarry forty kilometers through the air and only succeeded in winging him after making numerous attacks.

LUFBERY'S FUNERAL A TOUCHING TRIBUTE

French Join Americans at Military Rites, While Planes Soar Above, Dropping Red Roses.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 20, (Associated Press.)—Before the body of Major Raoul Lufbery was placed in a grave near a certain French village it lay in state in a room of a small frame building. Around it were hundreds of wreaths of flowers sent by American comrades, by French aviators who had known him in the French Army, and by a French army corps.

Atop all the handsome wreaths was a little bunch of wild roses and daisies to which was attached a piece of paper saying that it came from Major Lufbery's orderly and mentioning many kindnesses. With tears in his eyes the orderly came up to the coffin and reverently placed the flowers upon it.

The funeral of Major Lufbery was most impressive. The pallbearers, three American and three French aviators, carried the flag-draped coffin from the building to a motor car for the trip to the grave. The procession was led by an American band, a company of American infantry just from the trenches, and a company of French infantry. Following the coffin were 200 American and French officers, including all of Major Lufbery's companions in the air service, the American General commanding the sector northwest of Toul, and a French General commanding an army corps.

The party drew up at the grave, and while the service was being read one American aviator after another planed down from the sky, his motor shut off, until he was just overhead. Each threw out great bunches of red roses, which floated down upon the coffin and the bared heads of the officers and caps of the soldiers, who were drawn up at attention.

At the conclusion of the services the French General stepped forward and said:

"On behalf of my comrades of the French Army, I wish to pay respectful fraternal tribute to one of the heroes of the air, who was victorious eighteen times—a son of the noble and generous republic which came to our assistance to save the liberties of the world.

"Rest peacefully, Major Lufbery; close by the martyrs to our great cause. Your glorious example will inspire in us the spirit of sacrifice, till the day when humanity's enemy shall be finally vanquished. Goodbye."

The American General, under whom Major Lufbery once served as a private soldier, and the chief of the aerial service also paid honors to the dead aviator. The firing squad fired three times across the grave, a bugler sounded taps and another bugler, hidden in a nearby wood, echoed it. As the sound of the bugles died away all was silence except for the droning of the machines of Major Lufbery's comrades, patrolling the line high in the air, and occasionally the dull booming of distant guns.

REPORTS LUFBERY'S FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, May 21. — Reports that a new type of German airplane, armored sufficiently to protect its engines and crew from machine gun fire, was responsible for the death of Major Lufbery, the flying ace of the American Army, aroused wide interest here, although no official advices confirming the statement had been received today. General Pershing's communiqué of last night, received here today, besides reporting only artillery activity, added it had been determined Major Lufbery was shot down within the American lines in combat with a German two-seater airplane. The communiqué said nothing more.

It is regarded as probable that other aviators got close enough to the German machine to establish definitely whether it carried armor. There have been many attempts to give at least partial protection to the airmen in all services, but always economy of weight has prevented. It has been the accepted practice among the allied air fleets to equip big planes with additional guns rather than armor, relying on increased offensive power as the best defense.

Officials here familiar with the development of air fighting have contended for many months that the day of the one-man machine and the air duels of the aces is passing. Two-seated or larger planes, it is held, with increased machine gun batteries and gunners to handle them exclusively, while a pilot handles the machine itself, will make them almost invulnerable to attack by one-man craft.

NEW ATTACK BY BORGLUM.

Sculptor Attributes Lufbery's Fate to Our Aerial Deficiencies.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 21.— Gutzon Borglum, critic of America's aircraft program, tonight referred to the death of Major Raoul Lufbery as "unnecessary" and declared the United States War Department allowed a foreign country to take from under its very nose inventions that would have made the Lufbery tragedy impossible. He said:

"Major Lufbery's unnecessary death brings us sharply to the statement a great British aviator recently made to me: 'We have no right to send our men over the German lines in any but the best machines.' Months ago we knew of the German armored planes. On Feb. 24 I notified the authorities, 'armored German planes have appeared, and one of these will handle a dozen of ours.' This was suggested to the Board six months ago.

"Within the month I brought to the attention of the War Department, American inventions a foreign country had secured by cable from under their very noses, which would make the Lufbery tragedy impossible and even protect a small single-seater against the accident he met with under similar conditions. The Department looked, nodded, and the inventions left the following morning for Europe. These inventions would give the holder the mastery of the air.

"The puncturable tank and inflammable machine must disappear and immediately. We must, without waiting upon interminable investigations, get on with our program, a program that will mean the best fliers in Europe. Until such a plane, that involves the best genius and the aeronautic ability in plane construction and production is formed and under way, we shall not even begin to save our Lufberys, nor shall we even keep pace with the enterprising Hun."

AN ATLANTIC PORT, May 21.—Exactly forty-three days after her keel was laid at Camden, N. J., the steamer Tuckahoe, a record ship, arrived here today with a cargo of coal taken aboard at a South Atlantic port. No attempt at speed was made on the maiden voyage, although officers reported that the vessel came through in fine style, with her machinery working to perfection.

As the Tuckahoe steamed up the harbor other craft recognized her and gave her a noisy greeting. She turned and swung easily into her berth, and the work of discharging the cargo was carried on at a clip that would have brought cheers from the builders who turned her out in thirty-seven days. The Tuckahoe probably will remain in the coastwise trade for some time.

The Tuckahoe cleared this port tonight to take on another cargo of coal. Her cargo of 5,200 tons was discharged here in six hours and fifteen minutes.

FLIER, DOWNED, ESCAPES.

Philadelphia, Supposedly Biddle, Has a Thrilling Accident.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 21. (The Associated Press.)—An American aviation Captain who has been flying on the British front had a remarkable escape from death recently. This flyer belongs to a Philadelphia family.

Accompanied by another machine, the Philadelphian was flying along the lines north of Ypres when a big German plane was sighted. The Captain went into attack and the German began pumping machine gun bullets into the attacking machine from above. The other American flyer was too far away to render any assistance.

The Philadelphian was shot through the leg and another shot wrecked a part of the machinery of his plane so badly that the machine went down. He crashed in No Man's Land and by chance was not killed by the fall.

The Captain had just crawled away when a German shell struck the disabled machine and blew it to tinder. He was brought in safely from the shell holes, where he was sheltering himself from the German bombardment.

The foregoing probably refers to Captain Charles J. Biddle, who was reported in a Paris dispatch received yesterday to have been found near his wrecked machine by scouts in No Man's Land with a bullet through his leg. He had previously been reported lost after a fight with a German.

WILLIAMS STUDENT KILLED.

NEWTON, Mass., May 21.—Richard Blodgett, an American aviator who left his studies at Williams College last year to enter the service, has been killed on a flight in France, according to a cablegram received by his parents here today. Only last Friday he cabled his father, Edward E. Blodgett, that he had brought down his first German machine.

Blodgett, who was 20 years old, went to France as a volunteer ambulance driver, was transferred to the ammunition train, and recently entered the aviation service.

NAVAL AVIATOR SHOT DOWN.

Ensign Stephen Potter Missing After North Sea Combat.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Vice Admiral Sims today notified the Navy Department that Ensign Stephen Potter of the United States Naval Reserve Force was officially regarded as "missing" from the Royal Naval Air Station at Felixstowe, England, since April 25. The Vice Admiral's message said that a report from the commanding officer at Felixstowe stated that the Ensign's machine was attacked and shot down by an enemy seaplane in the North Sea.

Ensign Potter was a brother of Major John Potter, who is attached to the headquarters of the 170th Infantry Brigade, Camp Custer, Michigan. Ensign Potter was born at Saginaw in 1896, and after serving as a seaman in the Naval Reserve Force was detailed for flying on Sept. 26, 1917, when on duty with the naval aviation detachment, Curtiss Aeroplane Company, Buffalo. He was appointed an Ensign last November and ordered to aviation duty in France. On his arrival there he proceeded to Moutchic-Lacapau, Gironde, for assignment in December, and in January he was ordered to report to the Royal Naval Air Station at Felixstowe.

AMERICAN AVIATOR KILLED.

LONDON, May 21.—Second Lieutenant Mortimer Crane of the British Flying Corps has been killed on a flight in Great Britain and was buried Monday. He was a son of T. J. Crane of Philadelphia.

Lieutenant Crane joined the American Army when the United States entered the war, but wishing to get into active service he obtained a discharge and joined the British Army.

RAIDING AIRPLANES FIRED.

LONDON, May 21.—Details are being learned of the destruction of the five Gotha machines which were brought down in the raid on London Sunday night, in which twenty to thirty German airplanes took part.

One of the raiders was engaged by a British airman who fired at close range until the German machine disappeared in a cloud. Shortly afterward the machine burst into flames at a height of 7,000 feet, and fell a blazing wreck. Another machine was brought down by anti-aircraft guns in London. Two others were brought down while attempting to escape, one being destroyed by British airmen. The fifth was set afire and fell into the sea.

Two German airplanes of a new and large type which had been forced to land in the North Sea were rescued by Swedish steamers, telegraphs the correspondent at Copenhagen of the Exchange Telegraph Company. These presumably are the machines mentioned in the British official air report as having been driven down into the sea after the raid on London, although their destruction was not officially asserted.

Grand Rapids Airman Killed.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 21.—J. Alexander Bayne of Grand Rapids, a young aviator with the Lafayette Escadrille on the fighting front in France, has been killed in action, according to word received here today by his parents. He was studying art in Paris when war was declared, and joined the French Aviation Corps.

HARD NIGHT HIKES FOR OUR ARTILLERY

Cannoneer Fell Asleep, Toppled Off Perch, and Was Run Over by Heavy Wheel.

By FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

WITH THE AMERICANS UNDER GENERAL FOCH, May 20.—Midnight passed and we were still wheeling our way through the sleepy villages, consulting maps under the rays of flashlights, gathering directions some of the time from mile posts and wall signs and at other times gaining knowledge of roads and turns and hills from sleepy heads in curl papers that protruded from bedroom windows and were overgenerous in advice.

The animals were tired. Rain soaked the cigarettes and made them draw badly. Above was drizzle and below was mud. There were a few grumblers, but no man in our column would have traded places with a brother back home if a farm to boot had been offered.

It was after three in the morning when we parked the guns in front of a château, brought forward some lagging combat wagons and discovered the rolling kitchen had gone astray. In another hour the animals had been unhitched but not unharnessed, fed and watered in the darkness, and the men, in utter weariness, prepared to lie down and sleep anywhere. At this juncture word was passed through the section that the battery would get ready to move immediately.

Orders were to clear the village by 6 o'clock. Neither men nor horses were rested, but we moved out on time and breakfasted on the road. The way seemed long, the roads bad and the guns heavy. But we were passing through an Eden of beauty—green fields, rolling hills, and ancient châteaux. At times the road would wind down through hillside orchards, white and pink with apple blossoms. Fatigue was heavy on man and beast, but I heard one walking cannoneer singing, "When It's Apple Blossom Time in Normandy."

Another rider in the column recalled the time when his father used to give him 10 cents for standing on the bottom of an upturned tin basin and reciting, "Over the mountains, winding down, horse and foot into Fredericktown."

Jar of the Guns.

"The jar of the guns as they grind over the gravel is enough to grind the heart out of you," said a sweating cannoneer who was pressing a helping shoulder to one of the heavies as we negotiated a steep hill.

"What 'n 'ell you kickin' about?" said a man opposite. "Suppose you was traveling with one of them guns the Germans are using on Paris—I mean, that old John J. Long Distance? You'd know what heavy guns were then. They say that gun's so big and takes so many horses to haul it that the man who drives the lead pair has never spent a night in the same town with the fellow who rides the wheel swing."

A young reserve Lieutenant, with mind intensely on his work, combined his impressions of the scenery with a lesson in artillery location for my benefit. His characterization of the landscape was as technical as it was unpoetical.

"Great howitzer country," was the tenor of his remarks. "Look at the bottom of that slide. Fine position for a 155. Take that gully over there: that's a beaut of a place. No use talking. Great howitzer country."

In the afternoon the veterinarian turned over two horses to the French peasants. One was exhausted and unable to proceed; the other suffered from an exceedingly bad hoof, which would require weeks to heal. The news that the animals were not going to be shot was received with joy by the two men who had ridden them. I saw them patting the disabled mounts affectionately on the neck and heard one of them say:

"'S' all right, old timer; 's' all right. Frenchy here is going to take care of you all right, and Uncle Sam is paying the bill, and I'm coming back and get you soon's we give Fritz his."

An hour later a young cannoneer gave in to fatigue, reclining on the gun trail and falling asleep. A rut in the road, a few stiff jolts, and he rolled off, one ponderous wheel of the gun carriage passing over him. One leg, one arm, two ribs broken and a crushed foot was the doctor's verdict as the victim was carried away in an ambulance.

"He'll get better, all right," said the doctor, "but he's finished his bit in the army."

The column halted for lunch outside of a small town, and I climbed on foot to the hilltop castle where mediaeval and modern were mixed in mute mélange. A drawbridge crossed a long dry moat to cracked walls of rock covered with ivy. For all its well preserved signs of artistic ruin, it was occupied and well fitted up within. From the topmost parapet of one rickety-looking tower a wire stretched through the air to a ruined old mill surmounted by a modern wind motor, whose tail incongruously advertised the words "Ideal Power" with the typical conspicuity of American salesmanship.

Heard via Wireless.

Near the base of the old mill was another jumble of moss-covered rocks, now the roof of a Summer house, but open on all sides. At a table in the centre of this open structure sat a blonde-haired young American soldier with black receivers clamped to either ear. I approached and watched him jotting down words on the paper pad before him. After several minutes of intent silence he removed the harness from his head and told me that he belonged to the wireless outfit with our artillery, and that this station had been in operation since the day before.

"Seems peaceful here with the sun streaming down over these old walls," he said.

"What do you hear out of the air?" I asked.

"Oh, we pick up a lot of junk," he replied. "I'm waiting for the German communiqué, too. Here's some Spanish stuff I just picked up and some more junk in French. The English stations haven't started this afternoon. A few minutes ago I heard a German airplane signaling by wireless to a German battery and directing its fire. I could tell every time a gun was ordered to fire and every time the aviator said the shot was short or over. It's kinder funny to sit back here in the quiet and listen on the wire, isn't it?"

I agreed it was weird, and it was.

In darkness again at the end of a hard day, we parked the guns that night in a little village which is the headquarters for our regiment and where I am writing these lines tonight by an old oil lamp in the Mayor's office. A former Chicago bell-hop, who speaks better Italian than English, and naturally should, is sleeping on a blanket roll on the floor nearby. On the walls are posted numerous flag-decked proclamations, some now yellow with the time that has passed over them since their issue back in 1914. They pertain to the mobilization of the men of the village, many of whose names remain now only as a memory.

But in their stead is now a khaki-clad Chicago bell-hop snoring there on the floor, and a thousand more as sturdy and ready as he, all billeted within a stone's throw of this room. They are here to finish the fight begun by those village peasants who marched away four years ago when the Mayor of that town posted the bulletin. These Americans stand ready to go down to honored graves beside them.

agitators is expected soon, either in London or Washington. Officials today declined to indicate whether any statement might be expected from the State Department concerning the Irish developments.

The story of how the intrigue in this country was discovered, it was said, if published fully, would tell of many communications brought surreptitiously into the United States in violation of regulations. Many of these were written with invisible ink and in code, and when deciphered furnished clues leading to the detection of many ramifications of the plot. The men responsible for the agitation were supplied with funds from deposits in banks where German representatives formerly kept their accounts, or from other mysterious sources.

The Irish radicals in their correspondence referred frequently to the promise of German aid in an uprising, which was to be called for this month or next, when the Germans had expected to reach the Channel ports in their big drive. The Germans then were to send arms and ammunition, and possibly troops, to the Irish coast to participate in the rebellion.

Irish Plans Melodramatic.

Many of the Irish plans were melodramatic in the extreme, it is stated, and involved all the elements of dramatic fiction. They were so radical that Government agents felt safe for a long while in permitting the scheming to continue in the hope of detecting others involved. The series of sudden arrests of Irish by the British Government may have been made when it finally became evident that the rebellion actually was about to be started.

The secret system of negotiations by Sinn Feiners had been in progress for several months, it is understood. This tends to confirm the statement from London that the series of arrests several days ago had no direct connection with plans to conscript the Irish. Some information was obtained from Germans now held in internment camps in this country. There is indication also that the seat of the German-Irish negotiations was transferred at times to other American republics.

It was made plain here that the United States Government's interest in the Irish plots is solely to prevent Germany from attacking by this method co-belligerents of the United States, and that this Government is not seeking to meddle in the Irish situation except for this reason.

BRITISH SEARCHING SUSPECTS IN IRELAND

DUBLIN, May 21.—The Government net is still spread in hope of arresting other persons believed to be connected with the alleged German plot. A number of suspected persons are being searched, some vehicles in the vicinity of the city are being stopped, and the occupants are subjected to examination.

John Dillon, the Nationalist leader, in an interview with The Associated Press correspondent today, emphasized the divergence between his party and the Sinn Fein, whose policy he declared to be "wrong and foolish and bound to end in disaster."

Mr. Dillon said that he still believed in a friendly settlement with Great Britain. He adhered to the declaration of the late John E. Redmond, made at the outbreak of the war, that the "cause of the Allies is the cause of freedom."

In an appeal to the American people Mr. Dillon said that the Sinn Fein had been supplied with unlimited financial resources from New York, and he urgently asked all those of Irish blood in the United States to support his party as against the Sinn Feins.

Irish Leaders Issue Manifesto.

A resolution denouncing the Sinn Fein deportations as an attempt to discredit and disrupt Ireland's united resistance to conscription and to prejudice Ireland's case in the eyes of friendly countries was passed by the anti-conscription conference, which met at the Mansion House Monday. An official statement, signed, among others, by John Dillon and Joseph Devlin, the Irish Nationalist leaders, was issued after the meeting. It insists on the right of Irishmen to be arraigned in their own country and declares that an attempt is being made to poison the minds of the English people against the prisoners.

In addition to Messrs. Dillon and Devlin, those who signed the protest were William O'Brien and Timothy Healy, representing the O'Brienite party; John MacNeill and Alderman Kelley, representing the Sinn Feiners in the places of de Valera and Arthur Griffith, and Messrs. Johnston, Egan, and O'Brien, representing the Labor Party.

The text of the protest follows:

"A conference speaking on behalf of every section of the Irish nation condemns the deportations to England of our colleagues, Professor de Valera and Arthur Griffith, and their fellow-prisoners. We charge it as an attempt to discredit and disrupt Ireland's united resistance to conscription, and this on a charge or allegation calculated to make a fair trial impossible for them in England and to prejudice the cause of the Irish nation in friendly countries abroad.

"We assert the ancient constitutional right of Irishmen to be arraigned in their own country and tried by their own countrymen. We charge that denial of this right is in violation of the first principles of justice and liberty, for the defense of which England claims to be a member of an alliance of democratic nations.

French's Proclamation Assailed.

"We deplore the attempt in the proclamation of Field Marshal French to poison the English mind against the Irish prisoners by a sensational allegation of 'a conspiracy in Ireland to enter into treasonable communication with the German enemy.' When Lord French calls on the Irish people to 'assist the Government in every way to crush this conspiracy' all Nationalists must recall that it is the habit of the British Government to blacken and assail Irish leaders in order to effectuate their own objects, and that charges of assassination were made against Parnell by means of a forged letter published on the day when the perpetual coercion act for Ireland was passed through its second reading in 1887, and this forgery was availed of by important members of the present Ministry to justify such legislation to the world.

"Circumstances at the present moment are trying, but we are strong in the confidence that our countrymen will continue to observe imperturbable calmness coupled with an unshakable determination to be faithful at all hazards to the sacred pledge of national resistance to conscription which virtually the entire nation has now taken.

"While standing steadfastly on our own good right, we shall not cease to appeal to all friends of human freedom throughout the convulsed world and to inquire for ourselves whether the present attempt to force civil war upon the Irish people by a transparent and false pretext of military expediency does not really cover a wicked plot of English politicians to relieve themselves from their broken pledges to Ireland, in view of their profession that they have entered the world war with the object of securing the right of self-determination for every other small nation in Europe."

Await Government's Evidence.

The press comment on the manifesto of protest indicates an all-around reluctance to take a definite stand in the present situation until more is known of the Government's evidence regarding the alleged German plot. All parties are marking time, awaiting developments.

The Unionists presume that the Government's evidence must be very strong, while the Nationalist press shows some skepticism as to the reality of a plot. The Sinn Fein has no daily newspaper. Its half dozen little papers, known in Dublin as "the mosquito press," appear weekly on Thursday. At the Sinn Fein headquarters there were emphatic denials of the existence of any German plot.

The Unionist organ, The Irish Times, commenting on the Mansion House manifesto, condemns "the scandalous suggestion that a great Irish soldier and an English Minister have conspired to blacken Ireland's character in friendly countries." It describes the manifesto as "in effect a vote of confidence in the Sinn Fein, an appeal to the worst prejudice of the most intolerant Irishman and the repudiation of Ireland's duty in the war. If this is the best that Nationalist statesmanship can do in Ireland's gravest hour, if this is its true message to the peoples who are now in death grips with Germany, decent Irishmen of all parties must hang their heads for shame."

"The country is perfectly calm," a representative of the Sinn Fein at the organization's headquarters said today to The Associated Press. "Up to the present time we have received particulars of eighty-four arrests. We expect there will be others.

"'Business as usual' is the motto at our headquarters. Some of the English newspapers are suggesting that the Sinn Fein has been stunned by the Government's action. That is not correct. The arrests were expected, and substitute leaders were appointed some time ago to carry on our affairs whenever the need should arise."

An Order in Council makes it a criminal offense under the Defense of the Realm act to hoard silver in Ireland or to exchange or offer in exchange current coins for an amount exceeding their face value.

DUBLIN'S CALM ASTONISHES.

Some Observers Say That Ireland Is Relieved by the Arrests.

LONDON, May 21.—A total absence of excitement in Dublin is reported in all the dispatches to the morning newspapers from the Irish capital, and, as far as is known, there have been no untoward incidents in connection with the Sinn Fein arrests anywhere in the country. There are no outward indications that anything has happened, is happening, or is about to happen outside of Ireland's ordinary daily routine.

The Whitmonday holiday passed in the customary manner. The horse racing at Ballydoyle and other sporting events were attended by the usual ligely crowds. Seaside resorts were thronged, as were the golf courses at Crosden. Nobody seemed to care about probable new arrests or the old ones.

One of the correspondents of The Daily Mail says that the calm is sensational and that the people appear to be utterly unperturbed by the recent dramatic developments. He adds:

"But appearances are deceptive. Dublin is not Ireland. The constitutional Nationalists one generally meets here are not representative of the wild hotbloods who have given strength to the Sinn Fein. Moreover, the whole country evidently is staggered by the suddenness of the Government's action, and the people hesitate to commit themselves to any opinion until the evidence against those under arrest is produced."

On the other hand, some correspondents say that the country is generally relieved over the arrests. A dispatch to The Daily Express from Dublin says:

"If Lord French had won a great victory on the western front he could not have received more congratulations from the Irish than have been accorded him for the suppression of the seditious Sinn Fein. The country has recovered its normal temperature."

In the meantime every one in Ireland and Great Britain is awaiting production of the proof of a German plot, and in many quarters it is believed that there ought not to be any delay in making it public. It is reported from several sources that the Government has no present intention of publicly arraigning those under arrest, who will be merely interned.

The question of Irish conscription continues to hold attention. It is asserted that conscription has not been abandoned, but that it is held in abeyance pending edvelopments. Voluntary recruiting plans, according to the Dublin correspondent of The Daily Express, are being pushed forward in the belief that thousands of young Irishmen are tired of their noncombatant position. The recruiting scheme will receive a thorough trial and upon its progress depends the eventual decision regarding conscription.

Eva Gore Booth, sister of Countess Markievicz, who was arrested in Dublin last week, informs The Daily Express that she saw the Countess arrive in London on Sunday. The Countess, she says, was taken to Holloway Prison, where she remains, and no one is permitted to visit her.

LORD DECIES HOST OF LABOR ENVOYS

Americans Express Hope That Ireland Will Give Wholehearted Help to the Allies.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Copyright, 1918, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

DUBLIN, May 21.—Lord Decies, husband of the former Miss Vivien Gould, gave a dinner today to the American Labor Commission. The dinner was attended by leading Dublin and British Government officials.

The Americans spoke sympathetically of Ireland and expressed the hope that the troubles now besetting the island would be adjusted speedily on a basis of justice and brotherhood, and not only that peace might come to Ireland, but that Ireland might voluntarily take her place wholeheartedly beside the Allies in the fight for world freedom.

Miss Joy Higgins of Omaha brought down the house with a toast of a few words:

"It has been said that England is our mother, France our inspiration, but Ireland our sweetheart," she said. "Being Irish is not nationality; it is a state of being. It was in this beautiful isle that my ancestors lived. I ask my lords and gentlemen to lift their glasses to Ireland, the world's sweetheart, the gem of the ocean, and loved of God."

After receiving reports from all the provinces today the Nationalist leaders are of the opinion that their forces will give no trouble, as it has been determined that the military shall not have justification for stern action.

Information from a high official source indicates that Sinn Fein leaders now in English jails will be treated as kindly as prison regulations will permit. What course the prosecution may take has not been definitely decided. It is reported that the men will be imprisoned until after the war, but that there will be no executions.

Mrs. Darrell Figgis secured permission today to go to England in search of her husband. If court-martial trials are held she wants to be beside her husband and help all she can in his defense.

On the Whitmonday holiday the parks and streets were thronged with great crowds, but there was no trouble. Throngs attended the running races at Ballydoyle, many going on foot, as it is against military regulations to use an automobile to race meetings.

Factions Join in Greeting Envoys.

DUBLIN, May 20.—The three days' visit to Ireland of seven members of the American Labor Mission closed today with a luncheon given by Lord Decies. A great effort was made to obtain the attendance of representatives of all the Irish parties in order to show that, however much local issues separate Irish citizens, they are united in their friendship for America.

Unionists and Nationalists were both well represented at the gathering, and official Dublin attended in a body, those present including Edward Shortt, the new Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Major Gen. Shaw, the new commander of the British forces in Ireland. It was obviously impossible that any members of the real revolutionary school of the Sinn Fein could be present at the same table with Secretary Shortt and General Shaw, but the more moderate wing of the Sinn Fein was to have been represented by Laurence O'Neill, the Lord Mayor of Dublin. Unfortunately, Mayor O'Neill, who had been out of the city, found it impossible at the last moment to get back to Dublin until mid-afternoon and sent a message of regret with a request that the delegation meet him at his office immediately after the luncheon.

The principal speakers of the occasion were the two highest legal dignitaries in Ireland, Sir Ignatius O'Brien, the Lord Chancellor, who is a leading Nationalist, and Sir James Campbell, the Lord Chief Justice, a close friend and supporter of Sir Edward Carson, the Unionist leader. Both the speakers eulogized the great part which the United States was taking in the war and expressed the hope that there would also soon be greater co-operation from Ireland in the work of defeating the Germans.

"The American delegation," said the Lord Chief Justice, who has lost two sons in the war, "has come among us at a time when we are unhappily distracted and divided. The sky of Ireland is dark with heavy and lowering clouds of anger and suspicion, and these clouds have for the time obscured the vision of peace and reconciliation which a few months ago seemed so near, and for which many of us so earnestly waited and zealously labored.

"But I do not despair, nor have I abandoned the belief that the common sufferings and sacrifices and heroism of the many gallant Irishmen who have fallen in the great war will bear the fruit of peace and good will in Ireland.

"The situation here today is critical. One thing alone can save it, and that is the co-operation of every sane and patriotic Irishman in a final appeal to our young manhood to take its place in this world struggle and fill the places of the gallant Irishmen who have fallen in the defense of freedom and liberty. If we get an adequate response to this final appeal, we will succeed in vindicating the fair name of Ireland before the world and will save our country from tragedy and despair."

In the course of the day the members of the American mission conferred with John Dillon, the Nationalist leader, and later went to the bedside of Sir Horace Plunkett, who was the Chairman of the Irish Convention, for a few words with him. He is recovering from a severe breakdown which has kept him to his bed since the convention finished its work.

One of the incidents of the day was a conference between the American women delegates and a deputation from the Sinn Fein women's organization, headed by Mrs. Wyse Power, who is one of the members of the new Sinn Fein Executive Committee. According to a statement issued later from the Sinn Fein headquarters, Mrs. Wyse Power "laid before the American visitors the Irish Republican point of view."

Among the first Sinn Fein figures whom the Americans of the labor mission encountered in the lobby of their hotel, the Shelbourne, here on Sunday was Maude Gonne McBride, widow of Major John McBride, one of the men put to death in the Spring of 1916 for his part in the Easter uprising. She lives within a stone's throw of the hotel, and was a constant visitor there after the arrival of the Americans. She was arrested last night while she was returning to her home.

Maude Gonne is a striking figure, nearly six feet tall, dressed in black, and she attracted the attention of the Americans by the fact that she was always accompanied by her dachshund. Her arrest appears virtually to have completed the list of Sinn Fein leaders whom the Government has decided to render inactive for the time being.

As the widow of one of the noted Sinn Fein figures, Maude Gonne has been regarded as an important leader of the Sinn Fein women's movement. She had been in Ireland only for a few weeks, and had been able to get back from England with the greatest difficulty. The British Government had prohibited her entrance at any Irish port. She made repeated attempts to reach Ireland, but was unsuccessful until she finally eluded the Government's vigilance by dressing herself in the clothes of an old peasant market woman and crossing thus from Holyhead.

the Catholic clergy, not to preside at political meetings.

The protest was formulated by Mrs. William Jay and her Loyal Committee, and the women are willing to take the matter to the Apostolic Delegate unless something is done to prevent priests from taking part in meetings which, they assert, are jeopardizing the cause of the country and putting our men in France in peril.

Dr. Frances Kellor, who was put out of one Sinn Fein meeting for protesting that the speeches were seditious, said last night that she had received many scurrilous anonymous letters, and that in some of these her life had been covertly threatened. She has also received hundreds of letters praising her action.

NEW JERSEY MEN ON LIST.

Lieut. A. J. Metzger of Newark, Killed, Was an Aviator.

Lieutenant Alfred R. Metzger, whose death by accident in France, is reported in yesterday's casualty list from General Pershing, was a son of the late Alfred R. Metzger of Newark, and was a flier with the American Aviation Section in France. He entered the army in March of last year, a few weeks before Congress declared war on Germany, and was with the first American contingent which followed General Pershing overseas. Lieutenant Metzger was 24 years old, and before entering the army was an engineer in the employ of the Crucible Steel Company. His father died last November. He is survived by his mother, one sister, and one brother, all of whom live at 16 Camp Street, Newark.

Lieutenant Frank A. Fritz, reported severely wounded, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Fritz of Butler, N. J. He is a graduate of the second Plattsburg Officers' Training Camp, and before entering the army was with the law firm of Platt & Field at 120 Broadway. He is a graduate of Manhattan College, and the Fordham Law School. A telegram to his parents yesterday announced that he was wounded in action on May 11.

Lieutenant Fritz is of German stock, both his father and mother having been born in Germany.

Private Roland Bigelow, reported dead of wounds, was in the Engineers of the regular army. A telegram to his family announced that death was hastened by shell shock. He was 29 years old, and went to France last November. His family lives in Asbury Park.

TO OFFICERS of the AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, the Military Banking House of Cox & Company cordially extends the valuable financial facilities of which Officers of the British and Colonial Forces have availed themselves since the beginning of the war, and which no other Bank is in a position to provide.

At the commencement of the present war, Cox & Company's Bank established a subsidiary in France under the name of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., through which Officers in uniform can cash checks on Cox & Company, up to the equivalent of £5 (about $25) at any one time, without the formality of establishing identity and signature—a convenience which obviates the necessity of carrying ready money or easily-lost letters of credit in the war zone.

To cover the whole of France, a special arrangement was made with the Bank of France, whereby the same privileges were extended to Officers in uniform by all the many hundred branches of that Bank in places where no branch of Cox & Co. (France), Ltd., existed. The same facilities are also provided throughout Italy at all branches of the Banca Italiana di Sconto.

Founded more than 30 years before George Washington was first President of the United States, Cox & Company's Bank has held the appointment of Bankers and Official Agents to the majority of British Regiments almost uninterruptedly ever since.

BEFORE SAILING FOR EUROPE, instruct your Banker in your home city to send a draft for your credit with Cox & Company, London, when the above important facilities will become available to you.

MRS. STOKES DENIES ASSAILING RED CROSS

Testifies That She Did Not Allude to It as "Profiteering Camouflage."

RECITLS EARLY HARDSHIPS

Contrast Them with Her Leisure Since Marriage, Explaining Her Socialistic Views.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 21.—Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, on trial in the Federal Court charged with violating the Espionage act, took the stand in her own behalf late today. With certain preliminary abridgements, demanded by the court, she delivered in the courtroom substantially the same speech she gave before the Woman's Dining Club here which aroused such protest.

Mrs. Stokes testified that she was born in Russia in 1879 and left that country when 8 years old. She lived in London until 11 years old, she said, and sewed ribbons on slippers to contribute to the support of her family. Then she came to America and worked as a cigarmaker in Cleveland twelve years. When 23 years old she removed to New York and became editor of The Jewish Daily News. In 1905 she was married, she testified. Her husband never was a millionaire, she said, although his family was wealthy.

Mrs. Stokes said that she had been a member of the Socialist Party until the United States entered the war, when she resigned, but rejoined it later. She denied that she had alluded to the Red Cross as a "profiteering camouflage." She said she had given $50 to the Red Cross last year and had purchased Liberty bonds of the first and second issues. She did not invest in the third issue, she said, fearing that the impression would obtain that she was seeking public favor. The witness at this point launched into a dissertation on Socialism, tracing the alleged cause for persons being thrown out of employment.

It was in telling of conditions under which she lived in girlhood that Mrs. Stokes made her greatest emotional appeal. Her attorney asked her to explain how she came to be a Socialist.

"For twelve years I was a cigarmaker in Cleveland," she said. "I was ill-nourished and poorly clad. I worked at night as well as day to help piece out my family's existence. I never had anything I wanted. But the moment I left the working class and got into the leisure class"—referring to her marriage to J. G. Phelps Stokes—"I had all the money, all the clothes, in a word, everything I wanted. I realized conditions then were unjust and not above criticism."

The prosecution sprang a sensation in the cross-examination of Mrs. Florence Kelley of New York, Vice President of the National Conference of Social Workers, a character witness for Mrs. Stokes. After she had testified that Mrs. Stokes enjoyed a good reputation, E. B. Silver, Assistant United States District Attorney, demanded:

"Are you aware that Mrs. Stokes attended a meeting in New York in April, 1915, to attack the birth control law, when Mrs. Stokes said: 'I have come here to do what Emma Goldman did. I am honoring the law by breaking it'?"

Mrs. Kelley said that she did not know about the incident.

"Then," returned Mr. Silver, "your knowledge as whether Mrs. Stokes is a law-abiding citizen is pretty incomplete, isn't it?"

Arthur Kellogg of New York, advertising manager of The Survey, also testified as to the good reputation of Mrs. Stokes.

Mr. Stedman, the prisoner's counsel, said that members of the Woman's Dining Club, before whom she spoke in March, would be introduced to refute the testimony of the Government's witnesses.

The patriotic poem "America," written by Mrs. Stokes and published in the Century Magazine of December, 1917, was read to the jury by Mr. Silver.

A. H. Little, a live stock commission man of the Kansas side, a Government witness, testified that Mrs. Stokes read the poem in her speech here. She remarked, he said, that she was sorry she had written it.

"And that was the sentiment Mrs. Stokes then repudiated?" asked Mr. Silver of Mr. Little, turning quickly after reading the poem to the jury. Mr. Stedman objected. The witness was permitted to answer, and he replied, "Yes."

Mr. Stedman intimated today that there were "certain influences" attempting to make a "goat" of Mrs. Stokes, and said that "they had found her to be a lamb."

As yet he has made no effort to explain away the letter written to The Kansas City Star March 20, which formed the basis of Mrs. Stokes's indictment. In that letter she said she was against the Government and this was a war of profiteers.

Robert L. Dawson made an admission which was seized upon by the defense. Mr. Dawson testified that Mrs. Stokes said there were two elements in the war—one for the profiteers and one for democracy—and for her part she was for democracy.

Mr. Stedman has attempted to obtain this admission from a number of other witnesses.

Lieutenant Ralph B. Campbell, in charge of the Navy Recruiting Office, who left the meeting while Mrs. Stokes was speaking, was a witness for the Government.

"Mrs. Stokes said she no longer favored this capitalistic Government keeping us in the war," Lieutenant Campbell testified. "She said we did not enter the war to protect our democracy, but to protect our dollars."

Mr. Silver asked Lieutenant Campbell the effect Mrs. Stokes's statements had exerted upon recruiting. His reply that recruiting was lower the following week than before was ordered stricken out of the record by Judge Van Valkenburgh.

F. P. Marlowe, Clerk of the Circuit Court, Neosho, Mo., was a witness to establish the character of Mrs. Stokes's remarks in that town. He testified Mrs. Stokes said she had stopped knitting and doing Red Cross work when she was reminded that Austrian and German boys were being killed in this war.

MILLIONS IN PROPERTY DESTROYED BY I. W. W.

Government Introduces Letters Telling of Havoc Wrought in California for Years.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Inside history of the ruin wrought by the I. W. W. in the hop fields and fruit orchards of California by the practice of sabotage several years ago in an effort to obtain the release from prison of Richard Ford and Herman Suhr, members of the organization convicted on charges of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, was revealed today at the trial of 112 I. W. W. leaders. The Government attorneys read a number of letters written by Charles L. Lambert of Sacramento, Cal., who was Secretary of the Hop Pickers' Defense Committee in 1914, and later elected a member of the General Executive Board of the I. W. W. He was one of the leaders who directed the unsuccessful fight conducted by the organization in California in the hope that the Governor might be influenced to pardon Ford and Suhr from prison.

According to Lambert the I. W. W. campaign of sabotage resulted in the destruction of property valued at $10,000,000 annually for several years.

In a letter to George Childs, Treasurer of the Joe Hill defense fund, Lambert, under date of Aug. 4, 1915, said:

"There is so little justice toward our class that we will have to change our tactics, and in the future when one of our class is murdered in the interest of capitalism two of theirs should be murdered in the interest of labor, and then the authorities will have more respect for us. We will have to use more direct action."

Lambert declared: "Our only hope lies in sabotage and direct action," in a letter addressed to Dick Highfield at Oatman, Ariz.

In a letter written to G. J. Bourg, another defendant in the present trial, Lambert told of property in California valued at $2,000,000 being destroyed by fire, and added:

"This does not seem to have waked them up yet, but if they get enough of it they will wake up and get a move on."

He concludes this letter by telling of the killing of Sheriff Meadows of Imperial Valley.

"They finally got our old friend Sheriff Meadows of Imperial Valley," wrote Lambert. "This rat has dodged everything successfully for the last five years from poison to bullets, but finally he fell and died after four hours of terrible agony from poisoning of some kind. He lived five years too long."

In a signed article published in the Industrial World in May, 1917, Lambert described the sabotage practiced to compel the release of Ford and Shur from prison.

"True the boss has felt quite a gnawing at his pocketbook. It has cost the boss on an average of $10,000,000 a year to keep Ford and Suhr in the pen."

Lambert in a letter written to Richard Ford, who was in prison, in June, 1915, said:

"Big Bill (Haywood) was up before the Industrial Relations Commission in the East lately and he handed them a package they will not forget in a hurry. The Chairman of the commission is sure a dandy, too. He is doing more to bring about a state of unrest among the workers than all the soap boxers and other reformers could do in twenty years."

Other letters told of acts of sabotage which did great damage on which the writer placed an aggregate loss of approximately $100,000.

RIVETING PRIZE FOR NEGRO.

Hurley Forwards Northcliffe Purse and Challenges British Workmen.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The first international prize for riveting was transmitted today by Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board to Charles Knight, a negro, at the request of Lord Northcliffe, owner of London newspapers, who offered £25 for the best score above previous records. Knight is employed at the Bethlehem shipbuilding plant at Sparrow's Point, Md. At the same time Mr. Hurley cabled Lord Northcliffe a new challenge for British workmen, and called on American shipbuilders to beat Knight's record. An increase of five rivets per gang per hour would mean the building of a steel freighter of 10,000 tons every ten weeks, he said. Mr. Hurley wrote Knight:

"Your world's record feat of driving 4,875 rivets on May 16 has set for American shipbuilders the fast pace that is so necessary for carrying on the war successfully. Such an achievement as yours carries across the seas an inspiring message of American determination and ability. The Shipping Board is justly proud of what you have done, and it is a pleasure for me to send you an appreciation."

The health, comfort and peace of mind of our fighting men is a national obligation. In its thorough care of our men the Government reflects the country's determination that ours shall be the best-cared-for soldiers and sailors in the world.

The whole nation stands pledged to every sacrifice that will add to the happiness or effectiveness of our men.

The Red Cross is the people's agent in this, as it is authorized by Congress to be the "medium of communication between the people of the United States and its Army and Navy."

The Red Cross supplements, in every practical way, the excellent care which is taken of each boy by the Army and Navy. There is the closest co-operation between the Government and the Red Cross; the two Surgeon-Generals are members of the Red Cross Executive Committee; Army and Navy officers are assigned to Red Cross headquarters; a Red Cross Field-Director with necessary assistants is stationed at every cantonment or naval station.

Canteen Service

A troop train rolls in at four o'clock, three hours late. No one has had dinner. It isn't any one's fault. There has been a freight wreck or something has delayed it.

Everyone is tired; everyone is hungry. A soldier in the first coach passes along the word, Here they are! Down the yard come the Red Cross women; the coffee is ready and hot, trays of sandwiches, a portion for every man, for Red Cross knew they were coming and is ready for them.

Best of all there is a word of cheer. In five minutes all hands are in good spirits. The post-cards are ready for the men to write home, the Red Cross Motor Corps stands beside to take the one sick soldier to the hospital, and there will be Red Cross women to see that he is not forgotten there. All is conducted in an orderly way in full co-operation with the Army authorities and railway management.

Camp Service

The great army cantonment or naval station is a new kind of city. Here are 40,000 young men, in a new environment, living a new kind of life. There is every problem of the city of 40,000, always with some novel phase. The Red Cross has filled a real place in these new cities, helping the Army and Navy in keeping the men healthy, comfortable and happy.

In the camp the young soldier finds that elaborate preparation had been made for his arrival. The site has been made healthy and comfortable by the Army or Navy. The area surrounding the camp has been in charge of the United States Sanitary Service, the Red Cross Sanitary Service, and the local health authorities.

If an epidemic threatens the camp, as during the recent winter, and the hard-worked Army Medical Staff is baffled, they may call for a Red Cross laboratory car to be rushed to the scene with its expert bacteriologists and scientific equipment to study the situation and help protect the men.

In every camp there are the Red Cross Storehouses filled with emergency medical and surgical supplies. Then there are the knitted goods made by the devoted women of America, and there were few of our men who were not thankful to those women for additional comfort during the trying winter months.

If the soldier falls ill in the cantonment he is put in an ambulance, perhaps the gift of a Red Cross chapter, its driver quite possibly a member of a Red Cross ambulance unit which has been given to the Army; he is taken to the base hospital, operated by the Army Medical Corps; possibly the doctor attending him is an officer of a Hospital Unit organized and equipped by the Red Cross; his nurse in all probability is one of the thousands of Red Cross nurses recruited by the Red Cross for service in the Army and Navy.

When he begins to recover, he has the Red Cross Convalescent Houses. Here are reading and lounging rooms, an entertainment auditorium, a place to meet his friends and hasten his recovery. Then there are sleeping accommodations for his mother who may have been summoned in the critical stage of his illness.

In every camp there are Red Cross Home Service representatives to keep the man in touch with his home folks, to advise them of the details of his sickness, to counsel him about family or financial complications, to take home worries from his shoulders, and through the Red Cross Chapter in his home town to remove the cause of those worries.

Home Service

The care of the soldier's family is as necessary as the care of the soldier himself if the spirit so necessary to his effectiveness as a fighting man is to be maintained. If he is harassed by anxiety about those dearest to him at home he cannot be on fighting edge.

Red Cross Home Service meets this problem.

It is a new condition that such a large percentage of its young men should be removed from a town with all they have meant in moral and financial support. Their absence creates new problems, in the aggregate so large they must be coped with in a large way. Red Cross Home Service makes the sympathy, interest and help of the whole community available to the family in a practical manner. It is playing the part of the old neighbor in a new way.

To see that the family is not disorganized while he is absent; to give temporary financial aid when necessary; to care for those who, though they are related to him, have no legal claim upon the Government; to give information about pay-allotments, terms of enlistment, war risk insurance; to co-operate with the Government in the after-care of the disabled soldier and his readjustment to life; to act as the good neighbor and friend of the family in troubles large and small when the soldier is absent—these are the aims of Red Cross Home Service, established in every section of the country, and already serving one hundred thousand dependent families of soldiers and sailors.

Home Service is not a charity; it is as much the soldier's right as any protection which the people give him.

Foreign Service

American troops are now in France in great numbers—greater numbers will follow day by day—and America's task abroad will become sterner.

The need for the Red Cross abroad is but greater for the distance. Red Cross preparation for the reception of our troops in France has been going on since the first month of the war. The Red Cross Commission in France has built a great, extensive organization in people and material, to assure that our men will have every care the Red Cross can give them. Through all the months since war began, Red Cross supplies have occupied a part of many ships; piling up in the great Red Cross warehouses in France against the arrival of our men. The great Red Cross motor fleet has been organized to transport Red Cross supplies.

All through these months, the organization has been studying and training, so that it would be able to cope effectively with the problems created by the arrival of our men. Red Cross in France is supporting our Army and is ready for any further task that may, within reason, fall to it.

On the way to his camp in France, the American soldier gets food and rest at the Red Cross canteens. On the way from the trenches to his camp, he meets the great Red Cross canteens on the lines of communication. Here the tired, nerve-worn soldier, covered with vermin, gets food, a bath, rest, and clean clothes. The great canteen at Chalons is typical. As he goes into the front line trenches, and as he comes out, he is met by the Red Cross rolling canteens operating right behind the front line, giving him hot or cold drinks.

If the soldier is wounded, a Red Cross bandage, made by Red Cross women at home, binds the wound. The Red Cross man follows him to the hospital, sees to his welfare, and supplements the prompt cable advice of the Government to his folks at home, by the full story of his condition and progress.

Abroad, it is a great comfort to him to know that Red Cross Home Service is seeing to it that his family is not in want.

Red Cross is anticipating the soldier's possible permanent disablement, by an institution already established where the best methods of rehabilitation work are being studied, the results of the experiments to be put at the disposal of the Government, which is making adequate plans for the care of mutilated men.

If the worst befalls him, the Red Cross representative talks with the men who fought beside him in the battle, and, supplementing the Government's cable advice, sends his people the story of his final heroic sacrifice.

Prisoners' Service

If the soldier is taken prisoner he still finds the Red Cross caring for him. The Red Cross, in co-operation with the Quartermaster General of the Army, furnishes all American prisoners in Germany with food, clothing and tobacco. These supplies are shipped to the Red Cross warehouses in Berne, Switzerland, and from there twenty pounds of food are sent to each prisoner every week. The prisoners receipt for the packages, so that delivery is almost certain. The notations on the receipts, "With all my heart I thank you," "There is an American touch to that parcel," are the best evidence of the importance of this work.

Then, too, the Red Cross is able to correspond with the prisoners' families, keeping them informed of their condition and whereabouts. Letters are sent back and forth, gifts of money and individual packages from friends and relatives are forwarded. The Red Cross alone has permission from both the United States Government and Germany to conduct this service.

"When one is in the zone of the armies or in the supply areas, words of appreciation or praise for the American Red Cross seem superfluous. The foresight that has characterized its present and prospective operations has been a source of pride to the commanding officer of the American forces and should be a source of comfort to the people of the United States, who, I know, enabled it to carry on its work and to expand."

PERSHING FILM GIVES VAST VIEW OF WAR

$25,000 FOR THE RED CROSS

"Pershing's Crusaders," the first of the United States Government war films to be released serially under the general title "Following the Flag to France," was exhibited at the Lyric Theatre last night before an audience which, in social and military distinction, surpassed any that ever assembled for moving pictures. Between the two parts of the film E. H. Sothern and James W. Gerard made addresses, the latter acting as auctioneer of the Metropolitan Opera House boxes for the Red Cross concert next Monday night. All of the boxes were sold for a total of more than $25,000, the first choice going to Clarence H. Mackay for $2,000.

But the film's the thing. "Pershing's Crusaders" is far and away the best compilation of war pictures exhibited here since the beginning of the European struggle. Through them one gets a birdseye view of the war, as it were, which includes not only scenes of fighting, but glimpses of all of the activity connected with the beginning and carrying on of the war by America. And, in the aggregate, the pictures, more perhaps than any other medium yet presented, give a profound impression of the magnitude of the nation's war making, the size of the job that the country has tackled, and how the great task is being accomplished in every department of endeavor.

The pictures begin with a representation in drawings and photographs of Germany's aggression and character, the mailed fist rising from the land of the Kaiser to grasp the heart of France appearing dramatically, and a view of the Deutschland in American waters serving to show the length of the German arm.

Farming and food are dealt with next to show one of the prime departments of American preparation, and scenes incident to the raising and training of the draft army follow. Secretary Baker is pictured drawing the first number of the draft; cantonments are seen rising almost over night, the men as civilians are presented leaving their homes for the camps, the same men as soldiers are observed at their training. The housing and clothing of the national army are graphically illustrated. There are interiors of Uncle Sam's tailor shops, where electrically driven knives cut sixty thicknesses of khaki at once; there are pictures of the manufacture of tens of thousands of pairs of shoes; hundreds of women whose sons are in the army are seen making the things that they and their brothers in arms will wear.

Ships come next. Great yards that reach for miles over land where no keels were a few months ago are seen; workmen are pictured putting wood and steel together; big steamers slide easily down the ways to make the bridge for which General Pershing called.

The manufacture of munitions is illustrated. There are views of men working on huge guns, and of other men preparing smaller ones for deadly use. Pictures taken at aviation camps show what the fliers are doing and how they do it, and there are glimpses of the navy in action—guns firing, smoke screens rising, ships manoeuvring.

And then comes America actually at war—scenes of the men on the other side. The American soldiers in camp, training behind the lines, constructing bridges and lines of communication, marching through a French village "somewhere in France" on their way to the front, and, finally, in the front-line trenches.

Many incidents of Secretary Baker's visit to France were shown, from his reception by General Pershing to his appearance on the friendly border of No Man's Land. There were pictures next of the first group of German prisoners captured by Americans, including twenty-one men and two officers. It was noticed here that the men were very haggard looking, apparently having endured the maximum of physical and moral deteriorating influences. The two officers refused to face the camera squarely, only occasionally looking around to scowl.

The spectators united in loud hissing when a pre-war picture of the Kaiser reviewing his troops was shown, and they came even closer together to cheer a few minutes later when they saw President Wilson at work at his desk.

The exhibition closed with a symbolical representation of ultimate victory by the United States and her allies.

In his address during the intermission, Mr. Gerard took up specially the Irish agitation and denounced as traitors to America those in this country who attacked England in emphasizing Irish allegiance. He invited Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington to go back to Ireland and the Lord Mayor of Dublin to stay there.

In the auction of the Metropolitan some of those who bid $1,000 each for preferred choice were George M. Cohan, Elbert H. Gary, Mr. Wilson, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, John McGee, Mrs. Merle Smith, and Harry Payne Whitney. After a number of the boxes had been sold for $1,000 each, the remainder were disposed of at $500.

A collection for the Red Cross was also taken up following an appeal by United States Marshal McCarthy.

The seats and boxes occupied last night had been sold for between $3,500 and $4,000. The box holders were Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Newbold LeRoy Edgar, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Clarence Mackay, Mrs. Felix T. Rosen, Mrs. George Pope, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. James Speyer, Mortimer L. Schiff, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. E. H. Gary, Mrs. E. N. Breitung, and others.

Messages from Secretary Baker and Joseph P. Tumulty, the latter accepting for President and Mrs. Wilson designation as honorary patronesses of the exhibition, were read.

"Pershing's Crusaders" will be shown twice daily, beginning this afternoon, under the direction of the Liberty Film Committee, of which Mrs. Edgar is Chairman. The French Army Band, brought to this country by the French High Commission and now assigned to the Y. M. C. A., will play at this evening's performance.

THREATEN TO SUE PERKINS.

Farmers Assert Potato Contracts Were Not Carried Out.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 21.—Because George W. Perkins failed to take over stocks of potatoes for which his representatives contracted from farmers of the Southern Tier, James T. Moody of Hornell, an attorney representing the farmers of Steuben County and other regions, is preparing an action to recover the amount of the contracts.

It was announced last Spring that Mr. Perkins, through his representatives, would make contracts with farmers to plant large acreages of potatoes, agreeing to take the entire crop at $1 a bushel if the market price was below or to pay pro rata if the price was above.

It is asserted that many farmers in the Southern Tier made contracts with Mr. Perkins's representatives and harvested large crops, which they have since been holding for his disposal.

Representatives of Mr. Perkins say that the agreement has been violated by the farmers, and this is the reason for the present difficulty.

Wilson Poses for Cuban Artist.

WANT BARLEY FOR BREAD.

Baptist Convention Urges Wilson to Seize Brewers' Supplies.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 21.—Resolutions demanding nation-wide prohibition, the commandeering of the barley crop, pledging its 1,500,000 members to the fullest support of the Government in the war and its members to a strict observance of the food law, were adopted by the Northern Baptists' Convention today. The war resolution read:

Freedom and truth are Baptist watchwords, and hence we will sustain the Government in the war for liberty and righteousness with all the resources of our men and money. We stand by America and her noble allies for the rescue of weaker nations from tyranny.

We heartily commend the varied work of our War Commission, deeply appreciate the co-operation of pastors and churches in the Northern Baptist Convention, and unite with all citizens in the heartiest approval of the services rendered by the different associations—Y. M. C. A., Y. M. C. U., Hebrew bodies, Knights of Columbus, and Boy and Girl Scouts—in their determination to win the war. We would especially commend the Scout movement for its worth to churches in character building.

The resolution demanding prohibition instructed the churches to get men into politics and to push the Federal amendment "over the top" by the election of members to the Legislatures who would support it.

The assembly asked President Wilson to commandeer the barley crop in the following resolution:

In view of the conservation of food practiced by the people, in view of the statement of the Food Administration that the supply of barley is exhausted, and in view of the uncontradicted fact that brewers have a six months' supply of barley on hand, we petition the President to commandeer the barley now in the brewers' control in order that it may be made into bread instead of beer. We approve the Barley bill, and urge upon Congress its immediate adoption.

President Signs Sedition Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—President Wilson today signed the Sedition bill, giving the Government wide powers to punish disloyal acts and utterances.

INVESTIGATE BOYS' SOCIETY

District Attorney Swann announced yesterday that he had begun an investigation into subscriptions solicited by the "Seventh Regiment of United States Boy Scouts." He said he expected to receive visits today from "Colonel" Ralph H. Korn, commander of the regiment, and "Major" Bernard H. Fry. The organization has headquarters in the Candler Building, 220 West Forty-second Street.

The District Attorney said he had received a letter from the firm of Hasbicht, Braun & Co., importers, of 161 Hudson Street, saying that they had contributed $25 to the organization and asking if it was a legitimate enterprise. Thereupon, said Mr. Swann, he telephoned the office in the Candler Building and was told by Fry that the organization had collected $1,200, which they had expended on bugles and fifes.

"My understanding is," said Mr. Swann, "that they telephone to German firms and ask them to prove their patriotism by subscribing to the organization."

"Everything that this organization has done has been legitimate," asserted Korn last night. "We do not have a single paid employe or officer. It is true, as Mr. Swann says, that we paid John D. Glock $500. The transaction was legitimate, and Mr. Swann will have a complete statement of fact from me when I see him. Not only did we purchase fifes and bugles," Mr. Swann said, but I told him that we bought 100 rifles. This is all the result of a Boy Scout feud, and I am sure that I can explain everything to Mr. Swann's or any one else's satisfaction. I can show a receipted bill for every item of expense of the organization. We teach poor boys military training and we supply them equipment that they cannot afford to buy."

Generals on Priorities Board.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Major Gen. Goethals and Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson were designated today by Secretary Baker as the War Department's representatives on the Priorities Board. General Goethals succeeds Lieut. Col. F. S. Young and General Johnson takes the place of Brig. Gen. Pierce. Mr. Baker said the new work would not interfere with the other duties of Generals Goethals and Johnson.

WASHINGTON PLAYERS FAIL.

Their Assignment an Amicable Arrangement with Creditors.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors was made yesterday by the Washington Square Players, following repeated reports that the financial difficulties in which the organization has found itself as a result of a rigorous season, might compel at least a temporary abandonment of their enterprise. The loss of many of their actors by draft, coupled with the other hardships brought upon the theatre by war conditions this season, made the Players' second year at the Comedy a losing venture. Announcement was made last week that the directors of the enterprise, Edward Goodman, had been called to the colors, and the chances of another season were then said to depend upon the ability of the organization to obtain a satisfactory leader.

Yesterday's assignment was made to Hugo Gerber of 1,476 Broadway and Bernard Bernbaum of 320 Broadway. The Players were incorporated in 1915 with a capital stock of $1,000, and Mr. Goodman has been their President since that time. Mr. Goodman declared yesterday that the assignment was an entirely amicable arrangement, having been entered into in the interests of both the Players and their creditors. If reorganization could be satisfactorily effected, he said, the Players would resume producing next season under new leaders.

The possibility of a continuance of the Players' activities is said to rest largely upon the success or failure of a Western trip which the organization is about to undertake. A season of four or five weeks will be played this Summer at the Columbia Theatre, in San Francisco, and should this prove successful it is probable that a brief tour of the Western cities will be undertaken.

The Washington Square Players, whose inception marked the beginning of the little theatre movement in New York, have been in existence a little more than three years. During the first year and a half of their life they produced plays at Bandbox Theatre, in East Fifty-seventh Street, and have been for two seasons at the Comedy.

WILL RESENTENCE MOONEY.

Judge Griffin Denies All Motions for Arrest of Judgment.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—Thomas J. Mooney on May 28 will be resentenced to hang by Judge Franklin A. Griffin as a result of his conviction on a first degree murder charge growing out of the preparedness parade bomb explosion which killed ten persons and injured forty here in 1916.

Motions asking the removal of the death sentence, the setting aside of all previous court proceedings in the case, and the granting of a new trial on the ground of wilful fraud, malfeasance, and nonfeasance in the office of the District Attorney were denied by Judge Griffin. It has been stated by counsel for the defense that an appeal would be carried to the United States Supreme Court.

DR. LYON'S is a safe dentifrice—it cleans the teeth thoroughly, without drugs—thus protecting the user from any possible misapplication of drugs.

Cleanliness is the first rule of refinement and safety is the second; Dr. Lyon was the first to apply both to a dentifrice.

Careful, thinking people today do not trust the propaganda of the drugged dentifrice. If they have any tooth trouble they go to one who knows what the treatment should be—the dentist; which is proper. Dr. Lyon's does all that a dentifrice can do safely—keeps the teeth clean and white.

GRAND JURY TAKES UP O'LEARY'S CASE

RELATIVES AID IN SEARCH

They Are Hunting for Him in Adirondacks, While Canadian Authorities Are Watching Border.

The Federal Grand Jury for the Southern District of New York began an investigation yesterday of the disappearance of Jeremiah A. O'Leary, the Sinn Fein agitator and pro-German propagandist, who was to have gone on trial in the Federal Court last Monday on an indictment charging him with having entered into a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the United States. The Federal officers in charge of the O'Leary case said they would make every possible effort to ascertain the circumstances of O'Leary's going away. The Grand Jury investigation will be continued today.

Among the witnesses called before the Grand Jury yesterday were Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, John Jerome Rooney, a member of the committee appointed to go to Washington this week and seek to obtain President Wilson's intervention in the Irish situation; Grover Whalen, secretary to Mayor Hylan, who is a brother-in-law of O'Leary; the mother and father of the fugitive, Alexis O'Leary, a brother, and John Devoy, editor of the Sinn Fein weekly known as the Gaelic American. It was reported that no witness examined yesterday was able to throw any light on the matter. None of them, it was said, has heard a word, directly or indirectly, from the fugitive since May 8, the day of his disappearance. Justice Cohalan and the other witnesses all refused to talk after they emerged from the jury room.

A high Federal official said yesterday that it has been definitely established that O'Leary had not been misinformed as to the date of his trial. On May 7, the day before he left New York, O'Leary is known to have left with a relative a list of questions which he desired to be asked when he came to trial. This was the day after Judge Foster set the case for trial on May 20.

The report is general that the Government is now making a thorough investigation of the whole Sinn Fein situation in New York. This city is the headquarters of the organization in this country, and among the most active members of the organization are several persons who are British subjects and who on various occasions recently have not only agitated for open rebellion against England, but have also advised drastic action in this country unless the Government can be made to interfere in the internal affairs of Great Britain on the side of the Sinn Fein agitators in Ireland.

The trial of O'Leary will begin at 10 o'clock tomorow morning, provided O'Leary can be located by that time. Assistant U. S. Attorney Earl B. Barnes, who is in charge of the case for the Government, was asked if he thought there was any chance of O'Leary being found in time to be placed on trial tomorrow morning. He replied that he had hopes that the fugitive would be on hand when the case is called.

Several relatives of O'Leary, among them his brother John, it was said yesterday, have gone to Northern New York in an effort to locate Jeremiah. They are searching in the Adirondacks for him. The entire Secret Service machinery of the Government is also looking for him in every part of the United States, while the Canadian authorities have been asked to look for him on the other side of the border.

SPROUL WINS NOMINATION.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—State Senator William C. Sproul of Chester was today nominated for Governor on the Republican ticket in the Statewide primary election. His nearest opponent was J. Denny O'Neil of Pittsburgh, State Highway Commissioner. Returns indicate that Sproul will have a large plurality. Both candidates made pre-election pledges to support the national prohibition amendment and woman suffrage.

Mr. Sproul has been a leader in the State Senate for twenty years. In addition, he is identified with many large business enterprises in this and other States, notably the Sun Shipbuilding Company at Chester.

Eugene C. Bonniwell, Judge of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia, running on a "wet" platform, defeated Joseph F. Guffey of Pittsburgh for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Guffey was pledged to prohibition.

The Fires of Enthusiasm

An Editorial by A. W.

The fires of our enthusiasm on the subject of the Great War have not yet burst into flame. Wait until American airmen outdo the records of the great French flyers, or until an American battleship makes a spectacular bagging of submarines, or until an American regiment smashes through the stolid Hun defense, at a given point, and delivers the death thrust whose bloody trail leads to Berlin!

Then will the fires of our enthusiasm leap skyward illumining the firmament. But that isn't when enthusiasm is needed. It's needed now—now when men are going through the drudgery of war without reaping any of its spectacular rewards. Now when women are putting in days that are heartsick and anguished. Now, when children who were born to love and laughter are living in sickness and starvation.

A cross has meant divinity to us for centuries. Our denomination in the world of religion has determined the shape of the cross before which we worshipped—but, in the big, abstract sense, the cross has meant God.

There is a cross today before which we all must bow the knee. A cross whose niche is not found in any particular church—but in all churches. A cross which means God more surely than any other cross we have ever known. It is THE RED CROSS—a consecrated emblem which stands for the religion of Humanity.

You are asked to light the fires of your enthusiasm for THE RED CROSS. Let them kindle first in your heart. Sit down, alone, and think a picture. A picture of an American boy, hit by a jagged piece of shrapnel, lying on a blood-soaked spot in No Man's Land, writhing in an agony which defeats human endurance. All about him is desolation. The air is rent by the groans and shrieks of his wounded comrades.

The stench of No Man's Land fills his nostrils. The delirium of mortal agony is upon him, when suddenly two pairs of compassionate hands lift him from the ground and place him gently on a stretcher.

From that time on everything that happens to him is designed to relieve his misery, alleviate his pain and bring his body back to soundness. From that time on he is in the hands of the Red Cross. It is his emblem of happiness—the thing to which he will owe his future existence. That boy may be your boy, or the boy of the man across the road—but he is a boy fighting for you, remember that.

Surely you will not be able to sleep at night if you go to your bed without having given toward the fund which sends angels of mercy to those suffering boys. Surely you realize that just giving of your surplus is not sufficient.

Give ALL your surplus and then, when that is given, slash luxuries from your daily living and give what they would cost. And then, if you are really a human creature, instead of a human machine, think up a few things which have been necessaries. Cut them out and give their value. Then and then only will you really have GIVEN. Then and then only will you have earned the right to sleep at night.

Light the fires of your enthusiasm for the glorious RED CROSS! Have the flames cremate all there is in you of thoughtlessness, indifference and parsimony. Let there rise from the blaze a purified spirit and the sublime desire to give, give, GIVE, your money, the service of your hands, even your heart's blood, to help ease the agony over there.

Earn the right to sleep at night!

What Is Rotary

A Rotary Club is an organization of business men bound together by understanding to better the life and conditions in the community. Primarily the idea was to stimulate interchange of business among members, but this proved provincial and has long been discontinued. Today Rotary stands for the highest ideals in business and social life, with benefits to all, and favoritism to none.

There are 388 clubs in as many cities of the United States, Canada, Great Britain, and Cuba. The movement started in 1905, and today there are 86,300 Rotarians, each pledged to fulfill an unselfish duty.

The Rotary Club of New York has 512 members, each representing a different line of business or profession. By virtue of its membership principles, Rotary cannot be dominated in a single selfish direction, but must serve the greatest number fearlessly and justly. These leaders of industry offer this page to the public as an expression of sincerity in business and community betterment.

Rotarians are in business to serve. If you go to one of the advertisers on this page, or purchase his merchandise, you are assured of full value, courtesy and no misrepresentation.

Outdistances New York.

At the weekly lunch meeting of the Club at the Hotel McAlpin, visiting Rotarian Coupland of Toronto gave the figures of war charity and government loan subscriptions of his city. Figuring population on a percentage basis, Toronto outdistanced New York from every point of view.

Sergeant Davis, a wounded Pershing man, limped in and was given the ovation of the day. Francis M. Hugo, Secretary, State of New York, was the speaking guest.

Great Work for Rotary.

At a meeting the Club unanimously approved of plans to start a gigantic movement in which Rotary will act as a co-ordinating influence between all organizations in the city, and urge them to get behind war movements and carry them through collectively instead of independently. A Rotary committee, consisting of important business men in and out of Rotary, is being formed to direct the work. It is planned to invite all organizations from a small Sunday School to a Chamber of Commerce to do their share.

LA FOLLETTE LAWYER DEFENDS SENATOR

No Disloyalty in St. Paul Speech and Statements Made Are All True, Says Roe.

SAYS HE CAN PROVE THEM

Tells Senate Committee Lusitania Did Carry Munitions and Bryan Advised Warning Passengers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—In a two-hour argument Gilbert E. Roe, a former law partner of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, urged the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections today to dismiss the charges of disloyalty against Senator La Follette founded upon his speech before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul last September. As Senator La Follette's lawyer he offered a brief of some 20,000 words, in which he contended that the Wisconsin Senator had violated no law, either of ethics or of statute, in his St. Paul utterances.

"There never was a more baseless attack made upon the character and reputation of a public man than that made upon Senator La Follette in these charges," exclaimed Mr. Roe. "Under any construction possible to put upon it, his remarks do not even approach an improper discussion of the war."

Mr. Roe contended that the Senator's comment as to the Lusitania being a legitimate prey of war in carrying munitions was logically sound. He challenged W. J. Bryan, ex-Secretary of State, to deny that he had advised President Wilson that Americans ought to avoid the Lusitania. Mr. Bryan has denied it.

In his argument, Mr. Roe, insisting upon the right of free speech, quoted Charles Sumner, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, and various other Americans in the earlier, as well as later, days of the republic, as having indulged in unrestrained criticism of Administration policies. He denounced newspapers as having printed false reports of La Follette's St. Paul speech. The Associated Press, he said, had put out a report saying that La Follette had declared that the United States had "suffered no grievances at the hands of Germany," while, in fact, the Senator had said that America "had suffered grievances."

Blames War Profiteers.

"In many other respects, also, the speech was glaringly misrepresented," said Mr. Roe. "The attack which Senator La Follette frankly made in the speech upon those who were profiteering largely from the war and escaping just taxation at the same time aroused great bitterness, and, I have no doubt, led to the filing of the charges against him."

The lawyer remarked that the sentiments expressed in the Senator's speech were "no doubt displeasing to many persons and many interests, but the charge that it contains anything disloyal, or seditious, or anything that a Senator of the United States, or, for that matter, any citizen, might not properly say, is grotesquely absurd."

Mr. Roe declared that the Wisconsin Senator was ready to prove all the allegations he made in his speech. Taking up La Follette's reference to the Lusitania, he said:

"Carrying ammunition was as much a part of the business of the Lusitania at that time and of the other great English vessels as was the carrying of passengers. The people of this country, the Congress, and the Administration in power not only knew the practice, but were divided upon the policy of permitting it. Secretary Bryan, as is well known, resigned from the Cabinet and gave publicly as one of the reasons for resigning the fact that the President would not warn passengers not to travel upon munition-laden ships.

"One has but to recall the history of the sinking of the Lusitania and interviews given by the United States Senators and others at the time, published generally in the press, and the controversy which raged throughout the country over the wisdom or unwisdom of the President's policy in refusing to warn passengers not to travel on munition-carrying ships, to be aware that the substance of everything that Senator La Follette said on the subject was at that time common knowledge. If anyone disputes the accuracy of the specific statements made by Senator La Follette in this matter, and the committee thinks it important to take up the investigation, Senator La Follette will be pleased to submit the detailed proof of the facts, which proof will, I feel sure, satisfy the committee that every statement made by him was correct."

Senator La Follette in his St. Paul speech had no idea to embarrass the Administration, Mr. Roe said.

"Had he desired to embarrass the Administration or to raise a doubt concerning the wisdom of declaring war, he would have referred to the part played by Great Britain, as well as Germany, in drawing us into the war," he argued. "The protests of our Secretary of State against the unlawful acts of Great Britain are a matter of record as much as are the protests against the unlawful acts of Germany."

In concluding his argument, Mr. Roe adverted to what he called the "long record of devoted service to the public interest" of Senator La Follette. He mentioned the Wisconsin Senator as having worked "in public as well as private life in behalf of democratic Government and just laws."

Press Reports of the Speech.

"It is true that all the newspapers of the country served by The Associated Press the day after the speech, entirely misquoted Senator La Follette, as proved by the record, and made him say the very opposite of what he really said concerning our grievances against Germany which led to the war," said Mr. Roe.

"It is true that this falsehood has been repeated and multiplied during all the months that have since elapsed and has been cunningly used to procure votes of condemnation from various individuals and bodies throughout the country. Through all this Senator La Follette has remained silent. He has felt that this proceeding was at least quasi judicial in character and that a decision should be arrived at uninfluenced by anything except the facts and the law, as presented to this committee.

"Even if Senator La Follette had said the things he is charged with saying, he would have been entirely within his rights, but when what he actually said is considered, it is seen how wholly unsupported is the charge of 'disloyalty.' It is only by distorting the impromptu reports of Senator La Follette to the interruptions from the audience into a complete discussion of the intricate causes of the war that anything can be found in the speech to which the most zealous partisans of the Administration can object. But, under any construction possible to put upon it, it does not even approach an improper discussion of the war."

Senator La Follette did not attend the hearing, owing to the illness of his son. The committee will hear Mr. Roe further tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, May 21, (Associated Press.)—The record of the Senate Committee shows that the La Follette case has been under consideration eight months and that The Associated Press account of the St. Paul speech, so far as the record shows, has never been challenged before.

New Steamship Loads for Chile.

A new passenger and freight steamship arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port from Cramp's Shipyard, Philadelphia, to load for South American ports. She is 4,202 gross tonnage, 370 feet long, 51 feet beam, and has accommodation for 100 passengers. On her maiden voyage the vessel will carry a general cargo to Valparaiso, Chile, and then load with nitrate at Antofogasta for an American port.

Montreal Solely a Freight Port.

MONTREAL, May 21.—The port of Montreal this season is to be devoted solely to freight traffic. All ocean passenger liners formerly using the St. Lawrence will be diverted to other ports.

No time for the timid or the sluggard

THESE are days when the readjustment of business offers remarkable rewards to the resourceful. Many concerns, many individuals, faced with overwhelming difficulties, have turned those very obstacles to profitable advantage.

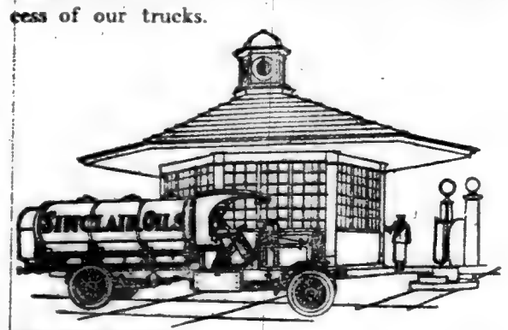
One New York town, on a branch line, was threatened by extinction by freight congestion. It could not get supplies and deliver products. An enterprising man organized a truck fleet, carried supplies from a nearby railroad, delivered factory outputs via the Erie Canal, and turned disaster into prosperity.

There is opportunity everywhere for the alert man who is far-seeing enough to recognize it and has the nerve to grasp it. This is no time for the timid or the sluggard. If you see an opportunity, ask us to help you grasp it. The success of the Pierce-Arrow is knowing how.

PIERCE-ARROW

Motor Trucks

No other company is equipped with service facilities like the Pierce-Arrow to insure the success of our trucks.



FOR INSTANCE:

Sinclair Refining Company bought 100 trucks, choosing the Pierce-Arrow. Sinclair depends on its trucks to maintain its service to its customers. So Sinclair had to have a truck that would not fail them in any circumstances.

Through subsidiary companies, they had had experience with cheap equipment. They found it depreciated too fast, was too often and too long out of commission.

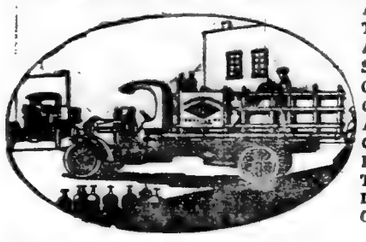
They examined Pierce-Arrow records in actual service and chose on performance solely.

Then they required service facilities in principal cities of New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado. Pierce-Arrow afforded it.

Pierce-Arrow had had experience in the oil business and could supply complete equipment, including tank trucks, suitable for every purpose.

So they bought Pierce-Arrows which are serving them satisfactorily in all of those states.

Similar considerations influenced many nationally known companies to equip with Pierce-Arrows. Among those operating fleets in various cities are:



Armour & Company
The Texas Company
Arbuckle Bros. Co.
Standard Oil Company
Carnegie Steel Co.
Cudahy Packing Co.
American Express Co.
General Chemical Co.
Linde Air Products Co.
The Barrett Company
Liggett & Myers
Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

These concerns know what they are about. So do the local users who are operating Pierce-Arrow trucks. Ask us to tell you about them.

Who Discovered RICORO?

"An angel of a Red Cross nurse discovered Ricoro" said a boy of the 69th, invalided home.

"I was to have my first smoke and she brought me a smooth, beautifully made Panetela.

"Its mild fragrance went right to the spot. I never dreamed a smoke could be so good.

"'Did 'John D.' donate these?' I inquired. The nurse laughed. 'That's just part of our regular 'welcome home'—they're Ricoros at 7c apiece.'

"'No wonder everybody's glad to boost the Red Cross,' I said. 'You not only make a fellow comfortable but discover the one cigar to make him perfectly happy, too.'"

Always On Time!

Men of action refuse to be dependent upon slow moving, congested trolley cars. They realize that their time is worth money. And, quite naturally, they find the solution of this time problem in a dependable motor car—the most efficient form of transportation that has ever been developed.

A little reflection should convince you that any man can do a better day's work with a Paige. In the entire field of automobiles there is no car with a more firmly established reputation for dependability. JESS BARNES SETS STAGE FOR A VICTORY BY THE GIANTS WITH AIRTIGHT PITCHING

GIANTS SHOW SIGNS OF WINNING STRIDE

CARDINALS LOSE, 2 TO 0

Barnes in Fine Form and Especially Effective with Men on Bases—Niehoff Out of Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—The Giants took a decided brace behind the airtight pitching of Jess Barnes today and won from the Cardinals, 2 to 0. Barnes was in fine form. He allowed seven hits, and the Cardinals had men on the bases in five of the nine innings. But the slim pitcher was most effective at these times.

Once, in the sixth inning, Hendricks's men had a chance to score, but were thwarted by a fine throw to the plate by Benny Kauff. The Giants won by bunching four of the eight hits they made off the veteran Red Ames in the fifth inning.

Holke opened the fifth with a single to left, the pit being in reality a bunt that went over Baird's head, as the Cardinal's third-sacker dashed in, anticipating a bunt. McCarty flied to Cruise, and Rodriguez banged the ball to left centre.

Ordinarily the hit would have been good for only one base, but Cruise and Smith each waited for the other to field the drive, with the result that the ball rolled to the fence, Holke scoring and Rodriguez reaching third before it was retrieved. Barnes poked a single to left, and Rodriguez jogged over the plate.

The Cards had Barnes in a number of tight situations, but Jess managed to pull through by putting on a little extra steam every time he was threatened. In the second inning Cruise and Paulette singled with none out, but Barnes tossed out Wallace, Cruise being held at third. Snyder hit to Holke, and Cruise was thrown out at the plate, while Gonzales was an easy victim on a grounder to Fletcher.

The best opportunity they had to score was in the sixth. Smith and Baird beat out infield hits. Cruise essayed a sacrifice, but McCarty fielded his bunt and pegged it to Zimmerman in time to force Smith at third. Paulette flied to Burns and Wallace singled to centre, and Baird attempted to score on the hit, but was cut down a yard from the plate on Kauff's splendid throw to McCarty.

Bert Niehoff, who sustained a painful bruise on the index finger of his right hand in yesterday's game, was forced to lay off today, and Rodriguez again filled in at second base for the Giants.

REDS HAVE A BUSY INNING.

Bunch All Their Runs in Second and Down Boston, 7 to 4.

CINCINNATI, May 21.—Every man on the Cincinnati team got a hit off Nehf today, and six of them were bunched in the second inning, when the locals put over seven runs, assisted by a costly error by Rawlings. The score was 7 to 4.

Bressler was hit freely, but kept Boston's drives fairly well scattered. Sherwood Magee, after being called out at the plate by Umpire Moran in the fifth inning, engaged in an argument with that official, and was ejected from the field.

TO AID BAT AND BALL FUND.

Yankees Will Donate One-Quarter of Today's Gate Receipts.

The Yankees and White Sox had an off day yesterday on account of the wet weather. The clubs will observe Clark Griffith Bat and Ball Day at the Polo Grounds this afternoon when 25 per cent. of the gate receipts will be given toward a fund for buying baseball equipment for the soldiers in France.

President Jacob Ruppert of the New York Club has invited large detachments of soldiers from the neighboring camps, and it is expected that there will be 5,000 soldiers at the game today. Before the game the officers of the various commands will be presented with baseball paraphernalia for their men. The soldiers will come from Governors Island, Camp Merritt, Fort Hamilton, Fort Slocum, Camp Mills, and Camp Upton.

The fund, which was started by Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington Club, has been a great success, and by his efforts the troops have been able to enjoy the American game in France. Both the American and National Leagues have set aside days when 25 per cent. of the receipts will be given to the fund. The Eastern section of the American League will celebrate the occasion today.

INDIANS HALT RED SOX.

Break Tie in Eighth and Win by a Score of 6 to 5.

BOSTON, May 21.—Boston's winning streak was stopped today, when Cleveland defeated the Red Sox, 6 to 5. The winning run was scored in the eighth on Miller's triple to left and Chapman's sacrifice fly to Strunk in deep centre.

Enzmann held Boston to one hit until the fifth, when four hits and two bases on balls yielded five runs.

Coumbe pitched the last four innings and shut out Boston. Leonard was hard hit and in difficulties throughout the contest.

CIPHERS ALL CUBS GET FROM COOMBS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Jack Coombs gave another one of his remarkable demonstrations of a "come-back" athlete today at the Cubs Park when he hooked up in a gallant pitching duel with Jim Vaughn and won his fight.

Brooklyn took the game, 1 to 0, and a lot of the credit must go to the veteran Mr. Coombs, whose right arm seems as strong as ever and whose wits and skill were even keener than in the good days of his former career.

He had little trouble with the Mitchell athletes today and was in the toughest kind of a fight, a fight to make one run win a game. It was a battle that called for cunning as much as arm power, and Jack had both. He wasn't in many tight places, but when he was in danger he was master.

Vaughn was the equal of the Brooklyn star as far as actual pitching counted. But he allowed the Robins to scrape one run over the plate in the sixth inning and that one beat him.

There were six hits on each side, the Cubs making two doubles, while Brooklyn made one. Coombs, however, permitted two batsmen to walk, while Vaughn was perfect in control. Coombs fanned only three men and Vaughn fanned five, but Coombs allowed no one to score and one counted against Vaughn.

MORE BOXERS TO APPEAR.

Eleven Contests for Red Cross Carnival on Friday Already Arranged.

Raymond Hitchcock, Will Rogers, and about twelve actresses, with Charles J. Harvey and Joe Humphries, directors of the boxing bouts which will be held Friday night in Madison Square Garden as part of the Red Cross drive, will invade Wall Street during the luncheon hour today for the purpose of selling tickets for the coming show. Messrs. Hitchcock, Harvey, and Humphries will dispose of the tickets from noon until 2 o'clock.

According to present plans the doors of Madison Square Garden will be thrown open Friday night at 6 o'clock. This early opening has been decided upon in anticipation of a record crowd. The prices of the tickets run from $2 to $10, and it is expected that at least $50,000 will be taken in for the Red Cross. Starting at 7 o'clock, there will be a concert by the band of the land battleship U. S. S. Recruit, consisting of sixty pieces, and in addition there will be singing by well-known actors and actresses.

Eleven contests have been arranged to date, as follows:

FORDHAM ENTERS MEET.

Murray, Fitzpatrick, and Takasch Will Compete in Intercollegiates.

The Fordham University track management has decided to enter a limited team in the intercollegiate championships at Philadelphia. Bernie Wefers, coach of the Fordham squad, has selected the athletes who will carry the Maroon silks at Franklin Field on Friday and Saturday. Jack Murray, the track Captain, will enter the hurdles, and Sylvester Fitzpatrick and Joe Takasch will toe the mark in the 220-yard dash.

Unless a dual meet is arranged with some local college, the Bronx collegians will wind up their collegiate competition on Saturday. The metropolitan collegiates have fallen through, and the dual meet with City College did not take place, so Bernie Wefers has been unable to test his material against any one college.

PLAY CHESS FOR RED CROSS

Combining chess and checkers and a blindfold game of chess against consulting opponents in an exhibition arranged for the benefit of the Red Cross and for the purpose of starting a local organization devoted to these games, at The Inn, Forest Hills, L. I., yesterday, Frank J. Marshall, United States chess champion, made a clean sweep on twenty-one board, defeating nineteen at chess and two at checkers.

In addition, he also won a hard-fought blindfold game in which he, without sight of boards or pieces, was pitted against two players in consultation. This evening, at Marshall's Chess Divan, 118 West Forty-ninth Street, the American champion will meet all comers in a simultaneous performance.

The Manhattan Chess Club has arranged for a simultaneous exhibition to be given by D. Janowski of Paris against a team of its members and representatives of the other clubs and the colleges, on Wednesday evening of next week at the Hotel Sherman Square.

DRAFT BOARD OVERRULED.

Joe Jackson of White Sox Claimed by Emergency Fleet Corporation.

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 21.—Joe Jackson, former star outfielder of the Chicago Americans, has been certified to the local draft exemption board, which had ordered him to report for military duty, as being in the employ of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

This certificate stays the order of the local board calling Jackson and places him in the classification of necessary employes. As he is employed in shipbuilding on the Delaware he probably will not be subject to the draft.

BAN ON WOMEN SWIMMERS.

Tour of Australian Stars Is Apparently Abandoned.

That Miss Fanny Durack, Australia's champion amateur woman swimmer and holder of Olympic championship laurels, has probably not letf Australia for this country, was the opinion expressed yesterday by a prominent local official of the A. A. U. This deduction was arrived at from the cablegrams which have passed between the Amateur Athletic Union of this country and the New South Wales Ladies' Amateur Swimming Association, with which organization Miss Durack is registered.

Mrs. Hugh D. McIntosh, President of the Australian association, in her cables requesting an official A. A. U. ban on the proposed swimming tour of Miss Durack and Miss Minna Wylie, has failed to mention whether the swimmers have left Australia for this country. It had been supposed that the women champions were on their way to San Francisco, but yesterday it was learned that the women did not leave Australia on their scheduled sailing date because of the adverse official attention the proposed tour had attracted through alleged defiance of the rules of the N. S. W. L. A. S. A. by Miss Durack and Miss Wylie.

Miss Wylie, the reports had it, was to have accompanied Miss Durack on the voyage for the ostensible purpose of competing with the Australain woman champion. Miss Wylie is a prominent swimmer and holds several records.

If the deduction that the women are not on their way to this country proves to be a fact it will forestall a particularly confusing and embarrassing situation for the A. A. U. officials. Following the receipt of assurances from Secretary-Treasurer Frederick W. Rubien of the A. A. U. that the swimmers would be prohibited from competing as amateurs in this country unless their amateur standing in Australia was beyond reproach, a cablegram of thanks was received yesterday from Mrs. McIntosh in which she stated that the Australian association considered it impossible, in the best interests of amateurism, to sanction the appearance of the swimmers, and added that full details were being forwarded by mail. Until this letter arrives no positive reason for the unexpected cancellation of the proposed tour can be had.

SPEEDY MOTOR COP BEATS TURF STARS

Sun Briar Unplaced and Jack Hare, Jr., Third in Stuyvesant Handicap at Jamaica.

Sun Briar, the champion two-year-old of last season, slipped a little further back in the struggle for three-year-old honors when he ran unplaced yesterday in the Stuyvesant Handicap at Jamaica, which was won in impressive manner by A. K. Macomber's Motor Cop.

The defeat by Motor Cop counted for little, as this son of Uncle was in receipt of fifteen pounds from Sun Briar, but the race itself was looked upon with interest because it provided the first meeting this season between the champion of a year ago, and Colonel W. E. Applegate's Jack Hare, Jr., which became a formidable contender for the laurels of the division when he won the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico recently.

The Stuyvesant was by far the most important contest run on a local track this season, and even the cloudy sky did not prevent a larger crowd than usual trooping to the Jamaica course. There had been a heavy shower in the morning, which rendered the track good instead of fast and thus added to the value of the performance of the three-year-olds from a time standpoint. The rain held off until the last race, which was run in a downpour.

Though Henry McDaniel, trainer of Sun Briar, was confident that his charge would redeem himself for the poor race he ran in Kentucky, the public stood firmly by Jack Hare, Jr., and he was always favorite at 8 to 5, while 5 to 2 could be obtained against Sun Briar. The Macomber entry, which included Paddy as well as Motor Cop, was conceded to have a chance to beat the top weights and the stable was held at 5 to 1, while from 12 to 25 to 1 was quoted against the rest of the field of twelve.

At the start of the dash of six furlongs Sun Briar had the rail with his great rival Jack Hare, Jr., next. They were advantageously placed, provided they got a good break and in this Jack Hare, Jr., was favored, for he was on his toes and away with the leaders, while Sun Briar was pinched off. Half a dozen others got just as good a send-off as Jack Hare, Jr., and Peak had to keep the Western crack hustling in the first eighth to avoid being shut in. As it was James Butler's Empress, the lightest weighted filly in the race, outran Jack Hare, Jr., and held the lead for the first quarter of a mile, when Motor Cop came with a world of speed and took command.

Flags, which had suffered interference at the start, recovered quickly, and before the end of the back stretch both he and Matinee Idol had crowded by Jack Hare, Jr., and made the latter's pathway more difficult. Sun Briar was back in fifth place and never was able to seriously threaten the leaders, but Jack Hare, Jr., was fighting hard all around the turn to cut down the lead of three lengths held by Motor Cop, with Flags also to be disposed of. Going through the stretch Jack Hare managed to creep up a little, but his 129 pounds prevented any startling dash, and Loftus had perfect control of the situation so that he crossed the line with Motor Cop a handy winner by a length and a half. Flags just managed to stave off the rush of Jack Hare, Jr., and took the place by a head. There was a gap of five lengths before the others began to trail in with Sun Briar pulling up in sixth place.

There's your neighbor "X. Travagance." You always supposed that he paid magnificent sums to some high priced tailor. Yet, if you only knew it, he's been trading here for goodness knows how long.

Why not?

GOLFERS DEFY HARD RAIN.

Wood and Barber Lead Whitehall Club at Cherry Valley.

Golfers of the Whitehall Club defied the elements yesterday to play over the links of the Cherry Valley Golf Club, at Garden City, L. I., in the first of a series of four one-day tournaments which will be held by the club this season.

Oakley Wood, teamed with E. J. Barber, won the prize in the best-ball play, the combination return a card of 82, 12¾—69¼. A tie resulted for second prize in this event between C. F. Taylor and D. G. Scott, with 91, 15—76, and C. H. Phelps and L. M. Cowdry, with 94, 18—76.

In the handicap play the Class A prize went to D. G. Scott, whose card for the course showed 92, 16—76. Two strokes behind him in net came E. J. Barber, with 92, 14—78. Class B laurels were accounted for by Oakley Wood, with a card of 89, 20—69, while C. H. Phelps was second, with 98, 24—74.

Twenty-five golfers played over the course, among them Oswald Kirkby, who played at plus 4 strokes. He had an actual net score of 77.

Long-Driving Golfers Matched.

Four of the longest drivers in the golf game are scheduled to play in a four-ball best ball match at the Apawamis Club tomorrow. They are Jim Barnes of Broadmoor, Walter Hagen of Rochester, Tom Kerrigan, first-class seaman at the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, and Gil Nicholls, formerly of Great Neck. According to the plans Barnes and Hagen will be paired against Kerrigan and Nicholls.

Golf Stars in Red Cross Match.

An exhibition golf match for the benefit of the Red Cross will be played over the course of the Greenwich Country Club on Sunday. Jim Barnes, Walter Hughes, Max Marston, and Jerome Travers will be the contestants.

STARS IN GOLF FOURSOME.

Miss Rosenthal and Evans May Play Mrs. Gavin and Travers.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Miss Elaine Rosenthal, formerly woman Western champion, and Chick Evans, national amateur and open golf champion, today communicated with Jerome Travers, former national champion, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin, an English player, with a view to arranging a series of Red Cross golf contests in both Eastern and mid-West cities. It is expected the matches will be arranged for mid-Summer.

Mrs. Gavin, who came to America three years ago, sprang into prominence at once by finishing runner up in the women's national championship when it was played over the Onwentsia course to Mrs. Clarence Vanderbeck of Philadelphia.

All four golfers are now engaged in a series of Red Cross exhibitions, and the proposed series would differ from these only in that there would be a series of contests between the same pairs.

SPURN APPROBATION OF BERLIN CLERGY

CRIES 'SEDITION!' 'INSULT!'

Unstinted Support Pledged to Our Government in the Prosecution of the War.

BOSTON, May 21.—Cries of "German propaganda," "sedition," and "insult to the flag" marked the annual meeting of the American Unitarian Association today when a resolution was offered calling for recognition of the "spirit of Christian brotherhood" in a declaration adopted by clergymen in Berlin. Following denouncements of the resolution and its sponsor by several speakers, the meeting by an overwhelming vote rejected the proposal and denied it mention in the records.

The resolution, which was introduced by the Rev. Henry W. Pinkham of Melrose, follows:

"That in the declaration of certain Christian ministers and others that has been reported to us from Germany we joyfully recognize the spirit of Christian brotherhood, the spirit that rises above the barriers of nationality and holds in bonds of mutual love all true followers of Jesus Christ, in whom there is neither Jew or Gentile, neither American nor German. In the present dark and sad times of war we welcome such expressions and heartily reciprocate them to our Christian brethren in Germany, seeing in them foregleams of the day for which we long, when the nations shall not make war any more, but shall dwell together in mutual goodwill."

The Rev. William S. Jones of Newport, R. I., promptly challenged the resolution.

"I should like to ask the mover of this resolution," he said, "if this body of ministers to whom he refers has gone on record in regard to the war. Has it pronounced the sinking of the Lusitania a massacre? Has it appealed to the German people to repent their wickedness in sackcloth and ashes in the sight of both God and man?

"Until those ministers do make that appeal this is no time to bring here such an ideal and futile resolution. When this war is a matter of life and death for all Christian civilization, how idle to talk about Christian Germany! No doubt there are good Christian people in Germany, but their voices seem to be smothered by Prussian militarism."

The Rev. John W. Day of St. Louis said that he held it to be unworthy of the association to consider a resolution "so ineffably empty."

"Any man," he said, "who would offer a resolution of that kind may think he has a vision. He is only a night lamp and he ought to disinfect his mind and soul."

The meeting adopted a resolution pledging the association's unstinted support to the Government in "its endeavor to secure a complete victory for the cause of democracy."

Another resolution urged the Senate to pass the Federal suffrage amendment to the end "that the Government be more fully democratic."

DEFEATING THE U-BOAT, SAYS F. D. ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Offensive operations against German submarines are producing good results, said Acting Secretary Roosevelt of the Navy today, and he added that, while it would be too much to say that the submarine situation is under control or that the U-boats are not still to be regarded as a menace, the outlook is hopeful.

Mr. Roosevelt reiterated the opinion held by the department that what has already been accomplished should serve merely to increase the vigor of the campaign and the effort to turn out rapidly additional destroyers and other craft for anti-submarine work.

"Going after them and not waiting for them to come after us is the answer," he said.

Naval opinion here now is that the season of the year makes little difference in the effectiveness of the submarines. Advantages and disadvantages of Winter and Summer offset each other. It is pointed out that, while rough water in Winter impedes the U-boats, the long Winter nights give them opportunity to come to the surface for recharging their batteries and resting the crews, and also to make long trips on the surface at night, increasing their effective area.

Danger from submarines has decreased to such an extent that the Bureau of War Risk Insurance has recommended a reduction from $2.50 to $1.50 per $1,000 as the insurance rate on lives of officers and crews of merchant vessels passing through the war zone. This is in line with the recent lowering of marine insurance rates on vessels and cargoes from 3 to 2 per cent.

FUNSTON TROOPS TO START.

Wood's Division Rushes Preparations for Going Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., May 21. (Passed by the Censor.)—The Funston boys are going "over there." Where they go from here, and when and how they leave, are points of information that cannot be made public. The men themselves know little about that and care less. Sufficient for them, there is action afoot at last, lots of action, with trains and loading and packing, night and day work, and speed such as has never been seen here before.

Surmises among the men as to what the big step they are about to take means cover a range that includes everything. Headquarters alone knows what is taking place, and headquarters is not telling. There's no lack of enthusiasm, however, as a result of lack of information, for good privates do not question orders from higher up.

Camp Funston has done its share if not a single man should be trained here again. The total number sent from here since the camp was established last September would be astonishing if it might be told. More than enough men to make several complete divisions have learned the rudiments of soldiering here and gone away to join other units for overseas. But the 89th, under General Wood, is the only complete division of national army men turned out as a unit complete in every way to take its place in the trenches of France.

Southern Presbyterians Reject Union

DURANT, Okla., May 21.—Organic union with the Northern Presbyterian Church was rejected by a large majority today by the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, in session here, after two days' debate. The southern branch, however, went on record as still being willing to consider a Federal union of all Presbyterian and Reformed churches of the United States. The vote rejecting organic union was 152 to 72.

Atlantic Division Reports $4,797,607.

The Atlantic Divisions of the Red Cross, which includes New Jersey, Connecticut, and New York State, with the exception of New York City, reported a total last night of $4,797,607. Wallingford, Conn., the home of Raoul Lufberry, whose death on Sunday ended the career of the great American flier, carried the banner for small cities in the Atlantic Division yesterday, having raised $8,412 against a quota of $4,000.

At the dinner at which contributions for New York City were announced John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Chairman of Committee 24, read a letter from Payne Whitney announcing a gift of $250,000 in memory of his uncle, Oliver H. Payne.

"I am here to speak in favor of the Red Cross, in order that we may back up the young men at the front. Admirable though the Red Cross and kindred organizations are, they are admirable because in the second line they back up the men in the first line. The one prime duty of America is to put her well-trained and well-equipped soldiers in the front line by the millions. We are going to win this war, not by saying what a fine nation we are and not by paying compliments to one another. We will do it by realizing how far we have failed in our duty in the past. There is only one set of men who are entitled to the unlimited regard of their fellow-men today, and that is the set wearing the uniform of the army and navy of the United States and fighting for us and for those who come after.

"We have been fooled by the pacifists, by the pacifists of both sexes, so far as you can predicate the sex of pacifists. The pacifists never kept a people out of war. Even a pacifist can be kicked into war. But the trouble with the pacifists is that they first invite the kicking and then prove themselves unable to do the fighting. The blood of the nation will be poured out in streams because of the foolish and short-sighted and timid refusal of the pacifists to permit us to harden our strength. It is the eleventh hour, but, thank heaven, it is not the twelfth hour. We can still back the men at the front, and the way to do it is by doing the thing that is next. The thing that is next this week is to help the Red Cross, which is helping the men at the front and their families behind."

In calling for liberal contributions Colonel Roosevelt said:

"We must deny ourselves that they shall not be denied anything that we can give. I ask you to give till you feel it. The most shameful creature that this war can produce, with the exception of the young man who dodges his duty to serve his country, will be the man whose fortune has increased during this war. No man in America shall have the right to the respect of his fellow-Americans if, at the end of this war, he does not come out a little poorer than he went in. Give to the quick for the Red Cross. I ask you to feel ashamed and humiliated, if you do not give until you feel the effects of your giving. No man has any right to feel pride unless he feels anxiety and the effects of self-denial. Our pride can only be the pride reflected from their souls. If it is not given to us to do heroic deeds, let us do the best we can for the gallant young souls who are giving to the death."

German propagandists are said to be busy on the east side among Italian residents spreading a fallacious report to the effect that all Italian subscribers to the American Red Cross War Fund will be listed for conscription. The report was immediately communicated to the local committee of the Red Cross War Fund organization in the Woolworth Building who took steps to investigate the alleged activity of east side Germans and report to the Department of Justice.

Italian Premier Sends Message.

I learn with lively satisfaction of resolution in which Presidential Council has expressed its official appreciation of valuable work carried on by the American Red Cross. This action of the committee authoritatively interprets this nation's sentiment, and is a well-deserved recognition of the highly effective, intelligent help that, with true spirit of unity and brotherhood, has been rendered in Italy by this splendid institution. ORLANDO.

The resolution referred to has been transmitted by Prince Colonna, the Mayor of Rome, and is as follows:

The Communal Council of Rome, in its meeting of April 29 last, has placed on the records with deepest satisfaction a report of the Committee of Civil Organization which, in order to interpret the gratitude of our people, expressed officially its appreciation of the splendid, meritorious work of the American Red Cross. The Communal Council, filled with admiration for the generous organization of the American Red Cross, gave voice to a desire that new ties of fraternal unity inspired by a noble purpose would join our nation indissolubly with the great American nation and thus confirm the welcome in Camp Itodlio, where, with an acclaim that came from the heart, you were received. Today, as on that day, I am happy to be interpreter of the sentiments of the civic representatives and, in approving fully the action of the Committee of Civil Organization, I wish to express to you how much Rome appreciates the great mercy which the American Red Cross is doing for the common end and through which, on this side of the ocean and the other side of the ocean, arms, minds, and hearts are united with a radiant vision of certain victory. Accept assurance of my highest esteem.

Mayor of Rome, PROSPERO COLONNA.

Ambassador Page has transmitted by cable to the Secretary of State a high tribute to the work of the Red Cross by Colonel M. E. Ireland, Chief Surgeon of the Medical Corps in General Pershing's army.

The Newspaper Division began actively yesterday to collect subscriptions among 165 publications in English and other languages and will canvass 100,000 employes.

Architects Give to Red Cross.

The annual convention of the New York Society of Architects was held yesterday afternoon at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. On account of the war the usual dinner and theatre party were omitted, and a contribution was made from the society's treasury to the Red Cross. Among those who addressed the convention were Albert Kleinert, Superintendent of Buildings of the Borough of Brooklyn; Deputy State Industrial Commissioner John H. Vogt, Edward J. Loth of Troy, and Major John P. Everett. Officers elected included John Riely Gordon, re-elected President; Henry Holder, Jr., Treasurer, and Frederick Zobel, Secretary.

Voice of Our Men in France for Red Cross, Says Baker

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Secretary Baker tonight issued this message to the nation in behalf of the Red Cross War Fund campaign.

"Every battlefield in France speaks eloquent testimony of the merciful work of the Red Cross. If the voice of the American Expeditionary Force could be heard there would be no doubt concerning the responses of the United States to the second war fund campaign. The terrors of battles are decreased and the horrors it entails are minimized by this greatest of relief agencies. No support which the American people give to it will be misconceived or misdirected."

NATION REPORTS 25% OF FUND SUBSCRIBED

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Returns from the American Red Cross campaign for a second $100,000,000 war mercy fund received at headquarters here tonight from the eleven divisions over the country show that the drive is meeting with success everywhere. While figures for all districts are far from complete, reports on hand show that more than one-fourth of the fund has been raised. The divisions reporting, their quotas and subscriptions, follow:

Divisions.	Quota.	Subscriptions.
Atlantic (including New York City)	$35,000,000	$13,077,924
New England	6,650,000	885,500
Potomac	3,300,000	728,221
Pennsylvania	12,000,000	1,256,577
Lake	13,000,000	1,810,248
Central	13,000,000	4,250,000
Southern	2,950,000	734,191
Gulf	1,300,000	492,664
Southwestern	7,250,000	3,412,279
Mountain	1,350,000	719,547
Northwestern	1,770,000	......
Total subscriptions		$27,367,149

Very few tabulated returns came from the Southwestern Division today. The Northwestern Division reported that all cities would exceed their quotas and that favorable reports came from country districts.

Three States—Michigan, South Dakota and Delaware—and many cities have exceeded their quotas and still are driving forward for more funds. No district has yet reached its allotment, but reports from most of them show that they are maintaining the necessary daily average to carry them over the top at the end of the campaign Saturday.

One of the outstanding features of the drive thus far has been the unusually large number of contributions, showing that millions are giving their dollars to care for soldiers wounded fighting the Germans, and for the civilians who have been driven from their homes in the battle areas. In South Dakota, the second State to go over the top, 210,000 persons out of a population of 717,000 subscribed.

Claims from various sections to the honor of being the first to subscribe their allotments to the Red Cross fund were on file here today awaiting decision of the national headquarters in the matter of awards. Word was cabled from Honolulu that Hawaii had oversubscribed its quota of $250,000, while reports of having gone over the top had been received from Peabody, Mass.; Kossuth County, Iowa; Pontotoc County, Okla., and Yolo County, Cal.

The British Red Cross sent a cable message wishing the American Red Cross success in its war fund drive and stating that America's civilian relief "has brought fresh heart to those of our allies whose countries have suffered so severely from the devastation of war."

Buyers of wool clipped from the White House flock of sheep will receive autographed letters from President and Mrs. Wilson along with their purchases. The wool has been done up in two-pound packages and sent to Governors of the States to be auctioned off for the Red Cross. Officials of the Red Cross expect the sales to add many thousands of dollars to Red Cross funds.

The first town of more than 100,000 inhabitants to report being over the top was Dallas, Texas. With a quota of $225,000 the town has raised $461,000 and has set its mark at $525,000.

BOSTON, May 21.—The drive to obtain New England's quota of $7,000,000 for the American Red Cross fund has reached almost $2,000,000 tonight. Tabulations of incomplete returns from the five States for the first day and a half of the campaign received at headquarters here up to noon gave a total of $1,548,334, and Red Cross officials said they were confident that the full returns would show approximately $2,000,000. Connecticut is not included in the campaign district.

SEES ALLIES DETERMINED.

Confidence of Victory Increased by Our Troops, Says Davison.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 21.—An assertion that there can be no peace so long as Germany is possessed of military power and a plea for liberal support of the Red Cross were included in the address of Henry P. Davison, chief speaker at the night session here of the National Conference of Social Workers. Mr. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross said:

"My observations in Italy, France, Belgium, and England have convinced me that all the forces of the Entente, military and civilian, have learned how to get peace, which they so much desire, and that they are all in accord as to how to get it and in their determination that it shall be had. Germany has made it clear to all in the countries of her enemies that there can be no peace so long as Germany is possessed of military power.

"You may be able to visualize our boys in a foreign land, but I really doubt if you can realize the sensation they create as they march along in true American fashion, filling every one with confidence in their courage and determination. Their attitude has been that of modesty and with the spirit of complete and full co-operation in a task the meaning of which they seem to understand."

Acid "Sets Your Teeth on Edge"

That is Nature's warning of too much acid.

"Acid-Mouth" gives you no warning but a slight excess of acid in the mouth night and day works slowly but surely to cause decay of the teeth, according to many authorities.

This condition may be combated by the regular use of Pebeco Tooth Paste which combines all the properties of a tooth cleanser with the added benefit of neutralizing the excess acid in the mouth.

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

is made for the purpose of maintaining "dental health." It produces a delightful sense of cleanliness in the mouth and retards decay. The first trial will convince you that your teeth are cleaner than ever before and that its continued use will preserve your teeth.

The price of Pebeco is 50 cents and is sold by druggists everywhere

THE GERMAN REVOLUTION.

It is reported that Chancellor von Hertling and Foreign Secretary von Kuehlmann have protested against the new alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary and have "washed "their hands of the entire matter, as "they objected to the methods by "which the military part of the con"vention was devised over their heads "by the German higher command." General von Ludendorff is said to have insisted that their objections be disregarded and the alliance be "signed "at once." The military sections of the alliance compel Austria "to place "all her forces at the disposal of Ger"many."

This is merely one more document in the piling accumulation of evidence that the civil Government of Germany is passing away; that to it is succeeding an irresponsible military despotism. It is one of the reasons why Germany's word is worthless: for even if a German statesman honestly means to keep a pledge he signs, it can be nullified in a moment if some member of the military ring disapproves of it. Speaking of the military ring and the nominal Government of Germany, the [illegible] Government, Deputy Noske said a few days ago before the Main Committee of the Reichstag:

> When an agreement on anything is reached between these two factors, it is only achieved by the Government [illegible] way.

And he added this immeasurably [illegible]ous sentence:

> There is no getting away from the impression that Germany is again under absolute rule.

The short-lived constitutional rule in Germany is fading fast away; she is reverting as fast as possible to the despotism of the Middle Ages, a despotism which, unlike the despotisms of other countries, was prolonged almost into our own day. Her period of constitutional rule, a thing of the nineteenth century, may come to be regarded in history as a brief interlude in centuries of despotism, beginning in the Dark Ages, interrupted for a short time in the nineteenth century, and resumed in the twentieth in the midst of the great war.

Though the cases in which the military despots have taken political matters out of the hands of the nominal civil Government have been numerous, the most striking, because the most ruffianly, was that in which General von Eichhorn overthrew the Ukraine Government, marching soldiers into the session of the Rada and arresting members of the Administration, at the very time when negotiations were going on between the Ukraine Ministry and the German Minister at Kiev. It caused such a shiver of fear in Germany itself that Vice Chancellor von Payer was obliged to make explanations, to pretend that von Eichhorn's action was taken with the knowledge of the German Minister, to do everything he could to make it appear that the civil Government was still functioning.

There has been much talk of a German revolution. It has always been thought of as a democratic revolution, a revolution which would curb the power of autocracy and give the people a larger share in government. That may come; but in the meantime here is an actual German revolution, swiftly enacting itself before our eyes, not a democratic but a despotic revolution. Since most revolutions in recent times have been democratic ones, we are likely to forget that history is full of revolutions of the other kind. This is one, whether it ever leads to a democratic counter-revolution or not.

While, as has been said, the political action of the military ring in the Ukraine was the most shocking and sensational of all, the reported dictation of the Austro-German alliance by the soldiers is much more significant. That was a matter solely for statesmen, a matter with which soldiers could have no possible concern under any theory of government except one of military absolutism. Just as Eichhorn cut the Gordian knot with his soldiers in the Ukraine, so Ludendorff cut it in Berlin, hurling the statesmen out of his way and striking his mailed fist down on the table. The two Kaisers, meeting with such parade, were mere scenery to impress the popular imagination; what was to be signed was drawn up and dictated by Ludendorff. Austria, as an independent empire, has disappeared; Germany's short life as a constitutional monarchy is ending. These are revolutions indeed.

FILLING THE RED CROSS WAR CHEST.

The response to the appeal of the Red Cross has so far been worthy of New York, but New York can do better. There have been some noble contributions. Fortunes have been poured out for the cause, men and women have given twice and felt better for the second giving. No thought of self entered into the act. What they did was for humanity as well as for America. They could not distinguish.

Well may the sufferers in the stricken countries—their name is legion—thank God that America does not count her wealth when the people of a nation are to be saved and society held together by bonds of sympathy and helpfulness. Well may the soldiers of the Allies bless the emblem that comes to them on the ambulance speeding to the firing line, that, on the uniform of the nurse, means so much of gentle ministration and easing of pain. But as the Red Cross relieves and cares for thousands, so does it like to receive donations and the commission to cure and save from the many, from the hard-working and even the kindly poor as well as from those who can give in imposing round numbers.

Four days remain to fill the war chest, to make it run over. Everybody has not given, far from it. The Red Cross wants contributors by the hundreds of thousands as well as it wants millions of dollars. There are many people who are giving more of their possessions than they can afford, considering what their responsibilities are; there are some who could give more than they have done and not feel the pinch at all. And there are still others who have given absolutely nothing, whose understandings and hearts the Red Cross appeal has not touched in the least. Four days remain to know, to feel, and to give. To those who have given nothing and to those who have not given with sympathy and insight are commended these words of Vice President Marshall: "Nothing is comparable to the "work of the Red Cross. Nothing "can come into your lives that will "give you so much rest of mind and "peace of soul as to realize that you "have made some sacrifice for the "alleviation of suffering, as to have "made sacrifices for the winning upon "the part of America of this most just "and righteous war."

MISTREATMENT OF "BIG BUSINESS."

For seven years the Shoe Trust has been bitterly pursued upon what the Supreme Court calls the "innuendo" of the Government that it restrained interstate trade. By 4 to 3 the court decides that the Government was wrong in its aspersion as matter of law. As the court was so evenly divided, the defendant trust can hardly be blamed for a course which had never been condemned by authority and which was approved by business practice. The acquittal of the trust is condemnation of its prosecutors because they have so persistently refused to take their law from the courts. One Attorney General has even gone so far as to complain that he alone cannot enforce the law against restraint of trade. He formally expressed his regret that "a "number of Federal Judges have been "and still are apparently reluctant to "enforce the Sherman act." Now the highest court asserts that the Department of Justice prosecutes by insinuation on a mistaken view of the law.

If the case stood alone, it would be an undesirable state of affairs, but it is only one of many cases. Only a short time ago Government representatives sat around the same table with many distinguished defendants, at the suit of the Government on complaints which the Government could not proceed with. Public interest would not allow that seven suits against the biggest of the trusts should be pressed to a conclusion, although the trusts were eager for finality regarding their legal status. Such a condition of affairs indicates nothing less than a reign of terror which should be ended. Is it extreme to take the position that the Attorney General and the trusts alike should take their law from the courts?

Another sugggestion—the trust cases are mostly prosecuted and decided on the law rather than the facts. There have been not a few cases where trusts were attacked on the ground that they restrained trade under the law, although they promoted trade in fact. In the Shoe case there is no question that the manufacture of shoes was enlarged, whatever may have been the fact about the machinery trade. The interest of the public is that the law should be enforced, and restraint of the machinery trade is not to be condoned, if proved. But the public interest is rather in shoes than in shoe machinery, and the effect of the trust's plan is affirmed by the court to be helpful to the small shoemakers, who were able to operate with leased machinery which they could not buy. To prosecute big business which helps the little men in trade cannot be in the public interest. If there were complaint from the public that the making of shoes was obstructed, or made costly, or that other shoemakers were stopped in their trade by the trust, the Department of Justice might have an excuse for its persistence. But the public is not in court, except through the Attorney General. The court explicitly remarks that the victims of the lease system were not in court.

All unobserved, there has grown up a practice oppressive to business which has not been convicted of anything. Within a few days a plea of guilty has been accepted by the Attorney General in what might be called his personal court. He arraigned the trust before him, and the trust accepted his view of the law rather than contend in such an unequal contest. It is natural enough, and yet those trusts which resist such practice are more to be commended. The Department of Justice is empowered to prosecute the guilty, but it is an innovation that the Attorney General should arrange the terms on which business men may engage in interstate commerce without the assistance of the courts. If such trade licenses are to be issued, it should be by authority of law, by some official who has been given the authority which the Attorney General seems to usurp. Between the abdication of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the quasi-usurpation of the Department of Justice, the men of large affairs who wish to obey the law are put in an undeserved quandary. The railways and the trusts have deserved discipline and have been scourged until they have repented. Is it not also time that the Government should recognize that conditions have altered, and that the law has teeth enough of its own, without a false set condemned by the courts and common sense?

DIVIDING THE SWAG.

When the Kaiser Karl met the German Kaiser on "the blessed ground" of German Main Headquarters, two brother sovereigns, King Ludwig of Bavaria and King Friedrich August of Saxony, turned up at the conference, unexpected and uninvited. They knew there was going to be a division of the swag, and they couldn't trust Wilhelm to "play fair" and be just to his pals. The Munich Neueste Nachrichten said frankly that "Bavaria cannot leave "Prussia to be the sole arbiter of Ger"man destinies." Therefore had King Ludwig gone to Headquarters. For the same reason the King of Saxony went thither, though his participation in the negotiations "was not desired in Berlin."

The dear Prussians are so beloved and trusted! 'Twas ever thus. The King of Saxony may have recalled how Frederick the Great calmly wrote in 1776 that the acquisition of Saxony was "indispensably necessary" to Prussia; how he invaded Saxony without notice in 1756, had the Dresden archives ransacked, and published the defensive treaties between Austria, Russia, and Saxony as evidence of the conspiracy of which he was the guileless victim.

Besides, east and southeast, thrones and fat territories are awaiting German dynasties. Old-established monarchies like Bavaria and Saxony must not be passed over in the rake-off. "If Prussia is enlarged," wrote Vorwärts, if ironically with entire appreciation of German land-hunger and throne-hunger, "something must also "be found somewhere for Bavaria, "while Saxony, Württemberg, and "other States will also want some"thing, and there are only six thrones "to distribute among twenty-two dy"nasties." Which is a shame. Why are dynasties so numerous and eligible thrones so few?

It is good to know, however, that at least one of the old-established Kings is to have a splendid spoil, or have it dangled before him. Today, according to a Berlin dispatch, the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Federal Council will > take up the Alsace-Lorraine and Lithuanian questions. A Saxon-Lithuanian union is now advocated by the Saxon Cabinet, and the King of Saxony has declared his willingness to approve it.

Was there ever a more self-sacrificing sovereign? His Ministers insist on forcing Lithuania on him. All right. Anything to oblige. The Lithuanians don't count. It is none of their business, and their remoteness from Saxony, the uncontiguity of the annexers and the annexed, especially recommends the union. One might suppose, from a glance at the map, that Lithuania would be acceptable to Prussia; but Prussia was ever altruistic. Why should she, why should any of the other States, grudge a little present to Saxony?

So one unwelcome caller on the two Emperors is in a way of being provided for, on paper at least. How about Ludwig of Bavaria? Does the taking up of the Alsace-Lorraine question, as a question of internal politics and administration, augur that "something is to be done for" Bavaria? The incorporation of Alsace-Lorraine in Bavaria is no new suggestion; and it has often been said that if the two conquered provinces had been divided among the South German States, especially such once easy, democratic, and un-Prussianized States as Baden and Württemberg, the treatment and the feeling of the Alsace-Lorrainers would have been far different. Who knows? Meanwhile, it is enough to hope and believe that the King of Bavaria will get a satisfactory share of the proceeds of the great German robbery. It has yet to be seen if he and his royal and imperial pals can keep what they get, have got, or think they are getting. And what shall it profit the Saxons if they have to live on horse, dog, and menagerie camel meat while their august Friedrich August tries to swallow Lithuania?

PRIVATES BILL AND NEEDHAM.

Mrs. Henry Johnson—she knows him only as Bill—had faith in the prowess of her husband, if nobody else thought that he was of much account. "Bill ain't big, nor nothing like that," she said, on being informed that he had won the French War Cross on the American front, "but, boy," she went on to the reporter, "he can go some." That must be the conviction of survivors of the German raiding party that tried to wipe out Private Henry Johnson and Private Needham Roberts of the old 15th Regiment of the New York National Guard—it seems but the other day that the proposal to organize the negro regiment was received with tepid enthusiasm.

The Germans were in force; the two colored privates on sentry duty did not appear formidable, or much of an obstacle. It is true that in the rush they were desperately wounded, but the supply of hand grenades happily held out—Bill, as his wife calls him, also brought a bolo knife into play, handier than a razor; and, shot, clubbed, cut, and grenaded, the Germans soon had enough of Bill and Needham, leaving some dead men and fragments of others on the ground. Twenty-four to two, and the two at last in possession of the field, with three wounds apiece and the glorious feeling of victory.

According to the divisional order of the day, Bill of Albany "gave a "magnificent exhibition of courage "and energy," and Needham of Little Old New York, "continued to throw "hand grenades, although fallen to "the ground, until the enemy was "forced to flee—a good and brave "soldier." The French Croix de Guerre for both, and for Bill, who slashed in such a timely way with his bolo knife, the "Gold Palm," a much-coveted distinction. It is said that the whole regiment is now clamoring for bolo knives, Private Johnson's particular personal weapon having proved so handy. The Germans will have to find as apt a name for the American negro fighters as they have given to the kilted Scots, whom they call "The Ladies from Hell." Something demoniac there certainly was about Bill and Needham.

It was an excellent thing, after all, to organize the 15th National Guard Regiment of New York. A merger has effaced the name, but the negro soldiers, whom General Foch speaks of as "very strong and stout-hearted and very rash," fight well under any numerical designation. It is now the 369th Regiment. France regards them, no doubt, as the American Chasseurs d'Afrique. "I am very proud of them," says Colonel William Hayward; "they are clean, brave men, fearing nothing." Which reminds us of the 24th Regulars in Cuba, a negro infantry regiment. They belonged to that "heroic brigade" of which the other commands were the historic 9th and the brilliant 13th, both white regiments. The brigade lost heavily in the storming of San Juan Ridge. But the bigger thing was to come after. Troops were wanted to police the yellow fever camp at Siboney. General Shafter ordered the 24th down from its tented field, where it was catching its breath and "resting up." Then there was this scene and incident: the regiment lined up by Major Alfred Markley, ranking officer, and a little speech to those tired and battle-stained negro soldiers—"General Shafter has select"ed us to take charge of the fever "camp at Siboney. Those who want "to volunteer, one step to the front." And all that remained of the 24th fit for duty made one stride toward the Major.

If any regiment in Cuba, white or black, made a better record than the Twenty-fourth, for bravery, for humanity, for discipline and duty, will some one speak up? But it is an old story, the gallantry and stanchness of our negro soldiers when the country calls in the hour of her need. New York may well be proud of the 369th Infantry, which was the old 15th.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Victors Tell the News. Civilian students of the war dispatches long ago noticed that the earliest, as well as the most detailed, news about any military operation at the front invariably, or next to invariably, came from the side that was successful. This has been the case whether the subject of report was an assault in which the immediate objective was attained or whether it was the repulse of an attack.

Presumably, all army men have always known the explanation of this phenomenon, and probably it was because they did not think a thing with no mysteries for themselves was worth discussion that they have left the rest of us who noticed it to assume, as we did, that the victors talked and the vanquished kept still simply because the former had something they were glad to tell and the latter didn't feel like saying anything at all for the time being. Both proceedings would be entirely "human," and therefore easily understandable, but General Maurice, in a dispatch printed yesterday by The Times, declared the civilian theory quite wrong, and he made it clear that the victors gave the news because they could give it, while the vanquished were silent because their ill-fortune seriously interfered with or destroyed their means of communication.

According to the General, therefore, the explanation lay, not in a characteristic shared by all men, but in the conditions that battle creates. Proceeding further along the same lines, General Maurice wrote of the cases when one side announces the taking of a town or hill, and the other delays the making of any announcement until the occupation is complete and hope of regaining the lost position by an immediate counter-attack has been given up or indefinitely postponed. We also hear at once about the taking of prisoners and only much later about the loss of men by capture. Again the expert explanation is of like tenor—the captors can count their captives at once, while it is long before the opposing force can be sure that the missing soldiers will not make their way back to their own friends.

A Birthday Worth Celebrating. Sixteen years are not long in the life of a nation, and if not a few nations have died before attaining that age, it is only because infant mortality tends to be high in all sorts of political organizations, just as it is in human beings and animals. But though sixteen years are not many from the historian's point of view, the Government that reaches its sixteenth birthday, as did the Cuban Republic this week, has a right to congratulate itself, and to be congratulated by others, on having safely passed through the most perilous period of its existence—can confront the future with the confidence of vigorous youth.

It can, that is, if its youth really is vigorous. Cuba's youth seems to be fairly so, and perhaps a little better than that. At any rate, her people have confuted a lot of prophets who claimed to know much about the Cubans' constitutional inability to rule themselves according to democratic formulas, to abide by decisions rendered by the ballot box, and to conduct themselves to the satisfaction of their neighbors. It is true that the Cuban Republic has not had to walk through the dangerous years entirely unsupported or entirely unguarded from the Black Things that roam the world, watching for chances to gobble up just such highly edible infants as herself. She has had, too, several rather serious intestinal disorders, as characteristic of national as of individual childhood. Her recoveries, however, have been prompt, and today she is about as safe—about as likely to live long and prosper—as are, in these terrible times, a good many nations larger and older than herself.

That the Cubans have yet developed a passionate, or even a warm, affection for the country that gave her liberty, and still protects her in it, is something less than a certainty, but at any rate they have scorned the German propagandist and his wiles—which is more than can be said for the haughty motherland that used to treat them so ill—and they are keeping vastly better company than she does. For Cuba is in the Great War on the right side, which is vastly better than maintaining a neutrality that ever verges toward the wrong side.

Everything considered, Cuba has much reason to be proud of her record as a republic—and the United States claims some credit for having made possible the display of Cuban virtues.

Collector's Mania Illustrated. Nobody who in youth had an attack of philatelitis—and who did not?—can pretend not to understand why a large price has been paid for a sheet of our new aerial post stamps that by accident show in a reversed position the airplane which is the issue's distinguishing decoration. But even for a set of stamps as "hard" as that—to use the word of boy collectors—$20,000 does seem too much. And if the giver of that astonishing price had not been a man notable in the financial world for his sound and practical sense of values, the impulse of most of us would be to call him mad.

If it had been a single stamp bearing the tipped-over airplane, his expenditure would be of easier justification, at least under the laws of "business," for then its possessor might well sell it for more, or even get $20,000 worth of satisfaction out of the hopeless envy of other rich collectors. But this "specimen," except as an undivided sheet, is so far from being "unique" that in time every real stamp hunter of high degree will have a like "example." And there's no real glory in having a stamp when there are ninety-nine others like it in existence.

Some critics are sure to opine and remark that at this time there are several better uses for $20,000 than the purchase of a set of stamps which, except for a printer's error, would be worth in the open market just $24. Such critics will not be entirely silenced, either, by the familiar defense of luxury purchases of this kind—that they merely transfer money from one man's pocket to another man's pocket, and that it makes no ultimate difference who puts it to a noble use. There is a strong taint of fallacy in that argument, and reason as well as instinct promptly discovers it.

AN OUTCAST NATION.

Germany Must Suffer an Automatic Boycott.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One sees in the New York newspapers constant reference to the question of the boycott of the German nation at the close of the present war. It has occurred to me that all nations of slaves have been outcasts until such time as they proved themselves free and worthy of the possession of freedom. Since no nation has ever been a race of slaves to the extent the German nation has revealed itself, and at a time when the influence of the democratic idea is well-nigh universal, it would seem that the boycott of Germany will be automatic.

She is no longer a sister but by her own choice an exile among the nations. We can accept no share in her material or intellectual achievements until she has cast off the habits and the mental outlook of a totally subservient people who have permitted themselves to be drawn into the worst crime in history at the command of their master, the German Kaiser.

A Constant Reader Cables Congratulations.

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 21.—I have just received several copies of recent issues of THE NEW YORK TIMES, and after examining them I am moved to congratulate you by cable on your magnificent showing of war news. All the European papers are miles behind you, and people arriving from New York say the same is true of the American papers. C.

IRELAND MUST WAIT.

She Cannot Be Allowed to Weaken the Forces of Freedom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an American citizen of Irish birth and ancestry, I have always believed that the Irish people are of right a nation and that they are entitled to enjoy a fully self-determined national life. I have always believed that they themselves are the best judges of the conditions, political, social and economic, upon which such a national life should be founded. I hold these beliefs today as firmly as I have ever held them and, I venture to think, as firmly as any one else holds them.

But we are in a war upon the issue of which depends the liberty, not of one nation alone, but of the civilized world. For America and for the nations ranged with her in the fight against Germany there is now but one business in hand. That business is so to strike down the power that menaces the world's freedom that never again will it lift its arm with like intent.

The cause of the world against Germany is not divisible. There is no penumbra, no twilight zone wherein one may sit and subtly distinguish between America's cause and the cause of her allies in this war. Whoever thinks he can do this is deceiving himself.

I am for Ireland, but while this war lasts I am for England, as for America, against the common enemy and I am against anything—and any one—that directly or indirectly weakens the arm of any one of the nations fighting on our side. And, if it were possible—as it is not—that Ireland could at present achieve her freedom by imperiling the cause of any one of those nations, then, I say, Ireland's freedom should wait until the freedom of the world has been made secure.

How, otherwise, could her freedom be permanent?

I resent as an insult to my intelligence the suggestion that she has anything to hope for from a German triumph but a barren—a worse than barren—revenge. And I believe that a majority of American citizens of Irish birth and ancestry in their hearts feel the same resentment.

GIVE THEM A LIFT.

A Service Motorists Can Render Soldiers and Sailors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The daily spectacle of hundreds of automobiles—which the auto dealers are anxious to have us now call "passenger cars"—with empty seats capable of carrying from two to five persons, leads one to realize how beneficial may be the suggestion which the Mayor's Committee has recently made—that automobilists carry a card which constitutes a standing invitation to the soldiers and sailors in the city to "have a lift."

Only ignorance of the joy coming to the driver of a machine who is privileged to have some of these boys as guests can explain the presence of empty seats. It so happens that this Spring I have rarely been out in my car when it was not filled to capacity, but Saturday evening, having occasion to travel alone from Washington Heights to Dyckman Heights in Brooklyn, I picked up on the way downtown a sailor accompanied by a friend, and finding that he was on the way to Coney Island, took him practically all the way down by way of Fourth Avenue and the Shore Road in Brooklyn. The keenness of his enjoyment was more than a reward for the slight service rendered. Moreover, it served as an inspiration on the way home when opportunity presented to take on three more sailors and three soldiers, and as the soldiers proved to be entire strangers in New York who had arrived early in the evening and were due to be leaving early in the morning, a little extra trip through the parkways of the Bronx could not be resisted. The appreciation that those boys showed for the hospitality would have brought tears to the eyes of any motorist. Here were three boys who had only ten or fifteen hours to spend in New York and did not know how to spend their time or where to go. The joy they took in the ride over Riverside and the Grand Concourse, if it could only be brought home to every motorist in New York, would, I feel sure, cause a universal adoption of the "have a lift" habit.

Let every automobile owner who is traveling through the city with room to spare make it a point to invite the boys in the service to have a ride along their way. It is mighty little for us to do and it will do much to keep their spirits up in this big lonely city. J. K. C.

The Allies' Right Wing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Italians here feel aggrieved by the fact that the Italian flag, as a rule, is not displayed with the French and English flags. Since it has been officially announced that General Foch has been placed in command of the allied armies from the Channel to the Adriatic, it is just that no partiality should be shown. This much we owe to ourselves. Let us leave Caporetto in the rear, whatever the causes, and let us give due credit to the wonderful achievements on the Isonzo, at Gorizia, at Monte Santo, and beyond. The soldiers of Italy need encouragement and moral support as much as the soldiers in France. FRANCESCO VENTRESCA.

THE RED CROSS MARCH.

With measured, rhythmic tread they come,
A red-starred, bannered throng,
To sound of fife and roll of drum
Fifth Avenue along—
A host by one great purpose blent,
Led by the nation's President!

In glory of the Maytime fair
And splendor of the sun,
While cheers of thousands fill the air,
These marchers walk as one.
The Red Cross banners o'er them wave,
Whose mission 'tis to heal and save!

Beneath the blue of Heaven's arch,
Adown the Avenue,
A living Red Cross heads the march,
Emblem of Mercy true,
While o'er them all, along the line,
The Stars and Stripes in glory shine!

The grace, the beauty, and the bloom
Of girlhood here we see
'Neath banners that their march illume—
Daughters of Liberty!
And with them tread in graver mood
The heroines of womanhood!

And as we look we hear the tramp
Of thousands marching by,
Each seems the "Lady of the Lamp,"
Under Crimean sky,
Who won a glory ne'er to pale
For the name of Florence Nightingale!

These are our country's heroines,
Whose lives are consecrate,
Whose victories fair Mercy wins,
Who on the wounded wait—
And bring new hope 'neath Red Cross tent
Like mothers to the wounded sent!

FOOD EXPORTS INCREASE.

Board Gives Figures on Improved Conditions in Allied Countries.

The Federal Food Board made public yesterday a record of the amount of grain, beef, and pork products shipped to the Allies during the month of April. The Food Board report says that the total exports of beef and pork products from the United States for the month of April, 1918, were 359,058,000 pounds, composed of 285,755,000 pounds of pork products and 73,303,000 pounds of beef products. The previous month, (March, 1918,) the total exports were 395,255,000 pounds, composed of 308,010,000 pounds of pork and 87,245,000 pounds of beef.

"In April, 1917," the report says, "the net exports amounted to 161,000,000 pounds of beef and pork products. In April, 1914, the net exports amounted to 43,700,000 pounds.

"The total exports of meat products in April, 1918, were therefore about 220 per cent. of the same month last year and about 400 per cent. of April, 1914.

"Despite this great increase in exports, our hog population is increasing. These are the measures of the great voluntary efforts of the American people in reduced consumption and increased production.

"Shipments of grain and grain products to the Allies from the United States and Canada for April comprise 836,034 tons, compared with 855,000 tons for March. Of the April shipments, 539,752 tons, equal to 26,027,000 bushels of grain or products therefrom, came from the United States, of which 9,124,412 bushels were wheat or products in terms of wheat, compared to 12,910,659 bushels in March. Approximately 160,000 further tons of cereals were delivered to the ports during April for May shipment. The total exports of wheat and wheat products from July 1 to May 1, in terms of wheat, are 110,000,000 bushels, whereas, the actual exportable surplus from the last harvest, had consumption been normal, was variously estimated at from 10,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels.

"The improved food situation among the Allies is indicated by the fact that the average number of people standing in 'queues' for ration in London alone decreased from a daily average of 383,232 during the week ended Feb. 23 to 2,835 daily during the week ended April 20, and is now therefore negligible."

Five macaroni dealers were before the Federal Food Board yesterday on charges of violating the rule which forbids the use of flour in the making of spaghetti and macaroni beyond the 70 per cent. allowance. One firm, G. Cutugna of 131 Thompson Street, was ordered to suspend business until the next harvest. Joseph Saculio of 1,427 Second Avenue was ordered to suspend from May 25 to June 1, and Antonio Caltabellotta of 430 West Thirty-ninth Street was ordered to suspend from May 25 to July 10. The other two firms were ordered to submit their books for further inquiry.

BANK MERGERS UNDER FIRE.

LONDON, May 21.—The Treasury Committee appointed to inquire into the large bank amalgamations, which have caused considerable discussion recently, recommends in a report made public today that legislation be enacted providing that the approval of the Government must be obtained for any future mergers of this character.

The committee also recommends that all proposals for interlocking directorates or for agreements altering the status of banks as regards their separate entities shall be submitted for approval by the Government, and that such approval shall be refused unless amalgamation gives certain advantages to the public.

The committee says that while at present there is nothing resembling a money trust, it is not impossible that circumstances might produce something approaching it at a comparatively early date. Possible dangers from further amalgamation are regarded as material enough to outweigh considerations against Governmental interference.

PAY ALLOTMENTS DELAYED.

Congressmen Receive Many Complaints from Soldiers' Families.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Representative Madden of Illinois, learning from many constituents that the allotment of pay to the dependents of soldiers is not being received regularly, intends to offer a resolution in the House tomorrow requesting the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the House as to alleged failures of the bureau handling this service.

Representative Madden said that he had instances of absolute neglect on the part of the bureau to answer the complaints of dependents who had not received their allotments.

One Congressman said that he had gone to the bureau to make an investigation and was informed by an employee that 6,000 checks placed in "window envelopes" had been returned because the checks had been inserted in such a way as to conceal the addresses.

NEW DRY VOTE IN HOUSE.

Amendment Aimed at Beer and Wine Tentatively Adopted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Representative Randall of California won the first test in his fight for wartime prohibition in the House today. His amendment prohibiting the manufacture of beer and wine was adopted as a part of the Agricultural Appropriation bill. It directs that no part of the $6,100,000 appropriated therein for increasing food production and eliminating waste and promoting conservation of food shall be available for any purpose until the President shall have issued the proclamation authorized by the Food Control act of Aug. 10, 1917. This proclamation prohibited the use of foods, fruits, food materials, or feeds in the production of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes.

This amendment was adopted in Committee of the Whole. Opponents of prohibition say that it will be defeated in the House.

MAY CONFER ON PRISONERS.

United States Asks Germany for a Conference at Berne.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The United States Government, through the Spanish Embassy at Berlin, has suggested to the German Government that a conference be held at Berne to discuss the treatment of prisoners of war held by the two nations. No reply has been received to this proposal, the State Department said today.

The British, French, and Italian Governments have entered into similar conferences with German officials. These meetings have resulted in marked improvement in the treatment of prisoners of war.

It was said here today that no specific reason existed for asking the conference at this time.

GERMANY SEIZES LINEN.

Tablecloths and Napkins to be Used in Bandages for Wounded.

LONDON, May 10, (Associated Press.)—All washable tablecloths and napkins remaining unsold in shops throughout Germany have been commandeered by the Imperial Clothing Office, according to German papers, in order to replenish the army's impoverished supply of material for bandages, bedding and other hospital requirements, the need of which has become increasingly urgent as a result of heavy casualties.

Merchants are permitted to retain only such "linen" as is made of paper fibre or other linen substitutes.

DECLINE TO RELEASE MORE DUTCH SHIPS

Washington Authorities Insist That Holland Must Send for the Grain She Needs.

VESSELS ARE HELD BACK

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—While supplies of breadstuffs are being accumulated at ports for transshipment to Holland and other neutral nations of Europe in accordance with the agreements entered into by this Government, the War Trade Board has decided not to release three additional ships of the requisitioned fleet, as requested by the Dutch Government, and will insist that Holland send some of the 400,000 tons of vessels now tied up in its ports to get the grain.

The vessels which Holland may send, however, will have free conduct, and will be permitted to return to home waters. The Government is anxious to see that every promise made shall be kept and that the full interests of the neutral nations shall be protected.

The Government has made one concession by permitting three vessels of the requisitioned fleet to sail for Holland with grain in order to meet the immediate needs. Two of them are carrying 8,000 tons of grain across the Atlantic and another, the Hollandia, is en route from Argentina to this country, where she will add 500 tons of grain to her present cargo of 5,500 tons. She will then be permitted to continue her journey.

The War Trade Board does not feel that it can release the additional shipping requested, as this would serve further to reduce the tonnage immediately available for the purposes of this nation. The grain will be ready if Holland decides to send the shipping after it. About 15,000 tons have been moved to embarkation ports, and at least as much more will be on hand by the time the vessels arrive here. The Government has promised Holland 100,000 tons, of which 50,000 tons will be obtained in the United States and 50,000 tons in South America.

Meeting Other Agreements.

Provision also has been made to meet the agreements made with Norway, Switzerland, and Sweden.

News of the proposed agreement between Switzerland and Germany, by which the former country is to supply the Central Powers with from 15,000 to 17,000 head of cattle monthly, in return for coal and other materials, was received here with interest, but no official statement could be obtained.

If the French Government protests, as intimated, however, it seems certain that this Government will back it up. There was nothing today to indicate that there might be serious complications.

There was a good deal of doubt expressed here that Switzerland would be able to supply the Central Powers with the number of cattle mentioned in the proposed agreement, as its herds have been depleted by slaughtering because of the lack of fodder.

The United States has not withdrawn from its policy of refusing to license the export of fodder to the neutral nations of Europe since it first was adopted in July, 1917, and as a result no fodder has been shipped.

Germans Need the Meat.

So far as Germany is concerned, the move to force Switzerland to give even this supply of cattle is seen here as a desperate effort to obtain sufficient meats and fats for its troops and, if possible, to increase the ration of the civilian population, which has now been cut down to about five ounces a week.

The Germans were able to maintain a meat ration up to this time which was sufficient to prevent unrest among the people only by reason of the fact that it was necessary to slaughter large numbers of cattle not only in the neutral nations but in Germany, as a result of the failure of the German fodder crop and the restrictions which have been kept in force by the United States. With this supply depleted and the neutral nations now in possession only of such herds as are needed for home consumption, the outlook for the Central Powers is not a bright one.

One official pointed out today that the 15,000 head of cattle which Germany asked of Switzerland was in fact but a small part of the meats which had been obtained from neutral sources by the Central Powers before the drastic action taken by the United States was made effective. It has been charged that great quantities of meats and fats in various forms had been shipped into Germany.

Pending further developments, however, no official here would comment for publication on the situation which has now been created, and it is not probable that this Government will take any steps to stop the consummation of such an agreement at present. None of the neutral nations will receive fodder, however, while there is the slighest danger that it might be used for the purpose of furthering the cause of the enemy.

THE HAGUE, May 21.—The Dutch Government has prohibited the sailing of all Dutch steamships from Dutch ports. Sailing vessels and coastal fishing craft are excepted from the ruling.

FARRELL DENIES OFFER.

Directorship of Ship Operations Not Tendered to Him, He Says.

James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, denied yesterday that the position of Director of Operations of the Shipping Board had been tendered to him, as reported from Washington.

"I have received no such offer," he said. "I believe there is no intention on the part of the Shipping Board to make it. The Directors of the Emergency Fleet Corporation know that, if the position were tendered to me, I would have to decline it for patriotic reasons, if for no other. My whole time and energy are devoted to the work of assisting to the best of my ability production and delivery of steel for the Emergency Fleet Corporation and for other Government needs. In my opinion, there is nothing at the present time more important to the military necessities of the Government than the production and delivery of steel."

Clubwomen Unite in War Work.

Delegates from many clubs met, in the college room of the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs and its Committee on the Reconstruction of Wounded Soldiers. The object of the meeting was to bring together the women of the different clubs interested in this branch of work for the soldiers that it might be done without duplication. Major Casey A. Wood and Captain Samuels spoke. These committees were appointed: Mrs. Axel Ihlseng, to receive needed comforts for the men, including jams, jellies, and games, at 73 West Twenty-third Street; Mrs. Theodore Weston, to look after the work on Ellis Island; Mrs. Alfred Eno, to supply flowers when needed, and Mrs. L. L. Hayman of 286 Fort Washington Avenue, to see that cigarettes are provided. Miss Evelyn M. Goldsmith presided.

EXTOLS BENNETT AS DEMOCRACY PROPHET

HUNDREDS IN GRACE CHURCH

Present and Former Employes of The Herald, Publishers, and Representatives of Clubs Pay Tribute.

Hundreds of present and former newspaper men and representatives of many social organizations yesterday afternoon attended a memorial service in honor of James Gordon Bennett, late owner of The New York Herald, The Evening Telegram, and the European edition of The Herald, which was held in Grace Church. The services of the Protestant Episcopal Church were read by the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery, rector of Grace Church, and the eulogy of Mr. Bennett was pronounced by his long-time friend, the Rev. Dr. Samuel N. Watson, Rector Emeritus of the American Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Paris, who had baptized Mr. Bennett and officiated at his wedding.

The services were arranged by a committee of employes of every department of The Herald and Telegram, headed by Hamilton Peltz, and among the men who in spite of the heavy storm attended the ceremonies were many who had ceased their connection with The Herald many years ago and had returned to pay their last respects to their old chief. Special sections of the church had been reserved for Mr. Bennett's present and former employes, and at the opening of the service some 600 of those now employed in the editorial and mechanical departments of The Herald and Telegram filed in to the strains of Chopin's Funeral March and took their seats in the central part of the church.

Committee of Publishers.

Then came a long line of old Herald men, headed by Charles M. Lincoln and Joseph I. C. Clarke, and a committee of the New York Publishers' Association consisting of the following members:

Louis Wiley, THE TIMES; Don C. Seitz, The World; Ervin Wardman, The Sun; Bradford Merrill, The American; G. V. Rogers, The Tribune; Edward P. Call, Journal of Commerce; Victor Ridder, Staats-Zeitung; Joseph Cashman, Wall Street Journal; Victor Polachek, Evening Journal; Jason Rogers, The Globe; Dr. Edward A. Rumeley, The Evening Mail; Emil Scholz, The Evening Post; John Frost, The Brooklyn Citizen; Herbert F. Gunnison, The Brooklyn Daily Eagle; R. F. R. Huntsman, The Brooklyn Standard-Union, and Walter A. Dear, The Jersey City Journal.

Choir, 'cello, and harp gave a musical program and Dr. Slattery read the prayers. Then Dr. Watson, who had come from Virginia to pay his last tribute to his old friend, told of his long friendship with Mr. Bennett and of the latter's fervent intensity of character.

"The reason why he was such a tower of strength to France in her hour of need," said Dr. Watson, "was that he was wholehearted, and so are they. He knew them and was sympathetic with them."

Then Dr. Watson paid a tribute to the American colony which lived in Paris before the war, "people almost all past middle life, who had served their own country well and loyally at home and were doing wonderful work for mutual understanding between two great peoples; a strong, sane, conservative nucleus for Americans in Paris." He told of a dinner of six Americans, including himself, Mr. Bennett, and Ambassador Herrick, at Mr. Bennett's house on the Avenue d'Iena, just after the battle of the Marne.

Mr. Bennett's Prophetic Vision.

"The dinner ended," said Dr. Watson. "Mr. Bennett pushed back his chair and spoke of the meaning of the war. He spoke with a prophet's fervor and a prophet's vision. Remember that the war had just begun; that leaders of the people in many lands hesitated to form a judgment as to what its meaning was; that men who ought to have been qualified to see clearly formulated no clear message to the waiting peoples.

"But the prophecy that came from James Gordon Bennett's clear intelligence that night has never been defaulted by events as they arrived. He spoke of the war as a war of imponderables. He said that men were deceived who looked upon it as a conflict of political aspirations, or as motivated by national greed on one side or the other; the causes went far back in the history of men. On one side was a tendency toward liberty. It was vague, unformed, unorganized, a free spirit seeking a definite embodiment and a more permanent and effective medium of expression, and on the other side was a co-ordinated, linked power of autocracy, whose real purpose, however disguised, was to keep under the peoples and maintain at any cost its master grip on their lives and fortunes. There is no universal empire but the will of the people to govern themselves.

He Feared and Hated Tyranny.

"We talked little that evening before separating, but many times since have we recalled that vision of prophecy, and realized how great a prophet of democracy, how great a champion of the people, was the man who had spoken. He feared and he hated tyranny, and his frankness of criticism was not captiousness, but rather the discharge of a freeman's duty. He knew well that the people's rights and human freedom can only be maintained where the Government is the servant of the people; that any pretension on the part of a Government that criticism is disloyalty is but a reversion to mediaevalism, and the first step in the downfall of a republic.

"And it was on that concept of a freeman's duty that was based the great use which Mr. Bennett made of his power through the press. What a debt of gratitude do we of America owe to our free press for the high conception it has had of its duty in these recent years, and for the unshrinking courage with which it has discharged it. And I appeal to you, members of the editorial profession, let nothing cause you ever to relax in your effort. This war will be won for the right, because the hands of the clock of civilization cannot move backward. But as to when it will be won, that depends on that public opinion which you are the most potent factor in creating; and as to what shall be the aftermath of the winning of it, that depends still more on you.

"Democracy, that liberty of free peoples, has one unvarying characteristic—decentralization. Do not let us forget this, gentlemen of the press. And though today we must be using methods of the most intensive centralization, keep us reminded of the fact that it is only because we are fighting concentrated mediaevalism. And when in the end righteous force shall have utterly crushed unrighteous force, help us to dethrone the pagan ideal of force forever.

"How we shall miss James Gordon Bennett's prophetic vision and his unswerving courage in declaring it in this after struggle which is coming. How he will be missed in France, where he meant so much courage to a people struggling harder even than we have to struggle to maintain the ideals of freedom. He was a great American, and he loved France, too; but what he loved in each was something spiritual, something that belongs to the imponderables."

An anthem followed the address. Then Dr. Slattery read the committal service and prayers and pronounced the benediction.

Representatives of Clubs.

Among those present were representatives of the Union Club, the Racquet and Tennis Club, the Knickerbocker Club, the Jockey Club, the Westminster Kennel Club, and the Aero Club of America; besides Clarence H. Mackay, President, and George G. Ward, Vice President of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company; Henry Clews, Melville E. Stone, General Manager of The Associated Press; Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Candler, Mrs. William Jay, Mrs. Arthur Iselin, William C. Reick, George F. Pollock, William J. Guard, Rodman Wanamaker, James Speyer, William P. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mrs. William Fitzhugh Whitehouse, J. Frederick Tams, Francis Gray Griswold, Mrs. John Erskine Thompson, Isaac Townsend, and Miss Amy Townsend.

PRINTERS MOURN LOST FRIEND

The following resolutions, in commemoration of James Gordon Bennett by New York Typographical Union No. 6, were passed Sunday:

Whereas, In the death of James Gordon Bennett there has been removed from the ranks of American journalism a commanding force, the last of the great personal figures of the newspaper world in New York City and a lifelong friend of Typographical Union No. 6; and,

Whereas, In the early days of No. 6 when its existence was a continued struggle against forces which sought to check its life, James Gordon Bennett was a friend in need. When union printers were barred from other newspaper composing rooms, it was always the boast of The Herald's proprietor that he maintained a strictly union office. Old-time members of No. 6 will remember his celebrated cablegram in the early eighties which turned the tide when the union put into effect its scale: "Pay the union scale, irrespective of what other papers do," were his cheering words, and that has ever since been the guiding principle of the newspaper with which James Gordon Bennett's name will always be linked; therefore be it

Resolved, When James Gordon Bennett passed away from the newspaper world Typographical Union No. 6 in particular and the labor world in general lost a friend for whom every member had a warm personal regard, one who will always be held in grateful remembrance for his loyal faith in union principles and his unswerving friendship for Typographical Union No. 6.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Aero Club of America also passed resolutions expressing its appreciation of Mr. Bennett's work in promotion of ballooning and airplane work, for both of which he offered trophies.

RESNATI'S AIRPLANE FLIES AT HIS FUNERAL

GUN CARRIAGE BEARS COFFIN

To the hum of the propellers of the big Caproni airplane that he had so often piloted the body of Captain Antonio Silvia Resnati of the Italian Flying Corps, who was killed in an airplane accident at Mineola on Friday, was carried up Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon to St. Patrick's Cathedral where the funeral services were held. As the procession moved slowly along the biplane, clear cut against the leaden sky, dropping flowers in its journey, flew so low that it seemed to skim the housetops. Along the route also thousands paused in the wet to watch the coffin carried past, and about the Cathedral many more thousands stood in the rain as the flag-covered coffin was carried into the church.

The Cathedral was filled to the doors. The absolution service was performed by the Rev. William B. Martin, assisted by the Rev. B. F. McQuade as Deacon, and the Rev. D. Corcoran as Sub-Deacon. The funeral oration was preached by Mgr. Lavelle.

Escorted by 150 men of the 225th Aero Squadron, some of them students under Captain Resnati, the body was brought from Hempstead in the early afternoon. The funeral train reached the Long Island station in the Pennsylvania Terminal at 2 o'clock, where more than 5,000 persons had gathered. There were hundreds of Italian school children who braved the rain to march after the body of Italy's most famous flyer. Also in the throng were representatives of the various Italian societies, each with one or more flags draped with crêpe. Drawn up near by, awaiting the command to fall into line, were the soldiers of America and France. So quiet was the gathering that the hum of the motors of the big biplane came with surprising suddenness as the machine flew from the direction of Long Island.

The pallbearers were representatives of the Allies. They were Colonel Dinda Taneredi and Lieutenant Candoni, for Italy; Major L. G. Thornton and Lieut. Col. Hunter, for Great Britain; Captain G. Lant and Captain S. Toyner, for France; Colonel B. Bridson and Captain Robert Durham, for Canada, and Captain J. F. Doherty of the 225th Aero Squadron, U. S. A., stationed at Mineola.

A detail of mounted policemen led the line and following came the 22d Infantry Band. It required fourteen automobiles to carry the floral tributes. In the first automobile was a great floral design representing the Italian national emblem, the gift of the King of Italy. One conspicuous floral piece was a model of an airplane with a ten-foot spread of wings, a gift of Il Progresso, the Italian language newspaper.

The coffin, borne on a gun carriage, was covered with American and Italian flags, and placed on top of it were the cap, the dress uniform and the sword of Captain Resnati. Then came the representatives of the Allied Governments and the Italian and Allied officers. The members of the Italian Military Mission, headed by Colonel Binda, were in the line. In the second platoon, were the detail from the 225th Aero Squadron, and the various societies, including the Sons of Italy, the Guardia Columbia, Massini Society, the Florence Naval League Association, and others. In the group of civilians were Enrico Caruso and Judge J. J. Freschi.

At the cathedral the band played "Our Illustrious Dead." The body was borne up the aisle and placed upon the bier, half buried in the flowers that had been piled there.

"This weather typifies the feelings of us all congregated here this afternoon," said Mgr. Lavelle. "Our hearts are aching and our tears are streaming even as our hearts are resolute. Captain Antonio Resnati was our friend, our brother, and our comrade, who died that we might live, who sacrificed himself on the altar of patriotism and who rests this day on the bosom of his father and his God.

"We have millions of men in our army and navy, and among them all there is not one more admirable than Resnati was. He was the type of all the virtues that make a true man, a typical soldier, and a true Christian. He was an inspiration to his fellow soldiers. He was a brave man, not a man of reckless bravery, but one who knew all the dangers of bravery, and knowing all this he was ready to sacrifice everything for a great and immortal cause."

As the coffin was carried from the cathedral the organ played "The Star-Spangled Banner." Outside the soldier guard came to attention as the pallbearers carried the body down the rain-covered steps. This time it was placed in a hearse.

Long before the services were ended the airplane had startd back to the aviation field at Mineola. Before departing, however, it circled the spires of the cathedral so low that the pilot had to exercise care to avoid hitting them. The plane contained Major E. L. Canady, commander of the Hazlehurst Aviation Field; Sergeant Tino, Captain Resnati's old instructor in flying; Captain Hugo D'Annunzio, and Captain Picco of the Royal Italian Flying Corps. The flowers with which it was laden were the gifts of the students and of friends of Captain Resnati.

Captain Resnati's body was taken to Calvary Cemetery, where it will remain in a vault until it is sent to Italy. As the coffin was placed in the vault sixteen soldiers of the 225th Aero Squadron fired the last salute.

Austria Forbids Hebrew.

The Austrian authorities have forbidden correspondence in Hebrew characters, and according to the Judische Presse of Berlin, the protests of representative Jewish organizations are without avail. Minor Government officials have on many occasions arbitrarily extended this restriction even in localities where censorship does not apply, the Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionist Affairs announces.

To Bar Jewish Immigrants.

According to the Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionist Affairs, a movement has been launched by the German People's Party to have the Government inaugurate measures for closing the old frontiers of Germany against possible Jewish settlers from Poland, Courland and Lithuania.

NOTED PICTURE FOR FUND.

"After the Battle of the Marne" to be Sold in Aid of War Blind.

"After the Battle of the Marne," Ridgeway Knight's this year's picture in the Paris Salon, the first in Paris for three years, has been presented to the American, British, French, Belgian Permanent Blind Relief Fund, now holding an exhibition and sale of pictures in the Anderson Galleries, Fifty-ninth Street and Park Avenue. The picture is presented by William Nelson Cromwell of New York, but a Paris resident of some years' standing. The news was received yesterday by cable from George A. Kessler, Chairman of the fund's Executive Committee.

The picture has been one of the noted ones of the Salon. It is a companion piece to the artist's "Les Bas de Laine." The picture is to be sold for the benefit of the fund. It shows a French interior and an old peasant, his wife, daughter, and young son pouring over a map of France and her colonies. The artist is a Philadelphian by birth, but has spent much of his life in France.

Mr. Cromwell, in a long letter to Mr. Kessler, in which he expressed appreciation of the man at the cannon's mouth and great sympathy for those blinded in battle, said: "This inhuman warfare strains each and every one of our heart strings to its utmost tension, but no suffering appeals to us with such tenderness and complete surrender as that of him who must grope his way through life in the darkness of visual oblivion. While abroad I have observed with increasing admiration the wonderful and beneficent work which you and Mrs. Kessler are accomplishing. I feel that there is no fund more efficiently administered and no object more worthy of American support, and so it occurred to me that the famous painting of Ridgeway Knight, 'Après La Battaille de la Marne,' now on exhibition in the Salon in Paris, would be an acceptable manifestation of my wish to aid this noble work."

There are distinguished members of different professions, artists of the brush, the stage, and the opera daily at the exhibition, and tea is served.

AUTO VERDICT OF $27,500.

A jury in Justice Gavegan's part of the Bronx Supreme Court yesterday returned verdicts for $10,000 in favor of Patrick Kehoe of 445 East 137th Street, the Bronx, and for $17,500 in favor of Kehoe's son-in-law, William Grandfield of 598 East 140th Street, the Bronx. Both verdicts were against the American Express Company.

Kehoe's wife, Mary, and his daughter, Mrs. William Grandfield, were run down and instantly killed by an auto truck owned by the express company and operated by Michael McMurray of 210 East Ninetieth Street on Jan. 17 last, while walking along the sidewalk of Willis Avenue between 136th and 137th Streets.

CITY FACES TIEUP OF NEW SUBWAYS

Five Thousand Men Said to be Ready to Quit Unless Higher Pay Is Assured.

ESTIMATE BOARD BLAMED

Has Failed to Make Agreement with Public Service Commission, Contractors Maintain.

Representatives of the contractors on the new subways said yesterday that unless the city immediately agreed to take over the work, and to assume the responsibility of the increased cost of labor, the 5,000 men now employed on the work would quit. If this happens, the entire work will be tied up for the duration of the war because of the scarcity of labor, the city will lose $20,000 a day in carrying charges, and the date when the pooling agreement between the city and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company can go into effect will be indefinitely delayed.

Under the Lockwood law, the Public Service Commission, with the consent of the Board of Estimate, may finish the work at cost by any method adopted, but the board has failed to act, and has even left unanswered a letter from the commission, suggesting that the two sets of officials meet through sub-committees and make a plan for continuing the work.

Frederick L. Cranford, President of the General Contractors' Association, tried to see Mayor Hylan a week ago, but was told that he would have to make an appointment. Then Mr. Cranford talked with President Smith of the Board of Aldermen, who expressed interest in the matter until after he saw the Mayor, and then advised Mr. Cranford to set forth the situation in a letter. The letter was prepared and sent to the Mayor last Wednesday. That is the last Mr. Cranford has heard of the matter.

Workmen Delay Action.

Talking with a reporter of THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, Mr. Cranford recalled the fact that the men working on the subways had demanded an increase of pay not later than May 15. They agreed to wait in order to see whether the city would take over the work and would agree to the increase, but the men had lost patience, Mr. Cranford said, and were ready to go out, leaving the work on many of the important subway lines and extensions only partly completed. The delay had enabled the contractors on the "H" lines to get the work far enough advanced to start them running as soon as the power plants and the signal systems were installed. This work might go on, but the work everywhere else in the city would stop if the men went out. He added:

"If the Board of Estimate names a committee at its meeting on Friday to confer with the Public Service Commission, it is just possible that the necessary agreements may be made to assure the men of the increased pay by June 1, but it will take quick action to accomplish this. The men are entirely independent. Government work at high wages is beckoning to the men, the labor market is practically drained, and if our men leave the work it will be impossible, in my opinion, to fill their places.

"It is certain that the contractors cannot pay more wages. Some of their contracts were made prior to the beginning of the war, when the cost of labor and material was normal, and all of them were made not later than the early part of 1916, more than a year before this country was at war. We have reached the end of our resources, and the city must take over the work or the work will stop."

May Delay City's Profits.

Mr. Cranford pointed out that the pooling arrangement with the Interborough Company would not begin until the tunnels to Brooklyn were completed, and that this work was threatened with a delay that might deprive the city of sharing in the profit of the present subway lines for several years instead of by Jan. 1 next. Among the other important work which the commission is anxious to have finished is the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line, the Seventh Avenue line to South Ferry, the Broadway extension to Queens, and the extensions of the various lines to Brooklyn, Brighton Beach, and on Eastern Parkway.

Mr. Cranford was asked if any arrangement had been made to bring the matter before the Board of Estimate on Friday. He replied:

"I hope somebody will mention it so that the attitude of the board may be publicly known. The Committee on Finance of the board, of which Controller Craig is Chairman, met yesterday, but so far as I have been able to learn the matter was not mentioned."

Public Service Commissioner Whitney expressed the opinion that the commission had made all haste in the matter, and that if the delay resulted in tying up all of the subway work the blame would have to be laid elsewhere.

No telegrams to Germany or to any territory controlled by her will be permitted. Code addresses to neutral European countries or their registration during the war are barred. No information regarding the transmission of cablegrams will be allowed. The practice of notifying the sender of the delivery of the message is suspended. Cablegrams that contain only the address and signature with no text will not be allowed, and if there is only one word it must be fully explained to the censor.

Ten different prescribed codes are usable in dispatches going to other than European neutral countries. Telegrams to persons or firms on the enemy trading list cannot be permitted unless with the approval of the War Trade Board.

Specific instructions in regard to dispatches to members of the overseas naval or land forces of the United States are given, and it is explained that, while dispatches may continue to be sent from members of the overseas force to this country containing a registered code word, no new registrations will be made.

GIVES BLACK WALNUT TREES

In compliance with an urgent appeal from the Government, William Guggenheim, Chairman of the Army and Navy Committee of the American Defense Society, 44 East Twenty-third Street, yesterday issued a call to all patriotic landowners to offer their black walnut trees for the manufacture of airplane propellers and gunstocks. Mr. Guggenheim has already given all the walnut timber on his estate at Port Washington, L. I., for Governmental purposes, with the suggestion that there are many other places on Long Island which would yield much of the necessary wood.

"Through the experience of the foreign builders of propellers for aircraft we have learned that there is no wood as suitable as black walnut for this purpose," he said. "Wood for propellers must be absolutely straight grained, not too hard or too heavy, and capable of standing the enormous air resistance involved in revolutions running up to 1,500 or more a minute."

HITS COPPER OPERATORS.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 21.—In his message to the special "war session" of the Legislature today, Governor G. W. P. Hunt paid his respects to what he termed "profiteering patriots," charging that such men were responsible for industrial unrest in the State, "and such shameful events as the deportations at Bisbee."

"I am certain," the Governor said, "that the I. W. W. was not a determining factor in the strikes that have tied up copper mines during the last four months. These strikes grew out of a long standing struggle between the forces of legitimate organized labor and the forces of organized business dominated by the copper companies. So far as lawlessness is concerned the chief rôle of the I. W. W. has been to serve as camouflage."

COMPANY CUTS ITS PROFITS.

Remits to Government More Than Half of Its Commissions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21. — The War Department today made public a letter from M. G. Migel, President of the Allied Silk Trading Corporation of 17 Madison Avenue, New York City, disclosing that that company had made a reduction of more than 50 per cent. in the amount of its commissions on cartridge cloth for the Ordnance Department.

The letter says that when the company undertook to assist the Ordnance Department in the manufacture of 7,000,000 yards of cartridge cloth, and formed a corporation of $500,000, cash paid in, for the purpose, there was no desire on its part to undertake the work particularly for profit.

PUTS DATA BEFORE WILSON.

McAdoo, However, Will Present Final Tax Conclusions Later.

WASHINGTON, May 21. — Reasons why the Treasury urges revenue legislation at this session of Congress were laid before President Wilson today by Secretary McAdoo, who is to confer later this week with Congressional leaders in an effort to overcome their strong objections to the plan.

Mr. McAdoo is understood to have told the President that, unless Congress remains in session this Summer to enact a new tax law, the Treasury will have great difficulty in financing the huge war needs expected in the six months ending next Jan. 1. The determined objection of Congressional leaders to the program calling for legislation this Summer has prompted Mr. McAdoo to consider every angle of the Government financial situation, however, and he has called for reports from Treasury advisers, to be submitted tomorrow. After these are digested, he may again consult the President, to convey the Treasury's final recommendation.

Expenditures so far this month indicate that the total will be about $1,500,000,000, a new high record, about $300,000,000 more than last month, and officials estimate that the war's cost will grow at the rate of $100,000,000 a month until January. This would make expenses for the six months, starting with the new fiscal year July 1, nearly $11,000,000,000, to be met almost entirely in that time from sale of Liberty bonds and the temporary expedient provided by certificates of indebtedness.

Little of this year's revenue will remain as a working balance in the new fiscal year, and the Treasury probably will have to start in August, or earlier, issuance of certificates in anticipation of receipts from the Fourth Liberty Loan, planned for October or November.

ANOTHER OUTBREAK AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 21.—A disturbance by students in the Sheffield School of Yale, following the riotous outbreak of last night, was promptly quieted tonight by the appearance of a detail of police, and later Major E. B. Reed of the Faculty, at whose suggestion the men scatter to their rooms was heeded.

Sometime before there had been considerable revolver firing from dormitory windows, it is said, and hurling of bottles to the street. More than 100 students were congregated when the police, sent in response to a hurry call by a patrolman, appeared.

President Hadley returned to the city late today. He declined to comment on last night's outbreak. It was pointed out tonight that the students arrested last night, although wearing the army or navy uniforms, are not enlisted men, and therefore subject to civil instead of military law.

FOUGHT NEARLY 4 TO 1.

"French soldiers," says a statement from the British Ministry of Information just received here, "reaching base hospitals are loud in praise of the fighting quality of the British troops, and the early French civilian inclination to criticism of the British is wholly removed by the realization that two British armies were faced by seventy-five German divisions, and at one point forty-eight German divisions were opposed by only fourteen British.

"During the last few days the range of the German gas shelling has been greatly lengthened, gas shells now falling at a distance of twelve miles from the front, thereby endangering a large number of innocent civilians."

The Ministry of Information is also authority for the statement that the casualties of the 31st German Division in the recent fighting around Kemmel were not less than 40 per cent. of its total infantry strength. Before the Germans delivered the assault their guns inflicted heavy losses on their own men by firing short.

It is further stated that documentary evidence shows that twenty-two German regimental commanders, corresponding in rank to British Brigadier Generals, have been killed in action.

As evidence that the British have obtained mastery of the air in France, a cablegram from the Ministry of Information says that 90 per cent. of combats in which British airplanes are now engaged take place entirely over the German line. "It is very exceptional," the message adds, "for any British aviator to be brought down over British lines since March 21."

HOPE FOR C. W. FAIRBANKS.

Ex-Vice President's Condition Shows Little Change.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 21.—There was little change during the day in the condition of former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, who is critically ill at his home here. His physician, Dr. J. A. MacDonald, stated tonight that Mr. Fairbanks was resting comfortably, and although he did not pass so good a day as yesterday, he still had hopes of his recovery.

Cotton Goods Prices Advanced.

New prices on several varieties of cottons, showing advances of 2 cents a yard over the figures recently current, were made yesterday by Taylor, Clapp & Beall of this city. The goods and the new prices follow: Lonsdale and Blackstone 4-4 bleached muslins, each 25 cents; Hope 4-4 bleached muslin, 24 cents; Forget-met-not 4-4 bleached muslin, 23 cents; Lonsdale cambric and Lonsdale nainsook, each 28 cents. Thirty-six-inch Berkeley cambrics were quoted this way: Coronet, 27c; No. 60, 28c; No. 100, 31c; Extra, 32c; No. 150, 34¼c; No. 180, 36¾c, and No. 300, 37¾c. These prices were made on Berkeley English longcloths: No. 500, 27¼c; No. 1,000, 28¼c; No. 2,000, 29¼c; No. 2,500, 31¼c; No. 3,000, 32¼c; No. 4,000, 34½c; No. 5,000, 37c, and No. 6,000, 38c. All of the above prices are subject to further advances without notice.

Fall Pile Fabrics Well Sold.

Local sellers of pile fabrics report that Fall business already placed is sufficient in many instances to keep the mills going well up through the balance of the year. The various cutting trades are said to have ordered in particularly good volume, as it is expected that velvets, velveteens, and corduroys will be among the leading fabrics for women's garments this coming Fall and Winter. There is reported to be a noticeable tendency in Fall buying toward the darker shades and more subdued designs. It is not yet so strong, however, as to have caused the light shades to be seriously neglected.

Busy Season a Month Earlier.

"I expect to see our Fall business in coats and suits practically finished by Sept. 1," said a prominent manufacturer of this city yesterday. "Of course, there are a lot of retailers who have not yet started to think about Fall, but they all will before long. Instead of doing our big business during July, August and September as in normal years, this year we will do most of it in June, July and August. It is not a case of what we want or of what the retailer may want. Present conditions simply compel earlier preparations for Fall."

Brassieres Are Much Wanted.

Little fault is to be found with the present call for brassieres here. One of the interesting things about the demand for them is that it is most active on two rather widely separated types of goods—"stouts" and bandeaus. Clever manufacturing this season has given the heavy woman the comfort of a brassiere that is at once useful and good-looking, and the large sales of this class of goods is attributed in no small part to this fact. Camouflaged inserts of elastic are popular in the bandeau types to give the necessary retention to the figure, but in at least one case this need has been filled by the use of small bronze springs. Silk brassieres are well liked, especially wash satins, crêpes, &c., which are often seen in combination with cluny, torchon, and other of the heavier cotton laces. Tricot and strong net are also much used.

Pajamas vs. Nightgowns.

Just at present the demand for pajamas for women is giving way somewhat to a call for nightgowns, according to reports from several local manufacturers. This is thought, however, to be due more to the fact that nightgowns are a trifle cooler for Summer, than to any lasting decrease in the popularity of women's pajamas. Where Fall business is being done, pajamas are said to be as much in evidence as they ever were, and in many cases even more so. They seem to be more generally sought in the West and the Middle West than they are in the East.

Lace Outlook Very Good.

While it is slower in manifesting itself than many local houses care to see it, the demand for laces is gradually increasing and promises to swell to very large proportions by the time the Fall season is at hand. Many of the leading costume manufacturers, both in this country and France, are using the more expensive laces lavishly, and by Fall the demand is expected to spread to the "bread and butter" varieties. This always means good business. At present the leaders appear to be real filet and fine black Chantilly laces, though the demand for fine Irish is said rapidly to be outstripping the supply. Venises, "Vals," and fine shadow laces also are well thought of. The more staple ones seem slower to develop for dress purposes.

Sports Corsets in Favor.

With the coming of warmer weather there has been a marked improvement locally in the demand for corsets especially designed for golf, tennis, and other sports wear. Corsets of this type are also proving popular with "farmerettes" and with women who are employed in war industries. Most models are cut very low in the bust, and make use of elastic inserts to give the desired freedom of action. In some types of corsets this insert is wide at the bottom, in order to insure a free movement at the hips, but narrows down toward the top to give support to the figure where it is needed. Tricot is the most favored material in these corsets, and tricot corsets generally are well liked. "Stout" models are well up in current sales, and in general both the front and back lace types of corsets are good sellers.

No Money in Custom Shoes.

"There is no money in custom made shoes nowadays," said the head of one of Fifth Avenue's most exclusive shoe shops yesterday. "Labor, materials and overhead expenses all tend to make it a losing proposition. If you were to come into my store and offer to buy either a $25 pair of shoes or a $10 pair I would choose the latter offer. The $25 purchase, if you made it, would be a custom made job. About the only value of business of this sort is in the advertising it gets and in maintaining the prestige of the establishment. As a matter of fact, people do not have their shoes made to order these days unless there is something the matter with their feet."

Gray Goods Trading Lags.

Buyers were none too active in the local gray goods market yesterday, but the scarcity of goods kept prices steady in spite of the lack of trading. The feature of the day apparently was the selling of some Northern spots of 38½-inch 64-60s at 19 cents. For Southern goods of this construction buyers were said to be bidding, unsuccessfully, 18½ cents for this and next month's shipments. June and July deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 20½ cents, and May-June business was done on 56-44s in that width at 15 cents. Aside from this the market did not produce much of special interest. Mill prices on spot printcloths closed this way:

39-inch, 68-72s	20½c	38½-inch, 60-52s	16½c

LUCKENBACH CO. EXPANDS.

Steamship Line Increases Its Capital to $25,000,000.

The Luckenbach Steamship Company filed a certificate of capitalization in the office of the Secretary of State at Dover, Del., yesterday, increasing its capital from $10,000 to $25,000,000. The company, it was said, had plans for expansion and for the building of a large fleet of cargo vessels.

Edgar F. Luckenbach, President of the company, said last night at his home at Sea Gate that the plans included the construction of twelve twin-screw cargo vessels of 12,000 tons. Four of these have already been turned over to the company and are in the Government service. The others will be completed within a few months. The total tonnage to be made available almost immediately will be about 250,000.

The new ships will replace the Jacob Luckenbach and other vessels sunk and destroyed during the war, and will be put into Government use as soon as constructed.

"Tailored" Neckwear Active.

Waistcoats, vestees, collar and cuff sets, and other "tailored" neckwear are very much in the spotlight these days, many styles of the first two being deprived of at least a part of their mannishness by the use of real and imitation filet, "Val," and Irish laces in the form of edgings, insertions, and other attractive ways. Venise is also much used, and cluny is used on not a few. The favored materials at the moment include piques, pongees, organdies, linen-finished lawns, and, in the higher-priced goods, fine, sheer linen. All-white and solid color effects lead, the two having been largely divorced from their early season combinations. "Soft" colors predominate. Pleating is much in vogue, and in one form or another runs through practically the whole list of neckwear styles. Pleated cuffs are in vogue also. With the coming of warmer weather a dropping off in the call for stocks is reported.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Possibly because of the reopening of the disturbing question of new tax legislation the stock market quieted down yesterday and only about 50 per cent. of the volume of business maintained each day for the last fortnight was done. Traders did not turn bearish but they showed a disposition to leave the market alone for a time and the result was a more orderly movement in the issues which have been attracting attention by their erratic fluctuations in recent sessions. Prices in general moved slightly upward with only a few issues showing any signs of the speculative fever which ran so high throughout last week. United Cigar Stores, St. Paul preferred, Marine preferred, Air Brake, and Tobacco Products were conspicuously strong. Steel was fairly active, supplying about 20 per cent. of the total business, but moved through a narrow range and closed only fractionally higher. The copper issues were firmer on the eve of the meeting at Washington which may result in an upward readjustment of the Government's price for the metal.

The contraction in activity is a natural forerunner of the preparations which must be made soon for the payment of income and excess profits taxes. It will materially relieve the banking position if speculative activity remains normal while these payments and the completion of Liberty Loan payments are in progress. In some brokerage circles it is felt that while the market has not touched a level that makes prices susceptible to waning interest on the part of the public, conditions support the view that a resumption of the movement so vigorously prosecuted for two weeks cannot be looked for until about the 1st of July. By that time the crop situation should be much clearer and the heavy financing necessitated by the Government's tax requirements and bond sales will have been taken care of.

The Liberty bonds reflected selling for the release of funds for the approaching tax payments and the expectation that the war program as now shaped will call for a new offering in a few months. The 4¼s made a new low price yesterday by selling down to 97.50, a depreciation of a full 2½ per cent. from the subscription price. The new offering of Farm Loan bonds, yielding a little less than 5 per cent., has met with such support as to prove that the war loans have by no means exhausted present investment funds. Mercantile Marine 6s moved up on the expectation that yesterday's special meeting might result in an announcement that the sale of the British companies had been consummated, a development which is still dependent upon the completion of a number of vexatious details. Call money loaned for the most part at 4½ per cent.

CHEERFUL TONE IN LONDON.

Chief Strength Is Displayed in Investment Stocks.

LONDON, May 21.—The stock market reopened cheerfully today with the chief strength in investment stocks, investors finding difficulty to obtain supplies. Grand Trunk stocks were strong on a revival of nationalization proposals.

Greek and Brazilian bonds were leading features in the foreign sections. Shipping shares were firm, but speculative issues were neglected.

Money was plentiful and discount rates were easy.

Trading Active on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, May 21.—Trading on the Bourse was active today. Five per cent rentes were quoted at 89 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 15½ centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 75 centimes.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Call Loans Renewed at 4½%, but Rate Moves Up to 6%.

The money market yesterday showed a firmer tendency, and while some call loans were renewed at 4½ per cent., new borrowings commanded 6 per cent. The time money market was quiet, maturities of sixty days being quoted at 5¾ per cent. and those of ninety days at 6 per cent.

The Denver & Rio Grande.

People interested in the Denver & Rio Grande's affairs heard from Washington yesterday that Receiver Baldwin had obtained the advance of $1,500,000 from the Railroad Administration, which is necessary to complete the recent arrangement for clearing up the floating indebtedness of the road, up to the Equitable Trust Company's judgment for $36,000,000. The securities and cash from the treasury of the road, under attachment, needed to carry out the other provisions, can be released and turned over immediately.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

$2,000,000 Gold from Canada.

Gold to the amount of $2,000,000 was received here yesterday from Canada, the shipment having been made by the Bank of Montreal. Last week it was announced that $1,000,000 would be forwarded to New York, but although the movement was delayed a few days, the amount was doubled. The gold importation helped to improve the situation in respect to Canadian exchange. Yesterday morning the premium on New York exchange at Montreal was 1¼ per cent., while later in the day it was 1 per cent. bid and 1 3-16 per cent. asked. Not long ago the premium was 1¾ per cent., and at one time it moved up to as high as 2 per cent. The exchange situation has been a matter of much concern to Canadian bankers and they have had frequent conferences with the Earl of Reading and United States Treasury officials. Lord Reading was in Ottawa on Saturday.

Bank to Double Its Capital.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Fifth Avenue Bank of New York has been called for next Monday to act on the proposal to increase the bank's capital stock from $100,000 to $200,000. The par value of the bank's stock is $100, but the market quotations are $3,400 bid and $3,700, asked—the highest price of any bank or trust company stock quoted. Stockholders have been receiving dividends at the rate of 100 per cent. per annum. The Fifth Avenue Bank was established in 1875. Its surplus and undivided profits amount to $2,332,000 and its deposits total about $18,000,000. The bank has made it a policy not to pay interest on deposits, and is probably the only institution in the city which has not deviated from it. The bank has declined to accept Government deposits because of its unwillingness to pay interest. It is not a member of the Federal Reserve System.

American Telephone and Telegraph Dividend.

Declaration of the usual quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company yesterday appeared to check a declining movement in the stock. Closing at 97⅝ on Monday afternoon, the quotation receded to 96 before news of the Directors' action arrived in the Street, thereafter moving upward a point. The dividend will be paid July 15 to stockholders of record June 20.

Comparative Dullness in Stocks.

The recoveries scored by numerous stocks which had displayed weakness on Monday occurred in a market not much more than half as active. Gossip in commission houses indicated that traders were inclined to act cautiously in the absence of news developments at home and abroad of a character to base commitments upon. It looked in the morning as though buying of the copper stocks was getting under way, when Utah rose nearly 2 points and Anaconda more than a point, but the advance failed to attract a following, and prices eased off somewhat before the close.

The Buying of New Haven Shares.

The buying of New Haven in the last ten days has attracted more attention, probably, than developments in any other stocks outside of Baldwin and Marine preferred. The Street has received no information of favorable developments for the company apart from the news affecting the carriers generally, but the ticker has recorded what appeared to be fairly steady accumulation. Yesterday's gross gain of 2¼ points carried the price to a new high record for the year at 43⅞. The net gain for the day made the total rise from Monday morning of last week 9 full points.

Copper Conference Today.

The copper trade is awaiting the result of today's meeting at Washington between producers and representatives of the War Industries Board with more interest, perhaps, than the outcome of any conference since those which brought about the establishment of a fixed price. The high-cost producers are hoping for an increase of the quotation from 23½ cents to at least 24 or 24½ cents a pound, to be effective after June 1. The producers whose costs are lower have been silent in respect to the meeting, although it may be said that they would like to see an increase which would neutralize the advance of expenses since the price was first fixed. The big companies which operate refineries for their own metal and custom business are hoping for an arrangement which will permit them to derive more of a profit during the war period on refining operations.

Liberty 4¼s Make New Low Record.

The 4¼ per cent. bonds of the Third Liberty Loan made a new low record yesterday when they sold at 97.50, or $975 per $1,000, the previous low point having been 97.52. Yesterday's transactions in these bonds on the Stock Exchange totaled $2,227,000 and the closing quotation was 97.54.

Large Sales of Farm Loan Bonds.

It was reported yesterday that more than $16,000,000 of the Federal Farm Loan 5 per cent. bonds had been sold. Bond dealers are surprised at the excellent showing made for the first two days of the offering. The distributing syndicate contracted with the Federal Farm Loan Board to sell $15,000,000 with an option on another block of $15,000,000. Judging from the dispatch with which the bonds have been placed with investors it is believed that the entire $30,000,000 will be sold within another few days. The bonds are being offered at 101 and interest netting 4¾ per cent. to the redeemable date (1923) and 5 per cent. thereafter up to redemption or maturity.

The Marine Deal.

There was a meeting of the Finance Committee of the International Mercantile Marine Company yesterday, but the only reply made by President Franklin to the throng of reporters seeking news of the sale of the British properties was that there were no developments. The big deal is still a live topic of conversation, and Marine issues were traded in briskly yesterday, the preferred selling up to 105½ at one time with a net gain of 1⅝, while the common advanced half a point.

Rumors in Cotton.

The Board of Managers of the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday passed a resolution similar to that adopted not long ago by the New York Stock Exchange, providing that "the circulation of rumors of a sensational character * * * will be deemed an act detrimental to the interest and welfare of the Exchange." There has been a number of rumors abroad lately regarding the auction sale by the Allen Property Custodian, today, of 5,301 bales of German-owned cotton, mostly concerning alleged restrictions upon the sale to be imposed by the Government.

Factors in the Market.

The cotton market yesterday gave a striking example of the fact that, when the market is poised in a state of unstable equilibrium, a very small factor is sufficient to tumble it over. The market was at the top of its upward swing yesterday afternoon, and though there had been little save speculative support in sight, the bulls were jubilant. Then two spot quotations from the South were posted; Savannah 30 cents, off 2¼, and Norfolk 27 cents, off 3 cents. It did not matter that the quotations thus superseded had been carried ever since before the big drop in prices of last month, that they represented only the stubbornness of the farmers; that no sales had been made in weeks at such prices, and that even at the new quotations the sellers weren't able to get a nibble. Everybody started selling futures at once, and the local market catapulted down faster than it had come up, finishing just about where it started—where, incidentally, it has been in a fairly stable condition for the past week.

are so certain of victory that the only thing we can be at all undecided about is how long the war will last. ANALYSIS OF LIBERTY LOAN SUBSCRIPTIONS

THESE WERE 47 PER CENT.

Subscriptions in $200,000 Class on First Loan Were 62 Per Cent. and 35 Per Cent. on the Third.

In the New York District 3,343,123 subscriptions were received to the Third Liberty Loan, according to a statement given out yesterday by James Freeman Curtis, Deputy Governor and General Counsel of the Federal Reserve Bank. This total for subscriptions compares with 2,182,017 for the Second Loan, and 978,959 for the First Loan. Although the subscriptions for the Third Loan, totaling $1,114,930,700, were the smallest of the three loans, the distribution was by far the broadest.

The table divides the subscriptions into five classes: First, up to $10,000; second, from $10,050 to $50,000; third, from $50,050 to $100,000; fourth, from $100,050 to $200,000, and fifth, those more than $200,000. For all three loans the number of subscribers in the fourth class was smaller than the number for the fifth class.

An analysis of the accompanying table shows that in each succeeding loan, small subscriptions played a more important part, and correspondingly the very large applications were a smaller factor. Thus in the First Loan, subscriptions of $10,000 and less amounted to 23 per cent. of the total, while for the Second Loan they amounted to 29 per cent., and for the Third Loan to 47 per cent. Subscriptions of $200,000 and more amounted to 62 per cent. in the First Loan, to 54 per cent. in the Second Loan, and only 35 per cent. in the Third Loan.

The detailed comparative statement follows:

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF SUBSCRIPTIONS.

	—1st Liberty Loan.— No. of Subscriptions.	Amount.	—2d Liberty Loan.— No. of Subscriptions.	Amount.	—3d Liberty Loan.— No. of Subscriptions.	Amount.
Class A—$50 to $10,000	973,614	$274,019,550	*2,173,884	$441,101,150	*3,336,980	$322,915,700
Class B—$10,050 to $50,000	3,582	101,423,100	5,868	168,328,200	4,628	127,456,550
Class C—$50,050 to $100	778	71,270,600	1,097	100,722,650	763	68,562,000
Class D—$100,050 to $200,000	235	47,049,500	413	68,166,700	322	50,145,050
Class E—Above $200,000	700	693,025,650	755	772,136,750	430	345,850,500
Total	978,959	$1,196,788,400	2,182,017	$1,550,453,450	*3,343,123	$1,114,930,700

It will be noted that the table refers to number of "subscriptions" and not to the number of "subscribers," the latter being considerably smaller than the former for the reason that a great many persons filed two or more subscriptions, frequently placing the same through different channels.

DANIELS PROMISES SHIPS FOR MILLIONS

They Will Be Ready Before Another Summer, He Tells Rutgers Alumni.

DESTROYERS IN PLENTY

Never Again, He Declares, Must Our Commerce Be Carried in Foreign Bottoms.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 21.—The United States is ready to draft men from 18 to 60 years old, if that is necessary to win the war, declared Secretary of War Daniels in a speech this afternoon at the alumni dinner of Rutgers College in Ballantine Gymnasium. His declaration was loudly cheered. He predicted "before another Summer we will have enough ships to carry not only a million, but millions, to France, and enough destroyers to carry them there in safety." This brought another outburst from the 600 men listening to him.

Every reference to increased shipping to get men to France was cheered and applauded. There was a demonstration when Secretary Daniels said American soldiers and sailors will own the country when they come back and that Americans would give it to them gladly.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Mr. Daniels by President W. H. S. Demarest. At the 152d annual commencement of Rutgers this morning, forty-seven men were graduated. Mrs. Mary Mitchell Moore, of Bryn Mawr College, was given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. This is the first time in the history of the college that a women has received a degree. In addressing the alumni, Secretary Daniels said in part:

"I am happy to come to this city which has given to the American Navy in its hour of supreme need a commander whose name makes his deeds compare with the stars. I refer, of course, to Commander Arthur S. Carpender of the Fanning, an officer typical of the navy, the story of whose judgment, valor, and courage will be, when we come to write the story of these days of strife, one of the most illuminating and inspiring pages. In all our wars our navy has played a glorious part from the time of John Paul Jones until Carpender captured the first Germans taken by Americans and went out after more, and he will capture more before this war is over.

"Almost every day in my official capacity I am now called upon to give a name to a ship, and we are going to get them out faster. We are going to get out the greatest naval ships produced, the destroyers on which men do not sleep for days and do not eat except standing up. I have knowledge of one destroyer which convoyed 177 ships safely. Admiral Sims, when he came upon this particular destroyer in a harbor, expecting to find the boys tired of their duty, found them fresh and asking no questions except 'Admiral, where do we go next?'

"There are 300,000 men in the navy now and there will be 400,000 soon. They are enlisting so fast we have to ask them to stay at home for a few days until we can build new ships for them. We have no common seamen any more—they are all common heroes. Since the war began 1,500 men have been promoted to be officers, and to see them you would believe they had come up through Annapolis. The young men of today have shown that they will enlist, sacrifice, win victories, and give their lives for their country's sake. The first men to enlist when the call came were college men. They were supposed to be soft, and high brows, but every time I go aboard a ship and see those stalwart young men I am impressed with the astounding manner in which they have proven they have the stuff.

"Our men are receiving commendatory remarks from every side, from the French, the British, and the Italians. The only obstacle in the way of America's participation in this war is tonnage. If we had had the vision, years ago, to have a merchant marine, we would not have been so handicapped at the outbreak of war. Out of this war we must learn that our commerce must never again be carried in foreign bottoms.

"The great drive of the Prussians a month ago was made because the German Emperor well knows that when America gets enough ships to carry over her forces, the end has come. We are building ships, but we cannot build them in a day. When this war began, we had only a handful, so long had we depended on the construction on foreign shores. But America can do anything, and before another Summer we will have enough ships to carry not only a million but millions to France, and enough destroyers to carry them there in safety.

"One of these days, not this year perhaps or the next year or the year after, but one of these days these millions are coming back home, and the most of them are coming back; those who do not come back will lie in graves in the sacred soil of France, and we will love that country with a love unequaled except by that love of Lafayette for this country. And when they come back they'll own America and we will give it to them gladly and proudly.

"The President of the United States, the foremost statesman of the world and the spokesman for humanity—and all the world thanks New Jersey for giving him to us—and the Congress of the United States have called men to the colors from 21 to 31 years of age. Young men in college from 18 to 21 should stay in college until they reach the latter age. The day may come when, if necessary, Congress may change the age limit because men from 21 to 31 cannot win the war. Then we will call on the men from 18 to 60.

"No man ought to surrender his independence in politics, but I do not believe in mockery in religion and politics. There isn't a man in America today who will get a following with the people unless he puts America above party.

"We shall have many anxious moments before victory comes, but never for a moment should we be in doubt. We have no business to listen to pessimism. What cowardice is to the soldier, pessimism is to the civilian. We have no more right to doubt the result of the war than that God rules the heavens."

The surplus for the four months ended April 30, after paying interest, was $301,718, a gain of $27,694 over the same period in 1917.

WAR FINANCE BOARD TO OFFER QUICK AID

Urgent Pleas for Assistance Expected to be Met Within the Next Two Weeks.

DIRECTORS HOLD MEETING

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The Directors of the War Finance Corporation, meeting today for the first time, began the immense task of considering applications for financial aid to activities essential to the conduct of the war. Apparently under the belief that the War Finance Corporation is a source of easy money for all kinds of development projects, scores of persons have applied for advances to aid them in promoting new enterprises which they assert will contribute to the war's success.

Applications were classified today, and the Directors set about the work of getting full information on cases which appeared meritorious. Applicants who did not present sufficient claims to justify immediate consideration will be told to examine their cases in the light of the War Finance Corporation act, and to refile them if further evidence can be presented.

A few cases seem urgent, and loans may be made on them within the next two weeks. Some of these are from concerns which have been unable to obtain from banks loans with which to expand plants making war materials. Applications have been made by a number of public utilities which have been hit hard by the rising costs of materials and supplies and the difficulty of increasing service rates proportionately.

Some applications on file reflect an apparent unwillingness of banks to extend credit to institutions which they have financed in the past without advance assurance from the War Finance Corporation that the loans will be covered from the Government fund.

The Capital Issues Committee of the Federal Reserve Board, which went out of existence on May 17 with the organization of the War Finance Corporation, issued today a final report of its activities during the four months of its organization. The committee passed on applications for the investment of capital to the amount of $478,458,386, and of this amount for new enterprises it permitted the investment of $154,102,224. For refunding purposes the committee approved the investment of $258,664,496, the total amount of approved investments therefore being $412,766,721. The net curtailment was $65,691,665.

Of applications considered, 192 were from municipalities, 52 from public utilities corporations, and 107 from industrial concerns. Of these the committee gave its approval to 140 municipal, 60 public utility, and 78 industrial corporations. Thirty-four municipal applications were disapproved and 18 curtailed, 24 industrial applications were disapproved and 5 curtailed. By securing postponement for the period of the war, the committee saved from investment $19,865,000.

The statement of operations under the direction of the committee follows:

MEXICO ANNULS ORDER AGAINST MINE OWNERS

Companies Will Return 25 Per Cent. of Value of Silver as Heretofore, Instead of 50 Per Cent.

The American Smelting and Refining Company received word from its representatives in Mexico yesterday that the Mexican Government has rescinded a recent decree which, if permitted to stand, would have seriously affected the operations of American mining concerns south of the border. The statute prescribed that gold to the full value of the precious metal taken from Mexican lands be returned to that country together with 50 per cent., in gold, of the value of the silver mined. Previously, 25 per cent. of the value of the silver had to be returned, and now the Government has returned to this basis.

When the 50 per cent. rule was put into operation the Smelting and Refining Company applied to the Federal Reserve Board for permission to increase its exports of gold bullion to Mexico above the $500,000 which had been going out monthly. The permission was refused. The company informed the Mexican officials of the attitude of the United States Government.

The gold sent back to Mexico is minted into coins and turned over to the mining companies to be used in paying for labor, supplies and taxes. In expanding its efforts to increase the circulation of gold coin, the Mexican Government has ordered that American gold money be legal tender on the basis of two Mexican dollars for one American dollar. The Mexican gold dollar is valued at 49.8 cents, compared with 100 cents for the American dollar, and the arrangement gives Mexican coinage some advantage on the basis mentioned.

AIRPLANE MAIL PILOTS BATTLE WITH STORMS

Lieut. Bonsal Compelled to Put Back to Belmont Park—Hail 10,000 Feet Up.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Airplane mail pilots today had their first battles against storms. Soon after leaving Belmont Field, Long Island, Lieutenant Bonsal ran into an electrical disturbance, accompanied by wind and rain, and was forced to return, the mail being forwarded by train.

Lieutenant Edgerton left Philadelphia for Washington in heavy clouds, and encountered an electrical, wind, hail, and rain storm near Baltimore at an altitude of 10,000 feet. He fought through, and arrived here in two hours and thirty-four minutes, with the propeller of his plane slightly damaged.

Lieutenant Miller missed the storm, completing the trip from Washington to Philadelphia in one hour and fifty-two minutes.

The Post Office Department announced today that two of the powerful Liberty motors probably would be installed in mail-planes before the end of the week, enabling them better to fight through bad weather.

CANADA TO PAY 980 MILLION.

A. K. McLean Estimates Dominion's Expenditures for Year.

The financial burden brought upon Canada by the continuance of the war will expand in extraordinary fashion in the next fiscal year, the Canadian Bank of Commerce points out in its May letter.

"The Hon. A. K. McLean, who has been Acting Minister of Finance during the absence of Sir Thomas White through ill-health, estimates the expenditures for the next fiscal year at $980,000,000," says the letter, "and the receipts from all sources at $700,000,000, as contrasted with expenditures of $548,000,000 and receipts of $258,000,000 last year. Of this amount the ordinary expenditure for the fiscal year for all purposes apart from war is estimated at $230,000,000, as compared with $203,000,000 last year and $161,000,000 for 1913-14, the last fiscal year before the war.

"The war expenditure will amount to $425,000,000 for the coming year, compared with $345,000,000 last year. The balance consists of $325,000,000 to be advanced to the Imperial Government for the purpose of financing a part of our export trade to Great Britain. As an offset Great Britain is to make advances estimated at $300,000,000 for the maintenance of the Canadian troops overseas.

"The task of obtaining this large sum of money at home by a loan to be issued in the Autumn has been made more difficult by the heavy taxation already in force, which is impressing the effects of the war upon the business and the home of the individual Canadian in a way hitherto little felt. It is possible that the financial arrangements referred to by the Finance Minister (in a recent budget speech) as being under discussion with the United States may, to a limited extent, aid in solving the problem, but it is unlikely that much assistance will be derived from this quarter, and it will devolve upon the Canadians to find most, if not all, of the money at home."

When the Civil War Was Over

When the Civil War, a conflict that had shaken the Union, was over, a period of uncharted possibilities lay ahead.

The years passed, and the country on the wreckage of war built up a new structure of prosperity. Its growth in economic strength and breadth of opportunity was rapid.

A half century's experience—identification with the country's financial and economic life in Brooklyn throughout this period of progress—strengthens this Company's faith that a greater, more prosperous future for the United States will also arise out of this present era of destruction—a future built on new foundations of patriotism, of self-sacrifice, of thrift, developed in the furnace of war.

Reorganized Railroads

AMONG THE underlying issues of the country's reorganized railroads there exist many Investment Opportunities.

The railroad administration has just approved an expenditure of nearly a billion dollars for railroad betterments and equipment.

The value of these Railroad Bonds has been additionally enhanced by:

① —Government Control.
③ —Extensive loans and rentals by Government.

This is a most opportune time to investigate the possibilities in Bonds of reorganized railroads.

THE COTTON MARKET

Efforts to Start a Bull Movement Meet Comparatively Little Success.

Efforts to upset the equilibrium of the local cotton market and start a bull movement met with comparatively little success yesterday. Prices had been bid up, in a rather narrow market, by short covering and speculative long purchases, nearly 50 net points, when the market became topheavy and fell with a crash on reports of an easier spot situation and lower spot quotations in the South, dropping back below Monday's close. There was enough bargain-hunting and short covering at the bottom to restore the situation, leaving the close very steady, prices ranging from 5 points up to 18 points off.

The weather report was extremely good, but it became clear in the early trading that the market was rather heavily overbought. First prices were up from 14 to 21 points, with a number of buying orders from Liverpool in hand, and the Liverpool market closing rather firm. Another factor was the appearance on the floor of a number of mill buyers, all of whom had come to town to attend today's auction sale of 5,391 bales of German-owned cotton by the Alien Property Custodian.

This is reported to be of excellent quality white cotton, grading strict to good middling, and it was freely predicted by spot dealers yesterday that bids on it would go several hundred points above the market, because of the exceptional demand for cotton of this quality, out of line with the normal price differences.

These buyers, however, bought no cotton on the floor yesterday, so far as could be ascertained, and early in the afternoon the market, over-extended, became very wabbly. At this juncture Savannah's spot quotation was reported at 30, off 2¼ cents, and though this was only a belated change in parity with recent declines, the effect was to cause a selling wave that more than wiped out the advance.

Exports yesterday were 5,000 bales, making 3,429,840 for the current season. Southern spot markets, aside from Norfolk and Savannah, which showed the largest readjustments, showed a generally lower tendency.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 11,606 packages. A slight undercurrent of weakness with a little shading of values in some cases. Not so much stock available as operators expected, owing to the slow delivery of many of the shipments. More weakness in the undergrades than finer qualities. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 45½@46c; extras, (92-score,) 44¼@45c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 42@44c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 37¼@41½c; thirds, 35@37c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 47½c; extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 43½@46c; seconds, 40@43c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 44½c; good to prime, 42@44c; common to fair, 35@41c; renovated, extras, 38½@39c; firsts, 37@38c; lower grades, 33@35c, imitation creamery, firsts, 34@35c; ladies, current make, firsts, 32@33c; seconds, 31c; lower grades, 29@30½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 31c; No. 2, 30c; lower grades, 27@29½c.

EGGS.—27,800 cases. The market continues generally dull, weak, and irregular. Offerings of average prime and lower qualities are excessive in comparison with the limited demand. There is only a limited offering of strictly fancy full, strong-bodied, Northern stock, and some buyers of very fastidious ideas say that they have difficulty in finding such, but the best goods generally obtainable are freely offered at quotations and meeting but a slow outlet and the medium and lower grades are being shaded further in the effort to force business. Nearby white eggs are still moving slowly and the accumulations are reducing only gradually. Current receipts are moderate and the proportion of extra fancy goods is comparatively small. Fine qualities, however, are generally selling at 39@39c, only exceptionally fancy goods bringing higher prices, and some fair lots are cleaning up as low as 36@37c. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 36@37c; storage packed firsts, 34½@35½c; regular packed extra, firsts, 34¼@35c; regular packed firsts, 32½@34c; seconds and poorer, 29@32c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1 storage packed, 30½@31c; regular packed, No. 1, 29@30c; No. 2 and poorer, 27@28½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 28@29c; under grades, 22@27c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 38@40c; ordinary to prime, 36@37c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 35@38c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@37c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 37@38c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 32½@35c; duck eggs, 29@42c.

Despite the very small visible supply of wheat, a prominent Western trade publication estimates that on May 1 there were 54,000,000 bushels of wheat still in the country for export and carry over into the next season. If these figures are correct, the wheat is apparently largely on the farms or in the hands of mills and country elevators, and should provide for quite a liberal export movement during the balance of the season and keep the mills fairly well occupied.

The Spring wheat crop is getting a splendid start, but has yet to pass through its most critical period of drought and blight.

RYE.

CORN.

The corn market was again very feverish and price changes were due more to technical conditions and the nature of operations than to any new development in connection with the present prospective supply and demand. Early prices showed a strong upward tendency, but subsequently declined, and at the close the July position in the West was 1⅛c net lower. In the local cash market prices were barely steady; kiln dried No. 3 yellow quoted at $1.50; No. 4 yellow, $1.40, cost and freight, New York.

CHICAGO PRICES.

OATS.

The Western oats market was again disturbed by the action of the May position, which sold up to 79⅝c, an advance of 1⅝c from the previous close. Toward the close there was a reaction throughout the list, and final quotations were irregular, ranging from ⅜c advance to ½c net decline. In the local cash market standard was quoted at 85@85½c; No. 2 white, 86c asked; No. 3 white, 84@85c; No. 4 white, 83@84c; fancy clipped white, 86½@89½c; ordinary clipped white, 85@86½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

An easier tone prevailed in the provision market and prices closed at about the low. Hog receipts were only moderate, and the hog market was firm, but the cash position was quiet, and there was a disposition to favor the selling side. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 20,000, estimated, for today 18,000; Kansas City received 12,000 and Omaha 15,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

There was more business in the market for coffee futures yesterday, but price changes were extremely narrow, with the opening unchanged to 1 point higher, and the close net unchanged to 1 point lower. The business reported came from trade sources, probably reflecting the placing or undoing of hedges, except for switches from September to March at 85 points. No improvement was reported in the spot market generally, with quotations unchanged on the basis of 8½c for Rio 7s and 10½c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There were no purchases reported by the International Sugar Committee yesterday, although thus far this month they have been quite heavy and promise to exceed earlier estimates of 300,000 tons. In fact, already purchases for that amount have been made, and it is now said that shipments during May would reach over 350,000 tons. Prices remain unchanged at the fixed level of 4.985c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c for centrifugal and 7.45c for fine granulated.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange closed steady with a majority of the issues showing net advances from a fraction to more than a point. Prices, however, were substantially below the high levels of the day, and the course of the market in the afternoon and at the close was irregular, with a rather weak tendency. Profit taking on an extended scale in the final hour checked a spirited advance and in the reaction prices declined sharply, nullifying the major portion of the gains.

TELLS OF SHIP PRODUCTION.

John Trix of Detroit told of rapid progress in the manufacture of Liberty motors at the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday and decried the criticism of the nation's efforts to promote the war program. Equally gratifying to the assembled manufacturers was the statement of Charles S. Page of the United States Shipping Board, Washington, that earlier obstacles having been overcome, the output of ships would shortly be "at a pace that will startle the world."

Mr. Trix said that the magnitude of the airplane and engine plants, which had grown up almost overnight, was almost inconceivable. He said there would be no check or delay in the construction of Liberty motors.

After tracing the work of the Shipping Board from its formation in 1916 up to the present time, Mr. Page said that the story of the recent progress in shipbuilding read like a romance. He added:

"As our military and naval program has advanced it has been necessary to withdraw more and more tonnage from export merchant marine service and allocate it to military and naval uses. Such a condition is likely to continue for a considerable period to come. The necessary effect of this has been to reduce the tonnage for export and import trade purposes by the withdrawal of vessels heretofore trading to the Orient, Australia, the South Seas, the east and west coasts of South and Central America, and to European countries."

Charles F. Beach, an American resident of Paris, told of France and her industrial needs, and recommended that the National Association of Manufacturers form a commission at the present convention to study and advise on the economic and industrial problems that will confront France at the end of the war.

George S. Boudinot, Secretary of the association, made a plea for the restoration of the crippled soldier to industry, asserting that a careful investigation had shown that in every factory there are many jobs that could be handled by disabled soldiers.

Resolutions dealing with economic and industrial conditions were adopted by the convention, one of them urging employers to re-employ workers when honorably discharged from the military service of the United States, and another asking the Government to make an investigation of the workings of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws with a view to determining whether they should be modified to meet the new conditions to prevail in this country following the war.
